The Illinois Board of Regents, meeting June 18 at Sangamon State, approved the appointment of five new faculty members for the University. They are: David E. O’Gorman, Gary L. Trammell, Sherrie Good, Jack Van Der Slik and Phyllis Walden.

O’Gorman will join SSU as a professor of business administration. Since 1972 he has been associated with Husson College, Bangor, Me., an institution which focuses exclusively on business administration programs. At Husson he served as assistant to the president, director of admissions, coordinator of long-range planning, director of information systems development and dean of graduate studies.

He has been involved in marketing for Bristol Myers and the Marathon Oil Company, and at the University of Pittsburgh co-directed an educational leadership project which was a consortium of 23 colleges working to improve education in inner-city schools. O’Gorman also worked as a Peace Corps volunteer in Panama.

Trammell was named assistant professor of chemistry. He comes to SSU from Mobay Chemical Corporation’s Agricultural Division, where he was senior chemist. He formerly held research positions with St. Louis’ Monsanto plant, with Vulcan Materials Corp. in Wichita, and with the University of Kansas.

He has been on the faculty of the University of Hawaii, Miami University and the Oregon State Correctional Institution.

Good has been named assistant professor of communication and public affairs reporting. She has held teaching positions at Florida International University, Southern Illinois University and Ball State University and has worked with a number of campus newspapers as well as with the Miami Herald. She helped establish an internship program in broadcast news and print journalism at the Hollywood (Florida) Sun Tattler.

Van Der Slik, who will be professor of political studies, is a former consultant to SSU’s Legislative Studies Center as well as to the public information committee of the Illinois Constitutional Convention. He has also served the Illinois General Assembly as a research fellow with the Legislative Studies Council.

Van Der Slik taught at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, where he was acting chairperson of the Department of Political Science, and at Calvin College and Michigan State University. He is the author of five books and numerous articles.

Walden, assistant professor of experiential learning, was previously involved with several innovative programs, including posts as coordinator of the Cleveland Center, Capital University Without Walls; continuing education center program coordinator at Minnesota’s College of St. Benedict; arts field researcher in Minneapolis; and faculty adviser to more than 50 Ph.D. candidates in an interdisciplinary program at the Union Graduate School.

Credit for prior learning workshop set

Persons interested in receiving college credit for prior learning are invited to attend a workshop and reception at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, July 15, at Sangamon State. The workshop, sponsored by SSU’s Innovative and Experimental Studies Cluster, will be held in Brookens 411.

The purpose of the workshop is the introduction of a program of credit for prior learning which will begin at Sangamon State in the Spring Semester of 1982. Alison Bernstein, associate dean for innovative and experimental studies, said that this concept is very important to the University. “Our students are older — the average age is 29 — and they come to the University with different preparation and diverse education experiences, not all currently recognized,” she said.

Bernstein added that the credit for prior learning concept is in effect at hundreds of schools across the United States.

People interested in attending the workshop may call Leroy Jordan in the Applied Study Office at Sangamon State, 786-6640, for more information. The workshop is free and open to the public.
Foss named interim VPAA

Dennis Foss, associate professor of sociology/anthropology and a faculty associate in the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs (VPAA) at Sangamon State, has been named interim VPAA at the University.

Foss will assume the duties of VPAA Aug. 1 and will remain in the position while a nationwide search is conducted to find a replacement for Sue Dezendolet, who has resigned to accept a similar post at Columbus College in Columbus, Ga.

In announcing the appointment, SSU Pres. Alex Lacy said, "The coming year will be a most important one in the University's history, and we hope most sincerely that the University community will use this new appointment as an opportunity to work cooperatively toward achievement of those educational goals to which we are all committed."

Foss graduated with honors from Bates College in Maine where he received the bachelor's degree in sociology in 1970. He holds the M.A. and Ph.D. in sociology from the University of New Hampshire.

He has been part of Sangamon State's faculty since 1975, teaching and conducting research in the areas of sociological theory (both modern and classical), theory construction, the sociology of death and the sociology of the family.

He has published two books: The American View of Death: Acceptance or Denial?, which he co-authored in 1972, and The Value Controversy in Sociology: A New Orientation for the Profession, released in 1977. In addition, he has published nearly a dozen articles and papers dealing with sociology.

In conjunction with Foss' appointment, W. Williams Stevens, Jr., associate professor of child, family and community services, was named faculty associate to the vice president and Leon Cohen, associate professor of political studies and director of grants and contracts, was named faculty associate for the budget. Stevens' duties will include assisting the Vice President's Office with planning and resource allocation and Cohen will work with budgetary issues.

Sangamon arts institute held

The second annual Sangamon Institute in Arts Administration will be held on the campus of Sangamon State University July 14 through 25. According to Jonathan Katz, professor of arts administration and director of the Institute, it is designed to address the professional development needs of arts administrators.

"We offer well-rounded professional development geared to practicing arts administrators," said Katz. The Institute attracts arts administrators from all over the country.

The two-week institute will consist of workshops on a variety of topics, including: management planning, marketing development, grant application planning and research, and the legal aspects of arts administration.

Huard joins tennis team

Sheila Huard, Penticton, B.C., Canada, has become the third recruit to sign for Sangamon State's 1981 women's tennis team.

Huard played club tennis for a city team in her home town and was an intramural player at Vancouver Community College. She also worked as a youth instructor at a club in Calgary, Alberta, while she attended the University of Calgary. Since Huard has never competed in intercollegiate tennis she will have four years of eligibility at SSU.

"Sheila is very tennis-wise in both singles and doubles," said SSU Coach Sue McCain. "She's an excellent athlete with a strong serve."

Huard will enroll in August in the Economics Program. She joins Jana Griffin of Pana and Linda Bucci of Oak Forrest as additions to SSU's '81 team.
Sidney Burrell, associate professor of social justice professions; Doris Franklin, assistant professor of teacher education; and Gail L. Lutz, director of University Relations, were among the judges for an oratorical contest held as part of the 1981 Baptist General State Convention of Illinois, Inc. The convention met in Springfield.

Dianna Kirby-Clark, former student at Sangamon State and currently traffic director for radio station WIL in St. Louis, was one of five national officers selected during the 39th annual convention of Alpha Epsilon Rho broadcasting society, held recently in Nashville. Kirby-Clark, who was elected vice president for regional development, was a founding member of SSU’s AERho chapter and served as its vice president when it was named national rookie chapter of the year. She also did volunteer work at WSSR, where she was involved in production, engineering, continuity and on-the-air work.

Wilma Scott Heide, professor of women’s studies and innovative and experimental studies, was the keynote speaker at the sixth annual Illinois NOW convention, held recently in Milwaukee. Heide’s topic was “Feminism is our Destiny.” She served as national president and chairperson of the National Organization for Women from 1970 to 1974 and is currently a member of the group’s national Media Committee.

Jeffrey A. Chesky, assistant professor of gerontology, gave a presentation at the recent Illinois White House Conference on Aging on the subject “The Need for More Instruction on Biological Aspects of Aging.”

Bo McLaughlin, Most Valuable Player on the SSU men’s tennis team, and Mark Mosbach, the team’s Most Improved Player, were among those honored at a recent athletic awards dinner held at the home of SSU Pres. Alex Lacy.

Men’s Tennis Coach Dave McCain presented McLaughlin and Mosbach with their awards. Other awards made at the dinner included presentation of varsity plaques to each member of the men’s team and the presentation of a Prairie Stars wristwatch to McCain in appreciation of his volunteer coaching services.

McCain, who took his first-year team to a 15th-place finish in the NAIA National Tournament in Kansas City this spring, said early in the year that his goal was to win the state championship. SSU did just that, winning over 11 other teams at the state level. Forty-six teams competed in the national tournament.

Besides coaching the men’s team on a volunteer basis, McCain donated the use of his Springfield Racquet Club to SSU for the men’s and women’s teams.

Sue McCain, Dave’s wife, is the coach of the SSU women’s team. The women Prairie Stars finished eighth in Kansas City at the women’s national tournament, in which 23 teams took part.

Members of the women’s team also attended the awards dinner, although they received their varsity plaques last fall, when Kathy Herrick was named MVP and Janet Heinrichsmeyer was named Most Improved Player.

Professionals meet with management class

“The New Executives: Minorities and Women,” a class taught by SSU Professor of Management Anna May Smith, will feature a number of guest lectures by public officials and other professionals during the Summer Semester.

Speakers who have met with the class so far include: Mary Lynn Greeley, assistant director of marketing for Springfield Marine Bank; Susan DeWitt, Consumer Division of the Illinois Attorney General’s Office; Illinois Comptroller Roland Burris; Yvonne Rice, manager of U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon’s Springfield office; and Evalyn Johnson, director of technical services for the Office of the Secretary of State.

Speakers still scheduled include: Illinois Rep. Josephine Oblinger (R-Springfield), July 8; Velma Carey, SSU personnel director, July 13; Alice Kirby, personnel director with the Office of the Comptroller, July 15; Sheila Smith and Freeman Barnes, president and vice president of Financial Management Systems, Chicago, July 20; and Nan Spaulding, manager of special services, Illinois Office of Education, July 22.

All addresses are open to the public and are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in Room L-50.

Teacher-interns gain insight into legislative process

Two veteran teachers were among the Sangamon State students who served as legislative interns for Illinois lawmakers during the recent session of the General Assembly.

Harry Jackson, social science teacher at Raymond Junior High School, and Dale Goldsmith, social studies teacher at Cahokia High School, are both graduate students in SSU's Teacher Education Sequence. Jackson served as intern for Rep. Josephine Oblinger (R-Springfield) and Goldsmith interned with Sen. Arthur Berman (D-Chicago).

"I don't agree with all that the legislature does," said Goldsmith, "but our legislative process is the best way for our government to work. Legislation by public referendum would only be government by advertising campaign."

The purpose of the legislative intern program at SSU is to provide a personal experience which will enable the classroom teacher to relate the real world of the legislative process to what is taught in civics class.

An intern's duties typically include sitting in on floor debates and committee meetings, drafting amendments, keeping an eye on his or her sponsor's bills as they move through the House and Senate, handling correspondence and helping with constituents' problems.

Because Rep. Oblinger handles a great deal of legislation affecting older people, Jackson was involved in research dealing with inspection of and specifications for vehicles used to transport the elderly. His research helped form the basis for drafting bills.

Goldsmith said that several bills considered by the legislature would serve as topics of discussion for his class—particularly a bill to raise the minimum age for obtaining a drivers license, the drug paraphernalia bill, and the drug "snitch" bill.

Both men said that as a result of the internship experience they will be better able to inform their students of how the legislative process works, how it can affect them, and how they can directly influence it.

Funding workshop set for July

A workshop entitled "Successful Funding in the 80s: How to Compete for Federal and Private Grants" will be held Monday and Tuesday, July 27 and 28, in Sangamon State's Public Affairs Center.

The funding workshops — held periodically by SSU's Division of Continuing Education — are designed for representatives of organizations wishing to develop the skills necessary to draft successful proposals for applying for federal or private grants. Eleven hours of continuing education credit are available to workshop participants.

Workshop sessions will examine where to locate financial support for particular types of programs, what impact President Reagan's budget has on federal grant prospects, how shifts and changes in corporate and private giving patterns may affect specific organizations or agencies, and how to write an effective proposal.

Enrollment for the workshop will be limited to 40 persons. A registration fee of $90 will be charged. Registration for the two-day workshop will be from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. in the lower level of the Public Affairs Center on Monday, July 27. Advance registrations also are recommended.

Contact Kathleen Kelly or Carole Kennerly at 786-6614 for further information.
Life on the sunny side makes Bill Taylor Jr. a “can do” person

To regular viewers of Springfield television, Bill Taylor Jr. is as familiar as Mrs. Olsen, Mr. Whipple, or the Pillsbury Dough boy. His frequent appearances as commercial spokesman for Rail Splitters Lincoln-Mercury, a car dealership he operates with partner Don Robinson, are a big reason for this fame.

Rail Splitters commercials all follow one basic formula: Taylor explains the finer points of the vehicles on display and invites potential customers to his establishment on Dirksen Parkway for a closer look. And, of course, somewhere in the commercial Taylor informs the audience that Rail Splitters is located “on the sunny side of the street.”

That phrase is a Taylor trademark, which, he says, describes his basic philosophy of life. “It’s too easy to look at the negative side,” he explains. “I believe a person should be more positive. A person should pay attention to what can be done and concentrate on that.”

Living life “on the sunny side of the street” has made Taylor a “can do” person. It has given him an always cheerful disposition and a vitality of spirit practically unmatched. His “can do” approach to every task has put Taylor in demand by civic groups throughout the community seeking to harness some of his energy to aid their causes. The fact that he seldom turns down their requests has further contributed to his community-wide reputation.

Followers of Sangamon State University sports may not be that familiar with Taylor, but they should be, for SSU is one of the groups lucky enough to have Taylor working in its behalf.

Taylor has been involved in the formation and successful operation of the Friends of the Prairie Stars Athletic Association, the community-based booster group which supports SSU’s sports programs, since its inception in 1979. He joined the group at the request of Head Soccer Coach Aydin Gonulsen.

Some might argue that Taylor is responsible for the success of the FPS, but he himself is quick to point out that he was only one of eight persons who met in early 1979 to form the steering committee which created the Friends. Al Rubenstein, Bob Spencer, D. Dax Taylor, and Don Timm — all from the community — and C. Jack Coleman, Aydin Gonulsen and George Lukac — from SSU — were other members of the original group who Taylor says deserve equal credit for getting the Association off on the right foot. Nevertheless, it is safe to say Taylor’s dynamic personality and exuberance contributed a great deal to the growth of the FPS.

Though Taylor is a graduate of the University of Illinois, he puts so much effort into helping Sangamon State because “The University is part of the community. Being a local businessman, I feel it is only logical that I help out in our community. I don’t do it to enhance my public image, I do it for fulfillment,” he explains.

Taylor also serves on the boards or committees for the United Way Campaign, the YMCA (He was the 41st Big Boss, heading this year’s annual membership roundup.), Lincoln Christian College (He has chaired its board of directors for the past two years,), and the Illinois New Car and Truck Dealers’ Association. In addition, he has been an active member of the Westside Baptist Church for 17 years.

“I feel when I’m involved in an organization, I should give it my all,” he explains. “I give equal attention to all organizations with which I am involved. But I’m spreading myself too thin and have, therefore, had to turn down requests because I don’t have time to give 100 percent to the organization.”

Taylor, the father of eight, is a very devoted family man, too. He says that only the understanding and leniency of his wife, Lea, “allows” him to undertake so many community activities.

A native of Springfield, Taylor is as successful and involved in his business as he is in any of his other endeavors. He started working in the automobile business at the age of 13, washing cars and doing odd jobs around the used car lot at Lindberg Studebaker, where his father was a salesman.

Except for some time in the army and his years at the U of I, Taylor has been in the automotive business ever since. The next generation of the Taylor family is now being groomed for the business: 19-year-old daughter Julie is studying automotive retailing at a school in Dallas, and Taylor hopes she will step in to continue the more than 35-year tradition of service at RailSplitters.

Reflecting on his association with the Friends of the Prairie Stars, Taylor says, “When I look at the young people we have attracted to represent SSU sports, it makes it all worthwhile.

“I look for the Friends of the Prairie Stars to contribute to the growth of SSU sports and to become an intrinsic part of the community. It has done an excellent job of helping the University create a high-caliber athletic program and with the success of the most recent membership drive, I see the Friends continuing to expand,” Taylor says.

Taylor’s athletic interests extend to other areas of the community. He officiates at YMCA youth soccer and basketball games and is an enthusiastic and determined tennis player. He admits, however, “I’m an average tennis player. Coach Gonulsen beats me...he’s tough.”

Taylor explains that he stepped down from the presidency of the Friends of the Prairie Stars in June to allow for some new ideas and new direction. Fortunately though, he didn’t step completely out of the organization. If he had, it would have been a great loss for Sangamon State and SSU sports.

— Mark Raeber
Caryl Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services, has been elected regional representative of region five of the National Council on Family Relations. Moy and the other newly elected officers will be sworn in at the council’s meeting in Milwaukee in the fall.

Donna Corriveau, faculty member in the Medical Technology Program at SSU, and Paula Garrott, program director, attended the annual meeting of the American Society of Medical Technology, held recently in Miami. Corriveau presented a paper entitled “The Hematrak® Disease Indices: An Experimental Software Program to Quantitate Morphology.”

Corriveau and Garrott also served as delegates to the convention, representing the Springfield branch of the Illinois Medical Technology Association. Garrott is currently association president and Corriveau is president-elect.

Former SSU students Elbert Betts and Kris Glintborg recently received appointments in the Springfield public school system. At its July 7 meeting the Springfield Board of Education appointed Betts principal of Grant Middle School, while Glintborg was named athletic director at Springfield High School. Both Betts and Glintborg received the M.A. in Educational Administration at SSU.

1981 soccer schedule announced

SSU Head Soccer Coach Aydin Gonulsen has announced the 1981 Prairie Stars schedule, which includes 24 matches against some of the top soccer teams in the country.

Twelve of the Stars’ 15 home games are scheduled at night, thanks to the lighting being installed at Kiwanis Field this summer.

The season begins on Friday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. with the annual game against the SSU alumni. The Prairie Stars will also compete in an invitational tournament at the University of Alabama-Huntsville in October and will host the 1981 NAIA National Championship Tournament in November. This is the third consecutive year that the tournament has been held at SSU.

Season tickets for the Stars’ home games are on sale. Cost is $25 for families and $20 for individuals. Contact the Athletic Office, 786-6674, for further information. The complete schedule for 1981 is as follows.

Writers conference to be in Chicago

Illinois Writers, Inc., a statewide not-for-profit service organization for writers, will hold its Fifth Annual Writers Conference on Saturday, Aug. 1, according to Terry Peters, instructor in SSU’s Individual Option Program. Peters serves on the IWI board of directors.

Opening the conference will be a reading by Illinois poet laureate Gwendolyn Brooks. Other events will include a reading by author-editor Daniel Curley and symposia led by poet Michael Anania, poet-playwright-novelist Angela Jackson, and Roz Goodman of Winnetka’s Off-Campus Writers’ Workshop. Springfield writer Rosie Richmond will present an “Overview of Women’s Writing,” and an editors’ panel discussion and open reading by conference participants are also scheduled.

The conference will run from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at Chicago’s Columbia College. Fee is $10 for the general public, or $7.50 for IWI members and students. For further information contact Peters at 786-6789.
New faculty approved by Regents

Five new faculty members for the Economics, Creative Arts, Mathematical Systems, History and Medical Technology programs at Sangamon State were approved by the Board of Regents at their July 23 meeting at Northern Illinois University.

The new faculty members are: Charles E. Begley, Anne Devaney, Rassule Hadidi, David McBride and James Veselenak.

Begley, named assistant professor of economics, was formerly assistant professor of health economics at Southern Illinois University School of Medicine in Springfield. He had been with the medical school since 1978 and taught courses relating to the economics of the physician-patient relationship, the problem of health-care costs, and physicians as managers.

Begley also taught at the University of Texas in Austin, where he earned the Ph.D., and has conducted research on social service programs in Latin America for the Agency for International Development.

Devaney was named assistant professor of creative arts. She recently received the master of fine arts degree from Indiana University, where she also coordinated the visiting artist program. Devaney held professional positions in Kansas City and San Francisco before coming to SSU.

Hadidi, formerly a statistics instructor at the University of Missouri, Columbia, was named assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs. Hadidi earned the Ph.D. in industrial engineering at the University of Missouri and is a member of Alpha Pi Mu, an industrial engineering honorary society.

McBride, named assistant professor of history, directed the Comprehensive Opportunities Program—Opportunities Industrialization Centers of America, Inc., before coming to Sangamon State. The Philadelphia-based community organization provides youth education services and has an annual budget of $2 million.

Veselenak, who was previously supervisor of laboratory classes in medical and industrial mycology at Michigan State University, was named assistant professor of medical technology at SSU. Veselenak holds the Ph.D. from Michigan State and has also been a teaching assistant at Eastern Michigan University. He has worked as a medical technologist in Ann Arbor and Lansing and during the early '70s he conducted microbiology experiments in connection with NASA's Apollo 16 mission.

Fall Semester registration opens Aug. 20

Students are asked to register according to the first letter of their last names as listed on page 3 of the 1981 Fall Semester Course Schedule. However, open times (when any student may register) are set for Friday, Aug. 21 from noon to 6:30 p.m.; Saturday, Aug. 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and Monday, Aug. 24 from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Late registration begins Aug. 25. There is a $5 fee for adding a course and a $10 late registration fee in effect beginning on this date.

Further information about registration and the Semester Course Schedules are available now from the Office of Admissions and Records, Building F, 786-6626.

SSU publishes series on state housing problems

"Housing in Illinois," a thoughtful, comprehensive series of reports on the major housing problems facing the state, is now available from Sangamon State University.

The 52-page booklet was produced by Illinois Issues, Sangamon State's monthly public affairs magazine, and SSU's Center for Policy Study and Program Evaluation, with a grant from the Ford Foundation. The booklet will be made available, at no cost, to community groups, citizen associations, educators, state officials and others interested in examining existing housing policies, programs and alternatives for the future.

Originally published in Illinois Issues between July 1979 and December 1980, the 11-article report was written by John N. Collins, director of SSU's Center for Policy Study and Program Evaluation and an expert on housing issues; Beverly Ann Fleming, former research assistant in the Center and now a neighborhood coordinator in the historic Hyde Park district of St. Louis; and Dona Gerson, a freelance writer and alderwoman from Evanston. J. Michael Lennon, publisher of Illinois Issues, and Caroline Gherardini, editor of the magazine, edited the booklet.

The articles discuss the American housing dream and the increasing cost of its realization; methods of financing and their abuse through such tactics as redlining; discrimination against minorities and the public housing crisis; the fostering of private-sector construction for low- and moderate-income families; the problems of rural housing; the emergence of Chicago as the U.S. "Condominium Capital"; and the challenge of housing rehabilitation.

The study was initiated by Illinois Issues because housing issues touch everyone in the state.

In the introduction the authors state, shifts and movements in population patterns, rapidly rising real estate costs, the decay of central cities and attempts to legislate racial integration through housing laws have all focused national attention on housing issues.

"Illinois is at the forefront of almost every national housing trend, good or bad. Often, a housing problem or need or issue evolves in Illinois long before it does in other states. Illinois is usually the first to identify and study the problem, develop an innovative solution to it, and criticize the innovation," they point out.

Copies of the booklet are available by writing: Illinois Issues, K Building, Room 80E, Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL 62708. Only 2,500 copies of the booklet have been published.
Marilou Burnett, associate professor of human development counseling, was the keynote speaker for the University of Wisconsin's recent "Summer Lyceum" program. Burnett's topic was "The Care and Feeding of Faculty and Staff." The conference was held in Door County, Steven's Point, Wis. In July Burnett also served as visiting professor in the counseling and psychology departments at Eastern Illinois University, where she presented seminars on family dynamics and neuro-linguistic programming.

Theresa Babitzke, former head nurse in the geriatric unit at Mount Sinai Hospital and winner of the Nurse of the Year award presented by All Purpose Nursing Services, has enrolled in the Gerontology Program at Sangamon State. Babitzke, who has been a nurse for 35 years, has long been active in volunteer geriatric services and helped establish the Mayslake Village Retirement Home in Oak Brook. Babitzke will begin her studies at SSU in the Fall Semester.

Hall appointed director of Continuing Ed

Melvin Hall, assistant professor of psychology at Sangamon State, has been named acting director of Continuing Education at the University. He will also serve as faculty associate to the vice president for academic affairs and will teach one course in the Psychology Program each semester.

As acting director of Continuing Education, Hall will be responsible for the administration of the University's Continuing Education programs. His activities will include: development, budgeting, implementation and evaluation of CE programs; development of new approaches to meeting the community's CE needs; and working with community agencies and organizations in coordinating programs with University faculty.

A native of Rockford, Hall came to Sangamon State in the fall of 1976 as assistant dean of academic programs. During the University's reorganization in 1979, he became a full-time member of the Psychology faculty, developing courses and conducting applied research on the subject of qualitative approaches to research and evaluation.

Before coming to SSU, Hall was liaison officer for the Council on Program Evaluation at the University of Illinois, employed in the Office of the Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs. In that position, he participated in the evaluation of programs nationwide.

Hall holds the B.S. in psychology and the Ph.D. in educational psychology with a specialty in measurement and evaluation from the University of Illinois. He earned the M.S. degree from Northern Illinois University, where he also held a full-time counseling position.

Hall is a member of the Educational Research Association and Phi Delta Kappa, the educational honorary society.

Senior learners can register by mail

Persons 62 years of age and older wishing to participate in Sangamon State University's Senior Learner Program during the Fall Semester may register for courses through the mail.

To obtain the necessary registration materials, contact Barb Noak at SSU's Office of Continuing Education. Registration for fall courses must be received at the SSU Bursar's Office before Aug. 21.

Seniors participating in the program pay a $10 fee per semester. That fee covers parking and library privileges and allows seniors to audit courses offered by the University. Though academic credit is not awarded in the Senior Learner Program, continuing education credit will be given.

For more information call Noak at 786-6073.

Temporary homes requested for foreign students

Volunteers are needed to provide temporary homes for the new international students who will be arriving shortly for the Fall Semester, according to SSU Foreign Student Adviser Gerlinde Coates.

Coates said that more than 40 students from various countries are expected and that the arrangements will only be for a few days, until the Housing Office can provide appropriate quarters.

"I know from personal experience what anxieties a first-time motel visit in the U.S. can create," said Coates, "especially after having just traveled thousands of miles. To be welcomed into a home by caring, empathic American hosts will surely minimize much of the initial shock and help with the transition of adjusting to a new environment."

For further information contact Coates at the International Office, F-50A, telephone 786-6678.
New recruits boost soccer season hopes

Sangamon State University’s soccer fortunes for the 1981 season appear to have received an enormous boost with the recruitment of Paul Towler and George Lidster, two skilled midfielders from London.

“Both players are as good, perhaps even better, than Steve Pisano,” said Soccer Coach Aydin Gonulsen. Pisano, who was lost to the Stars through graduation, was Gonulsen’s field general for the past two years, one of the Stars’ tri-captains, and the team’s 1980 Most Valuable Player.

Towler and Lidster are transferring to SSU from one of the teachers colleges in the University of London system as a result of Pisano’s efforts on behalf of his former coach. Pisano said he’s been scouting London for good prospects, and out of the two dozen players with whom he’s talked, the best of the group are Towler and Lidster.

“I’ve been worrying about Pisano’s replacement,” said Gonulsen. “The only way to fill the gap left by Steve’s graduation was to replace him with a player at least as good as he. And it now appears that we will have two midfielders who can fill the bill.”

“Both recruits are very fast and quite experienced,” Gonulsen added. Towler is 5-foot-8 and weighs 155 pounds; the 5-foot-10 Lidster weighs in at 160 pounds.

The Prairie Stars open the soccer season with a 7 p.m. home match against NAIA national champions Quincy College on Tuesday, Sept 1, after a warm-up contest at 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 28 against the SSU alumni.

Second series on great minds offered

“Vital Spirits of the 20th Century: Molders of the Modern Mood, Series II,” a lecture-discussion series examining the lives and works of some of the great minds of modern times, will be held Mondays beginning Sept. 21 and running through Nov. 9.

Ephraim Fischhoff, professor of humanities at Sangamon State and visiting professor of medical humanities at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, will lead the discussions, which are presented through the SSU Office of Continuing Education.

This second series grew out of the popular “Vital Spirits” lectures first offered during the spring and summer. The series is based on the idea that in each era, certain creative spirits stand out as symbols, contributing to the formulation and crystallization of the intellectual contours of their times.

Each session will examine one major thinker, according to the following schedule: Sept. 21, Alfred Whitehead; Sept. 28, Albert Schweitzer; Oct. 5, Carl Sandburg; Oct. 12, Virginia Woolf; Oct. 19, Margaret Mead; Oct. 26, Albert Camus; Nov. 2, Elie Wiesel; and Nov. 9, Martin Luther King.

All sessions will meet in Room 100A of the Capital Campus, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Registration for the series is $35. For further information contact Carole Kennerly, continuing education coordinator, at 786-6073.

WSSR programs examine state housing problems

WSSR 92FM, Sangamon State’s public radio station, in conjunction with Illinois Issues, will present two public affairs programs addressing housing issues in Illinois in September. The broadcast on Thursday, Sept. 3, will examine mortgage rates and the rates’ impact on Illinois housing, followed on Sept. 10 by a discussion focusing on public housing problems in the state. Both programs will be heard at 1 p.m.

Participating in the programs will be John Collins, director of The Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at Sangamon State, and Beverly Ann Fleming, neighborhood coordinator in the Hyde Park Historic District of St. Louis. J. Michael Lennon, publisher of Illinois Issues, will moderate the programs.

Information to be discussed on the broadcasts will be based on a series of articles written by Collins and Fleming and published in Illinois Issues.

Ray Charles leads off fall series package

Soul virtuoso Ray Charles, in concert with his orchestra and the Raeletts, will kick off the 1981 Fall Performing Arts Series at Sangamon State University. Tickets for this, the first subscription series to be produced in the auditorium of SSU's new Public Affairs Center, are now on sale.

The Ray Charles concert on Sept. 19 will be followed on Oct. 2 by a performance of the hit play, "Mornings at Seven," direct from the Broadway stage. Also included in the 1981 Fall Season are performances by the New England Ragtime Ensemble on Oct. 16 and the Westminster Choir from Princeton, N.J., on Oct. 30.

The series concludes on Nov. 20 and 21 with the Los Angeles Ballet Company's full-length production of Prokofiev's "Cinderella." Series subscribers may purchase additional tickets to the ballet when ordering series tickets. Children's tickets are available for the ballet at a special 50 percent discount.

Series ticket prices are: orchestra and loge seating, $39; mezzanine, $35; and balcony, $27. Purchase of a series subscription represents a 20 percent savings over the single-ticket, ticket office price. In addition, series subscribers will also receive announcements of all future events in the University Auditorium.

Series tickets may be charged to Visa or MasterCard accounts. For more information and a descriptive brochure on the 1981 Fall Performing Arts Series, call 786-6150. To order tickets, call 786-6160.

Arts management, media courses offered this Fall Semester

A course tailored for anyone involved in arts organizations, plus challenging and exciting college courses as close as the nearest television, radio or Sunday newspaper are being offered at Sangamon State during the Fall Semester.

"Organizational Skills for Arts Managers," a course for leaders, board members and volunteer workers of arts organizations, will meet Monday evenings from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in the Capital Campus. The course — taught by Dolo Brooking, associate director of the Community Arts Management Program — will address contemporary issues and management problems affecting arts organizations. Among the topics to be discussed are: holding successful meetings, marketing and evaluating arts programs and relations with the media.

Media courses at SSU this fall include "Women and the Law," a televised course to be offered on cable Channel 6 through the cooperation of Times-Mirror Cable Television. Topics addressed in the course include: the Equal Rights Amendment, marriage, divorce, credit and sexual harassment. Nancy Ford, assistant professor of legal studies, and Barbara Hayler, assistant professor of social justice professions, will teach the course.

By special arrangement, students registering for the course may receive free cable TV installation. A four months' service charge of $34 is payable at registration. The course broadcasts begin Aug. 31 and will be aired Mondays from 6 to 6:30 p.m. through Dec. 14.

Beginning Aug. 30, each Sunday edition of The State Journal-Register will print a prepared article on "Working: Changes and Choices." This course examines the conflicts between work and family, people and machines, unemployment and inflation. Instructor for the course is Michael Ayers, associate professor of economics.

Three radio sideband courses will also be offered during the Fall Semester. These courses are broadcast on a radio frequency that requires special receivers and can only be heard within a 45-mile radius of SSU's Main Campus. Receivers will be checked out to students at registration.

"Confronting Inequality" — a critique of the inequities in American society — is based on recorded lectures from SSU's 1980 Intersession. Topics include institutional racism and prejudice, sexism, stigmas and economic inequality. Larry Golden, associate professor of political studies, will teach the course.

Gari Lesnoff-Caravaglia, associate professor of gerontology, will teach two radio courses: "Perspectives on Aging," an overview of disciplines related to the field of aging, and "Health Care of the Elderly," an examination of health delivery systems for older people.

All media courses require additional readings beyond the material presented through the media. Students enrolled in these courses are required to attend four or five class meetings on campus. Media courses are sponsored by SSU's Innovative and Experimental Studies Cluster.

Illinois Comptroller Roland Burris is among the professionals and public officials who have addressed the "New Executives: Minorities and Women" class taught during the Summer Session by SSU Professor of Management Anna May Smith. Burris met with the class on June 29 to discuss the topic "The Role of Minorities in the Executive World."
Abused elderly should be aware of options — Poertner

An elderly woman who had gone to live with her son was taken to the hospital, suffering from a broken arm and a black eye. She weighed 67 pounds then, but when she'd moved in with her son only a few months earlier she'd weighed 190 pounds; her son had padlocked the refrigerator. A man was stabbed by the adult daughter with whom he was living. He refused to talk to the police and, after receiving medical attention, returned to his daughter's home because it was better than living alone.

These are only two of an estimated 20,000 instances of abuse and neglect of the elderly that take place in Illinois every year. And that estimate, some feel, is conservative.

"Like child abuse and spouse abuse, abuse of the elderly has been around forever," said John Poertner, assistant professor of child, family and community services at Sangamon State and one of the principal researchers in a recent study of abuse of the elderly sponsored by the Illinois Department on Aging. The problem is just now coming to the front of our social consciousness, partially, Poertner feels, because there are simply a lot more older people than ever before.

The study — funded by the Department on Aging — grew out of a concern for elderly abuse expressed by Rep. Josephine Oblinger (R-Springfield), and was designed to determine the size of the problem and identify alternatives for future state policy. Conducted jointly by the Sangamon State University Center for Legal Studies, Eastern Illinois University and the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, the study took six months to complete and cost $50,000. Poertner conducted the community research portion of the study while Britta Harris, a research associate with the Center for Legal Studies, co-directed the overall project with Joyce Crouse of EIU.

To ensure that the results of the study were truly representative, the state was divided into five strata, according to population density, and then seven communities were selected at random. Two graduate student/researchers from SSU — Connie O'Rourke and Pat Illsley — were sent into each community for one week to gather information and compile a list of service providers in the area who regularly had firsthand contact with the elderly. Then the service providers were sent questionnaires asking them to detail their own experiences and impressions of the problem of abuse. Respondents who indicated knowledge of a dozen or more instances were asked to fill out a second questionnaire, recording each known or suspected case they came across during one week. Some 148 cases were reported in this second survey, a response which Poertner said was unusually high.

Poertner said he was also surprised by the high incidence uncovered by the study. A brief summary of the results shows that:

A total of 11,739 cases of abuse and neglect were reported, including passive neglect and verbal and emotional abuse as well as severe neglect and abuse that may lead to injury or death

Neglect accounted for approximately 80 percent of all reported cases.

Projecting the results to the entire population of Illinois means that .04 percent of all people over the age of 60 would likely be reported for some type of abuse, most often at the hands of their own children or other family members.

This abuse occurs in families from all social, economic, ethnic and psychological backgrounds.

Poertner has a doctorate in social work as well as training in mathematics and statistics and so was a natural choice to participate in this study. He said that since the results were published there has been a tremendous interest expressed in the study and he has even received mail from elderly people who are themselves victims of abuse.

"It's a problem almost everyone can understand," he said. "Nearly everyone I talk to mentions a parent or grandparent who is, or could be, a problem. Many people in their middle years are caught between the demands of their own children and the demands of their aging parents. It can be very difficult.

"We used to think that after our parents raised us, well, that was it; we were free," he continued. "We're finding out that we aren't free. People didn't live as long before, so there wasn't such a problem."

But what are elderly people — faced with 20 or 30 years of retirement, perhaps alone and in failing health — do do? "We have, I think appropriately, a bias against nursing homes," said Poertner. "It's time to start thinking about alternative life styles for the elderly. Perhaps not 'communes,' but some arrangement that allows them to live together and look after each other would be good."

While finding alternatives for state policy makers was an objective of the study, at the same time the researchers recognized the moral and legal questions of state intervention in private lives. Poertner opposes legislation that would make a potential police force of social workers and thinks that an advocacy system — in which the social worker would help the elderly person to understand his or her options, decide what he or she really wants to do, and then to do it — is the best answer.

"You can't treat an elderly person like a child," Poertner said, noting that there are currently no laws obliging someone to take care of his or her parents. "But so many older people think there's nothing else for them to do. Well, there are lots of things they can do. It's necessary for someone to explain their rights and options to them, and then let them decide."

Their musical instruments are a curious collection of oddly shaped wooden devices. The sounds that are emitted when the group begins to play are unfamiliar to most people. This is the Sangamon Consort and its musical repertoire is more attuned to the listener of 16th century Europe than the rock-and-rolling audience of today.

The Sangamon Consort specializes in the music of the Baroque, Renaissance and Middle Ages. It is a Collegium Musicum, or early music ensemble, and it has been offering Central Illinois listeners tours through the world of early music since 1971.

Founder/director F. Mark Siebert, professor of music at Sangamon State, says the Consort is devoted to performing music composed before 1750 as accurately as possible — that is, performing the works in a manner that bears some resemblance to performances in the times they were written.

Not an easy task, since for most of this repertoire composers rarely indicated instrumentation or specified performing forces. Thus the director of a Collegium must be an arranger and orchestrator as well as have considerable knowledge of Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque performance practices.

Siebert, who has studied at Columbia University and taught at the University of Illinois and Oberlin College, is a musicologist tailored to these requirements. His post-graduate work was devoted to researching the music of the 15th and 16th centuries.

Because early composers did not specify how their music was to be played or even what instruments should be used in the various movements, Siebert says, “one of the major tasks in preparing for a performance is combing through the volumes of old manuscripts and scholarly writings of musicologists for clues to guide in the orchestration of early pieces.”

Like any performing art, music contains elements contributed by the performer as well as the creator, says Siebert. Nevertheless, the performer must be aware of and bow to the concepts of the creator. The situation is especially difficult for early music. Until recently this music was largely unknown and what was known was performed under more recent tradition, using modern instruments. Siebert says it became apparent that such performances seriously falsified the original intention of the music. This has lead to the rebirth of the Collegium Musicum.

The origins of the Collegium can be traced to the mid-16th century, or Baroque period, when amateur and professional musicians began to meet regularly in informal settings to sight-read contemporary music.

Each musician was expected to play several instruments, thus making the occasions both challenging and interesting. Food and drink and general conviviality were an integral part of the Collegium. Outsiders were welcome to listen if they wished, but it was understood that the music was strictly for the enjoyment of the participants and in no way represented a public concert.

Today, the Collegium Musicum can be found at universities and colleges throughout the world. Any college with an established musicology program is likely to have a Collegium, says Siebert.

The Sangamon Consort is typical of the modern Collegium. Part of the University’s Creative Arts Program, the Consort is offered as a course in the same manner as band, orchestra or chorus at other universities. Membership is open to qualified students, faculty, staff and community residents.

Begun as a recorder ensemble composed of musicians who gathered for “the fun of it,” the Consort has now evolved into a full-fledged Collegium, consisting of a six-member instrumental group, a 10-member vocal group, and a six- to seven-member training group, used as a feeder system for the more experienced performing groups and sometimes combined with the two other groups to form a Renaissance band.

Membership, determined through audition, today includes seven students, two staff, two faculty and nine community participants. (Two of those are senior citizens, including Siebert’s mother, Leah.) The mix of University and community participants gives the Sangamon Consort a stability not often found in Collegia.

Sangamon Consort presented 11 performances during the 1980-81 academic year. And Siebert says his 1981-82 schedule, now on the drawing board, is just as ambitious, with a fall musical performance and a spring dance presentation already set.

A typical Sangamon Consort performance may include songs, ballads and dance of Medieval France, dramatic Spanish Renaissance pieces, sacred works from the German Baroque, and the music of Shakespeare’s England. The Consort performs with the instruments of the period: recorder, psaltery, krummhorn, kortholt, flute, sackbut, cornamuse, lute, theorbo, rebec and harpsichord. Many of the instruments belong to the University, several belong to members of the Consort and some are borrowed from collections in Springfield.

“We don’t have all the instruments
we need," Siebert says, "therefore, we have to play a little fast and loose with some of the pieces, but the results are not too bad."

He says his shopping list for new instruments is extensive. "If our programs are to include Baroque music we can make do with the existing instruments. However, to be historically accurate in our presentation of music from the Renaissance period and earlier, instruments must be added."

Over the years, Siebert has acquired an extensive library of instrumental music. But, since his vocal group was only created in 1980, he is just starting to gather a vocal library.

Obtaining music is more than half the work of directing a Collegium, he points out. It requires hours of pouring over scholarly editions, laboriously transcribing notes to prepare them for performance. Some of the music is available through publishers, he says, but the largest part is only available in the scholarly works stored in libraries across the nation.

In addition to scholarly writings, a great deal can be gathered from the visual art of the period. Artists of the 16th and 17th centuries paid considerable attention to detail, says Siebert, and studying their work has produced valuable information on the instruments used in early performances.

While Collegia of today range from groups who gather "for the fun of it" to small professional ensembles, Siebert says they exist for one common purpose: "to expose the participants and the audience to music of the periods before 1750, an exciting and worthwhile segment of the literature of music generally missing from standard concert repertoires."

More top soccer players join Prairie Stars

Castro Fernandez, a halfback from Miami Dade North Community College; Kevin Arnott, a goalie from Grant MacEwan Community College in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada; and Chuck White, a goalie who played at Lincoln Land Community College, joined the Prairie Stars as they began practice for the new season on Aug. 3.

Fernandez played with Israel Markowitz, another 1981 recruit, on the Dade North team which finished third in the nation last year. The 5-foot 8-inch, 155-pound midfielder is one of the most talented junior college players produced in 1980 according to SSU Head Coach Aydin Gonulsen.

Arnott was one of the best goalies in Canadian amateur soccer while playing for Edmonton's Eastland Rangers. He has experience in both indoor and outdoor soccer. The 20-year-old native of Ft. Saskatchewan, Alberta, Canada, is five feet, 10 inches tall and is the first SSU soccer recruit to come from Canada.

Chuck White, 26, played at Lincoln Land in 1978 and 1979 under Joe Eck, now assistant coach at SSU. A graduate of Lakeview High School in Decatur, he has been playing amateur soccer in Germany, where he has been stationed in the Army for the past two years. According to Gonulsen, White has all the tools needed to become a first-class college goalie.

The Prairie Stars' 1981 soccer season begins Friday, Aug. 28, with the annual game against the SSU Alumni, scheduled for 7 p.m. at Kiwanis Stadium. This will be the first night game at SSU, made possible by the installation of stadium lighting this summer. Twelve of the Stars' 15 home games are scheduled for nighttime play.

Season tickets to all SSU home games are on sale now in the Athletic Office, E-16. Prices are $20 for an individual ticket and $25 for a family ticket.

The Stars' next home game will be Tuesday, Sept. 1, when they take on 1980 NAIA champions Quincy College.

Copy for the Sept. 7 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Aug. 31.
PAC weaving depicts ancient Peruvian god

A few issues ago, a short version of the following article appeared in the Journal. This time, we are including the complete article to explain in detail the origins and symbolism of the decorative weaving that hangs in the Public Affairs Center’s Atrium Lounge. The article was researched and written by Dave Robinson, an artist and University staff member.

The weaving displayed in the Atrium Lounge of the Public Affairs Center was created by Peruvian folk artists and given to the University by Albert and Polly Myers. Acquired in Lima, Peru in 1975, the work was donated to SSU’s collection in 1978.

This hanging is the work of weavers from near the ancient Inca capital of Cuzco, a center of weaving in Peru. The weavers carry on a tradition handed down since Inca times when weaving and gold work were two arts prized by the Inca. As is traditional, this work is executed in wool and cotton dyed with local vegetable dyes.

The central image depicts one of Peru’s national treasures, now in the National Museum in Lima. It is a 17-inch, golden ceremonial blade surmounted by a figure of the demigod, Naymlap. This blade was part of a remarkable cache of gold objects found in near-mint condition in the tombs of several Chimu nobles. The tombs were uncovered near Illimo in the Lambayeque valley on the northern coast of Peru.

From its capital at Chan-chaan, the Chimu kingdom controlled most of northern coastal Peru from around 1200 to 1475 when it was absorbed into the Inca empire. Gold was prized by the Chimu, but relatively few gold artifacts remain in the same excellent condition as the ceremonial blade. Looting of tombs and temples was begun by the Inca conquerors and continued over the centuries by Spanish conquistadors and local farmers.

In this weaving, the figure of Naymlap is shown standing atop the blade in an ornate headdress adorned with nine turquoise stones. From the corners of the headdress hang two bird pendants, and extending from the folded arms are two small wings which the demigod could use to fly to heaven.

Naymlap was the legendary hero who founded the dynasty which ruled the Lambayeque valley prior to conquest by the Chimu kingdom. The Chimu absorbed the Naymlap legends into their own religious and cultural life. According to legends, Naymlap came to the valley from the far south aboard a fleet of balsa-wood rafts. He brought with him his wife, harem, court dignitaries and a greenstone idol which bore an image of himself.

Intramural flag football leagues forming now

Sangamon State’s 1981 Intramural Flag Football League will begin play Sunday, Sept. 13. Deadline for registration of players or teams is Friday, Sept. 4.

The league is open to SSU students, faculty, and staff, as well as to members of the community. Teams composed totally of SSU students/faculty/staff with current activity cards will not be charged entry fees. All other teams will be required to pay a $125 entry fee.

All games will be played on Sunday afternoons at Sangamon State. Players or teams interested in the league should contact the SSU Athletic Office, E-16, 786-6674.

Dean of Students Homer Butler (left) and Bruce Esmond, of the University Architect's Office, teamed to win the doubles competition in the recently completed SSU Intramural Tennis Tournament.

“Star Wars” heard all day Labor Day

“Star Wars, the intergalactic serial that stirred the imagination of thousands of radio listeners, returns to WSSR for an uninterrupted encore of its 13 exciting episodes on Labor Day — Monday, Sept. 7 — at 9 a.m. and continuing until 4 p.m.

The radio version of “Star Wars” was carefully woven to result in the same feeling of excitement that the film produced. So, listeners hearing the complete story at once will be able to sustain a feeling of relentless action. The dialogue was made simple and clear so that listeners could create their own images.

The public radio production of “Star Wars” features Mark Hamill and Anthony Daniels, re-creating their film roles as Luke Skywalker and See-Threepio.

Although based on original characters and situations from the film, the radio adaptation includes new characters and events not featured in the motion picture. Among the new material is an episode that features Princess Leia as she travels to Alderaan, where she meets her father prior to embarking on a daring mission that ends with her capture by Darth Vader. In another, listeners learn about Luke's relationship with his peers on Tatooine and in particular with his best friend, Biggs.

Other new episodes include how Artoo Detoo and See-Threepio met, Han and Chewie’s encounters with the underworld of Tatooine, and a much more detailed examination of the conflicts within the Empire.

The radio version of “Star Wars” preserves the power of the characters of the original story through an almost magical blend of the sounds of swords and sorcery. As Anthony Daniels sums it up, “The sound effects are stunning. Every listener can have the whole galaxy whizzing around his head.”

Anthony Daniels, left, and Mark Hamill, right, re-create their film roles as See-Threepio and Luke Skywalker as the radio adaptation of “Star Wars” Encore on WSSR on Labor Day. WSSR will broadcast all 13 half-hour episodes of the dramatic series without interruption, beginning at 9 a.m. and concluding at 4 p.m.
Education student interns with state Sen. Gitz

The internship was part of Raetz’s course work at Sangamon State.

“The experience helped me understand state government more than before,” Raetz said. “The internship will be beneficial as I teach my students how the legislative process works, how it can affect them, and how they can directly influence legislation.”

Raetz said his idealism has been “lessened by the realities of partisan politics; however, I have been impressed with the hard work, long hours and dedication I have witnessed on the part of Senator Gitz and many other members of the legislature.”

The purpose of SSU’s legislative intern program is to provide a personal experience, which will enable the classroom teacher to relate the real world of the legislative process to what is taught in government classes.
Sophomores invited to SSU Sept. 26

Sangamon State University's first Sophomore Day, held in conjunction with Homecoming, is set for Saturday, Sept. 26. The special day is designed to introduce junior and community college sophomores from around the state to the University.

Although many sophomores may have pre-registered to attend, all are asked to register again between 10 and 10:30 a.m. in the first level of the Public Affairs Center. The first 100 sophomores to do so will receive a free ticket to hear Helen Reddy, who will perform two shows in the University Auditorium that evening.

The Alumni Association will host a coffee and doughnut reception in the Brookens Concourse during the registration period. From 10:30 to 11:15 a.m., an opening session will be held in Brookens Auditorium. After this event, an Academic Fair, where faculty and alumni will be available to meet with prospective students, will open on the first level PAC concourse through 1:15 p.m. Campus tours are also scheduled.

The Homecoming soccer game pits the SSU Prairie Stars against Maryville College (Missouri) at Kiwanis Field beginning at 1:30 p.m. Afterwards, at about 4:30 p.m., music ranging from rock to bluegrass plus a pig roast on the Cox House lawn will be open to all visiting students, alumni, staff and their guests.

All participants are invited to enjoy the performances by Helen Reddy at 7 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the SSU Ticket Office, located in the first level of the PAC. Call the Ticket Office, 786-6160, for more information.

Any changes in scheduling and further information about Sophomore Day will appear in the Sept. 21 issue of the Journal. Interested individuals may also contact the Sangamon State Office of Admissions and Records, 217/786-6626 or call the University's toll free number, 800/252-8533, for more information.
Five awarded Alumni Assoc. scholarships

Recipients of the 1981 Sangamon State University Alumni Association Scholarships were honored at a reception held Aug. 23 at the home of SSU Pres. Alex B. Lacy, Jr.

The Alumni Association annually grants five scholarships — four for $1,000 and one for $300. This year’s recipients are: Jane Olsen, Kathy Swan and Susan Werler, all of Springfield; Julie Oehme of Algonquin; and Kim B. Jameson of Decatur. Olsen, Swan, Werler and Oehme received $1,000 Alumni Association Scholarships while Jameson received the $300 Community College Scholarship.

Olsen, a graduate student in SSU’s Psychology Program, received the associate degree from Black Hawk College and the undergraduate degree from Sangamon State. She is 22 and hopes to work in clinical psychology after receiving the master’s degree.

Swan, 30, a junior in SSU’s Psychology and Business Programs, received the associate degree in liberal arts at Lincoln Land Community College. She is a member of the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society and plans to continue studies at the graduate level.

Werler, a senior in Sangamon State’s Individual Option Program majoring in Women’s Studies and Creative Arts, holds the associate degree from Parkland Community College. She also attended the College of DuPage, Southern Illinois University and Western Illinois University. Werler is 27 and plans to pursue graduate studies and eventually teach women’s studies and art at the university level. Her special interest is Asia — particularly Asian women artists.

Oehme, a senior in SSU’s Environmental Studies Program, received the associate degree in biology at Elgin Community College. Oehme, 20, is concentrating her studies on management of the environment and pollution control. She hopes to earn a master’s degree in the field of public health.

Jameson, 36, is a junior in Sangamon State’s Health Services Administration Program. He is married and has two children. Jameson received the associate degree from Richland Community College. He hopes eventually to own and operate a physical therapy outpatient clinic.

Brown bag series held downtown

The 1981 Fall Brown Bag Series begins Thursday, Sept. 17, with a discussion on “Working and Parenting” conducted by Millicent Quam, a family therapist in private practice in Springfield. The presentation is the first of four to be presented this fall by the Women’s Studies Committee of Sangamon State University, in cooperation with the Federal Women’s Program.

Future discussions include a two-part presentation on “Women at Mid-life,” conducted by Harry Berman, associate professor of child, family and community services at SSU. The final session, on “Lifelong Learning: School and Other Options,” will be presented by Carole Runions, a graduate assistant in SSU’s Center for the Study of Middle-size Cities, Thursday, Nov. 19.

The free hour-long discussions will be held on the seventh floor of the Bicentennial Building, 320 W. Washington St., at 12:30 p.m. The public is invited to bring a brown bag lunch and join the discussion.
Star Parties feature “celestial wonders”

Sangamon State’s popular series of Star Parties will resume for the Fall Semester on Friday, Sept. 11. The events will be held each Friday evening in the University Observatory from 8 to 10 p.m. through Nov. 20.

This year’s Star Parties will feature a “potpourri of celestial wonders,” according to Observatory Director Charles Schweighauser. Objects to be viewed through the facility’s three telescopes include the Moon; cloud-shrouded Venus, the third brightest object in the western sky; and the exploding star of the Ring Nebula in the constellation Lyra.

Participants will also be able to examine the Hercules Star Cluster, which contains stars that — at 12 to 15 billion years of age — are among the oldest in our galaxy. Also featured will be the Andromeda Galaxy. It contains several hundred million stars and is the closest galaxy to the Milky Way, even though it is two million light years away.

Several double stars — two stars revolving around a common central mass but appearing as a single star to the naked eye — will also be studied. These will include Albireo in the constellation Cygnus, and Alcor and Mizar, double stars in the handle of the Big Dipper.

All Star Parties are free and open to the public. The Observatory entrance is located at the southeast corner of Brookens Library on the SSU Main Campus.

The public may call the University operator at 786-6600 after 7 p.m. on Friday evenings to learn whether conditions are favorable for viewing.

Conference for women in small business offered

“How To Succeed in Business by Really Trying,” a conference for women in small business, will be held in Sangamon State University’s Public Affairs Center on Saturday, Oct. 3, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The conference is sponsored by the University’s Office of Continuing Education.

The conference is aimed at women who own or would like to own small businesses. Those who want to change careers, improve their financial positions or find out what opportunities are open to them, or who are interested in being self-employed should also attend.

The conference leaders will consist of a panel of experts and women who have themselves succeeded, including business consultants; bank loan officers; small business owners; Small Business Administration executives and representatives of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women; as well as professors of business, management and women’s studies.

Topics to be discussed include: how and why women have started their own businesses; whether or not to start one’s own business or buy an established one; how to get financing; what the Small Business Administration can do; management techniques; obstacles unique to women in business and how to overcome them; and how to put knowledge to work.

Registration fee for this conference is $20; the deadline to register is Sept. 25. For further information contact Carole Kennerly, continuing education coordinator, at 786-6073.

Springfield Mayor Michael Houston, right, holds a proclamation declaring Sept. 1 through 8 Youth Soccer Week in the city. With Houston are Sangamon State Soccer Coach Aydin Gonulsen, left, and YMCA Soccer Director Dave Hicks. Houston read the proclamation Sept. 1 during the SSU-Quincy match, which was also Youth Soccer Night at Kiwanis Field. Hundreds of young people who participated in youth soccer were admitted to the game free. In other ceremonies marking the opening of Sangamon State’s fifth season of intercollegiate soccer, long-time soccer official John Watts was presented with a plaque recognizing his substantial contributions to YMCA youth soccer, and several persons and organizations received plaques from University Pres. Alex Lacy, recognizing their financial contributions to the installation of lights at Kiwanis Field. The newly installed lights were dedicated during the match. Contributors recognized at the game were Yavuz Gonulsen, Harold Christofilakos, Bill Taylor, Oscar Lambdin, Dr. Armaldo Carvalho, Dave Campbell, Norman Brown, Don Timm, Larry Bryan, Sandy Nelson, Don Talt, Stan Zeilinski and the Kiwanis Club South.
Faculty, asks for "sense of community"

Dennis C. Foss, Sangamon State University's vice president for academic affairs, commended SSU's faculty and other University constituents in his address to the faculty on Aug. 19 in Brookens Library Auditorium.

There are some problems, he told his audience, but "you are an excellent faculty, an exceptional teaching faculty willing to consider new directions," Foss said. Unlike many universities, SSU is not plagued with a large amount of "dead wood." He said there are few people at SSU who don't make a strong contribution.

In order to maintain faculty quality, Foss pointed out that "we have to ensure that we recruit as widely and aggressively as possible, and I think SSU has been inadequate in setting up a strong faculty development program. I give high priority to that development for this year."

However, he said that Sangamon State needs a year of internal peace and reconciliation. "We need to trust the intentions of our colleagues rather than question their motives," Foss said. "Let our first instinct be to build rather than tear down. Let us move to a new sense of community." Foss said he will seek free and open lines of communications, and he urged each faculty member to seek out the source of rumors and obtain information directly from the source.

Foss said that SSU has "thrived on crisis," and added that he believes the gravest threat to the University's future is the deterioration of our sense of community, which we need to rebuild.

"I believe that the current state of affairs in our University unnecessarily hurts others. We must stop character assassination, questioning of integrity, and unnecessary distrust; it hurts, and stifles our creativeness," he said.

Foss mentioned that SSU's "dedicated staff" cares, more than in most institutions, about the education of students; and he commended the academic deans, the University president, and other administrators for their support.

He said President Lacy has done a good job in handling SSU's half-million dollar budget cut, with as few traumatic results as possible.

"I believe we are close to a bare bones budget and much additional budget cutting could be disastrous for us," Foss cautioned that additional budget paring in the future could leave an environment for those who remain that would not be conducive to learning.

The external environment needs the faculty's creative attention. It is "at best not supportive and occasionally hostile to higher education." Factors converging which threaten universities in general and SSU in particular are a growing anti-intellectualism, coupled with a growing anti-state feeling in which the public and the private sector see the state as a threat and seek to reduce the size of government.

"This climate is exacerbated by current economic conditions," he said.

Sangamon State administrators have noted that the General Assembly has been generous with appropriations throughout SSU's history, but the legislature in these difficult economic times needs to be "more convinced than it is currently that SSU is playing an important role in servicing its needs — the needs of state agencies and the needs of the people..."

In such a stark economic climate, Foss said it seems that a full time equivalent enrollment of about 5,000 students will be essential for a university to survive. He added "with a decline in high school graduates, Sangamon must give increased emphasis to continuing and adult education."

He warned that competition among institutions for students may become increasingly fierce.

Foss urged liberal arts and sciences faculty to assist the faculty of professional programs, now carrying the bulk of SSU's teaching load, to think about ways in which arts and sciences programs can contribute to the education of students in the professional programs.

At the same time, Foss said professional faculty need to examine whether or not their students need the total number of courses now required of them. Professional faculty were urged to encourage their students to experience what the liberal arts curriculum has to offer.

He urged everyone to use his/her creative energy for moving toward a new sense of community.

"Let's get on with the job," he said.

—Dale Coleman

Helen Reddy at SSU Sept. 26

Singer/actress Helen Reddy will present two shows in Sangamon State University's Public Affairs Center Auditorium on Saturday, Sept. 26.

Tickets for the shows — at 7 and 10:30 p.m. — are on sale now in the SSU Ticket Office.

Perhaps best known for her recording "I Am Woman," Reddy has four number one pop songs to her credit, plus 12 others which reached the top 10. Her first hit was "I Don't Know How To Love Him," from the rock-opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." She currently has 13 albums in release, nine certified gold and three platinum.

Reserved seat prices are: $12 main floor, $11 mezzanine and $9 balcony. Sangamon State students may receive a 50 percent discount and senior citizens and children under 12 may receive a $1 discount.

Pre-concert dinner will be served in the PAC restaurant before the first show. For reservations call 786-6768. Valet parking will also be available. For ticket information call 786-6160.
Workshops promote growth, understanding

The 1981 Fall Workshop Series sponsored by Women's Studies and Continuing Education at Sangamon State University is designed to give women the opportunity to explore their present and past as well as to grow personally and intellectually.

"Inquire Within: A Study of Your Many Selves" is set for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 26, in Building H on the Main Campus. Facilitator is Associate Professor of Human Development Counseling Marilou Burnett. This workshop is designed to help participants develop self-awareness; learn how to deal with inner conflict, depression, boredom, anxiety and indecision; increase understanding of actions and feelings; and learn more about how subpersonalities relate.

The registration fee of $15 includes lunch. The workshop is open to men and women.

"Women's Passages: Adult Life Stages" will be Thursday, Oct. 22 and 29, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in Building H. Facilitator is Assistant Professor of Child, Family and Community Services Carole Fee McHugh.

In this personal workshop on adult transitions, participants will have the opportunity to learn about and discuss current research on adult development, to develop a framework for understanding adult life stages, and to share their own significant life events. There is a registration fee of $10. Enrollment is limited to 20.

"Female Sexuality" is set for Friday, Nov. 13, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Building H. Facilitator is Caryl Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services.

This workshop is designed to help participants become aware of how past learning about sexuality affects all interpersonal relationships. Lectures, films and experiential exercises are planned. The $17 registration fee includes lunch. Enrollment is limited to 25.

"Assertiveness Training" is an eight-session series scheduled for Sept. 10 through Oct. 29. Sessions will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lower level of the Public Affairs Center. Facilitator is Vickie Magee, supervisor of the Young Parents Program, Family Service Center of Sangamon County.

Participants in this workshop will learn to increase awareness of nonassertive behavior patterns and to replace them with assertive skills and techniques. Topics to be examined include small group discussion, lecture, film and exercises include values clarification, learning to say yes and no, learning how to ask for what you want, and sex-role constraints.

The registration fee is $42. Enrollment is limited to 20 and is open to men as well as women.

For information on registration, scholarships and child care for any part of the Women's Studies Fall Workshop Series, contact the Women's Studies Office at 786-6962, or contact Barbara Noak in the Office of Continuing Education, 786-6073.

Ray Charles brings soul to Auditorium Sept. 19

Legendary genius of soul Ray Charles will appear in concert Saturday, Sept. 19, in the University Auditorium at Sangamon State University. Charles will perform two shows, at 7 and 10:30 p.m. With Charles will be the Raeletts, the Ray Charles Orchestra and special guest comedian Mike Binder.

Ray Charles, now 51, has left an indelible mark on nearly every facet of popular music — rhythm and blues, rock, soul, country and western, and jazz. Charles began performing 36 years ago, and has been writing, arranging and performing ever since.

Of his music, Charles says, "I try to bring out my soul so people can understand what I am. I want people to feel my soul. Soul is when you can take a song and make it part of you — a part that's true, so real, people think it must have happened to you. Soul is like electricity, like a spirit, a drive, a power."

With hits like "Rainy Night in Georgia," "I Got A Woman," and his version of "American the Beautiful," Charles has touched millions of people around the globe, transcending barriers of language, culture and education.

Guest star Michael Binder will open both shows. He has appeared in the feature film "Hollywood Knights" and several TV shows, including "The Mike Douglas Show" and "Norm Crosby's Comedy Shop." He was a featured performer at The Comedy Store in Los Angeles and appeared at Catch a Rising Star in New York.

Tickets for the Ray Charles shows are $10 for Orchestra and Loge seating, $9 for Mezzanine, and $7 for Balcony. For further information and reservations, call the SSU Ticket Office at 786-6160.

Individual tickets for other events in Sangamon State University's first Performing Arts Series are also on sale at the SSU Ticket Office, located on the lower level of the Public Affairs Center.

The Broadway play "Mornings at Seven" will be presented Friday, Oct. 2; tickets are $12, $11 and $9. On Friday, Oct. 16, The New England Ragtime Ensemble will perform; tickets are $9, $8 and $6.

The Westminster Choir from Princeton, N.J., will perform on Friday, Oct. 30; tickets are $7, $6 and $4. The series ends with a presentation of Prokofiev's full-length ballet "Cinderella," performed by the Los Angeles Ballet Company on Friday, Nov. 20, and Saturday, Nov. 21. Tickets are $11, $10 and $8.

The SSU Ticket Office is open Mondays through Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Fridays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. For reservations call 786-6160.

Series tickets for the 1981 fall season are available through Sept. 19. Series tickets are $39 for Orchestra/Loge, $35 for Mezzanine and $27 for Balcony.
Mark Erenburg, associate professor of economics, has been named editor of the Central Illinois Economic Business Review published by Sangamon State University. Erenburg replaces Chan Lee, who has accepted a teaching position at the University of Minnesota.

Jeffrey A. Chesky, assistant professor of gerontology, is co-author of an original research article “Effects of Exercise on the Biochemical Aging of Mammalian Myocardium — Actomyosin ATPase.” This article, published in Journal of Gerontology, summarizes data obtained by the daily exercising (swimming) of rats for several years. It is concluded that lifelong physical training may alter biochemical changes that occur in aged heart muscle which results in decreased cardiac function.

A showing of visual communication art designed by Linda Jacober, graphic designer at Sangamon State University, will be held Sept. 20 through Oct. 16 at Springfield College in Illinois in the Becker Library. The showing, titled “Perspectives: Graphic Design” will have an opening reception on Sept. 20 at 7 p.m.

Jacober holds the B.F.A. degree in graphic design from the University of Illinois and is currently working on a master's in visual communication at Sangamon State.

Caryl Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services, has contributed a chapter entitled “Communicating Sexuality” to the recently published book Sexuality in America, Greenfield Books, Ann Arbor.

All members of the University community are encouraged to share appropriate honors, activities or accomplishments in the Campus Notes section of the SSU Journal. Forms to help report this information accurately are available now in the Publications Office, B-57. Materials may also be submitted in any legible format; be sure to include all pertinent information. Information must be submitted in writing.

“Microcomputers in Elementary and Secondary Education,” a conference sponsored by the Springfield Educational Consortium, will be held Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 at Sangamon State University's Public Affairs Center.

The conference is designed for elementary and secondary school teachers and administrators interested in the use of microcomputers for instruction and management. Topics to be discussed at the conference include: computer literacy, application of microcomputers to special and gifted education, microcomputers in the library, and how to select a microcomputer.

General sessions and workshops will be conducted by educators who are using microcomputers in a variety of educational settings. The program will be directed toward individuals with little or no experience with microcomputers as well as those who have experience and wish to expand their knowledge.

Participants will be awarded 1.2 continuing education units by Sangamon State. These credits will be registered with the National Registry for Continuing Education. Registration fee is $35 and includes all materials and refreshments.

Deadline for registration is Sept. 25. For more information, contact Kathleen Kelly in the Continuing Education Office at Sangamon State, 786-6073.

Eck joins SSU’s soccer staff

Steven Eck, a charter member of the Sangamon State University Prairie Stars soccer team, has joined the University’s soccer coaching staff. Eck will be an assistant to Head Coach Aydin Gonulsen and will also serve as team manager.

Eck played forward and fullback on the 1977, '78 and '79 squads. He is the 10th leading scorer in SSU history, with six goals and 11 assists for a total of 17 points during his three-year career. He was also named Most Improved Player for 1979.

He is a graduate of Springfield's Griffin High School and before coming to Sangamon State played soccer at Springfield College in Illinois. According to Coach Gonulsen, Eck is "highly qualified and will be a good addition to the staff."

Three-day Fall Music Festival at Douglas Park

Springboard, the Springfield Area Arts Council, in cooperation with Sangamon State University, will present its third annual Fall Music Festival on Sept. 11, 12 and 13 in Douglas Park. This year’s celebration will feature some of the area’s finest musicians and vocal soloists.

On Friday, Sept. 11, the festival opens at 6 p.m. with a concert by the Springfield Municipal Band followed by a variety of jazz and rock groups. Continuing on Saturday, from noon to 10:30 p.m., and Sunday from 12:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., a variety of musical forms will be presented. Classical, rock, jazz, country, gospel and popular music will be on the program.

Local media personalities will serve as announcers during the performance. Hot dogs, soft drinks and snacks will be sold. The weekend-long event is free to the public.

Students observe labor negotiations in action

Students enrolled in “Teacher Negotiations,” a graduate course offered in Sangamon State University’s Educational Administration Program, had an unusual opportunity during the 1981 Summer Session. They were able to observe the collective bargaining process in action when their instructor, Ronald R. Booth, arranged for them to sit in on negotiations in three Illinois school districts.

The cooperating districts were Marissa, Paris and Sherrard. All three were conducting talks between the school boards and faculties.

According to Booth, assistant executive director of the Illinois Association of School Boards, this was the first time that outsiders had been present during a negotiating session.

Participating students said that the experience was very practical and gave them a better understanding of both sides in the bargaining process.

Women's tennis coach optimistic about season

The Sangamon State University women's tennis team began its 1981 fall season with a win over Quincy College and St. Francis College and a loss to DePaul University in a quadrangular meet Sept. 4 and 5. After playing the University of Illinois on Sept. 9, the Prairie Stars take on Lewis University Sept. 18 at 3 p.m. at the SSU courts.

Head Coach Sue McCain, now in her third year at Sangamon State, is excited about this season, which includes five dual home matches and one dual, four triangular and two quadrangular meets on the road.

The ladies amassed a record of 13 wins and 10 losses in the 1980-81 season, finishing in eighth place at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) National Tournament in Kansas City, Mo., last fall.

Coach McCain has built the 1981 Prairie Stars around the strong nucleus of Kathy Herrick, Ann Waddell and Phyllis Eson, all returning from last year's squad. Herrick and Waddell garnered NAIA All-American Honorable Mention status for their fine showing in the National Tournament doubles competition in 1980-81.

Herrick “brings a lot of knowledge and experience back into the line-up,” says McCain. The coach expects her to play number one singles this season, a spot she has occupied for the past two seasons.

Waddell should challenge Herrick for number one, McCain says. “She has a really strong serve and topspin forehand,” said McCain, “and she has been building her game around those strengths in the off-season.”

Eason “has improved her game 100 percent since last fall,” McCain said. A strong player with an excellent serve, the coach expects her to move up from her number six spot in last year’s lineup.

Giacomini is “a steady player who relies on her consistency to win,” says McCain. She has previous college tennis experience at Springfield College in Illinois and St. Louis University. McCain expects that experience to be of “significant value” this year.

Bucci played number one singles and doubles on the Thornton Community College (South Holland, Ill.) team that finished 14th in NJCAA tournament play last May. “Linda is a very strong left-handed player with an excellent all-around game,” says McCain. “She has the capability to be number one at SSU.”

Huard attended Vancouver Community College and the University of Calgary before transferring to Sangamon State. A very solid player with a “well-rounded” game, McCain thinks Huard may have the best serve of any of this year’s Prairie Stars. She, too, is capable of playing number one for SSU, said McCain.

The coach is optimistic about this season: “We reached our goal of finishing nationally in the top 10 last year. This year, we know what to expect and we will be better prepared.”

1981 United Way campaign begins

Sangamon State University's 1981 United Way campaign kicks off Sept. 21. The goal for this year's effort has been set at $19,200, representing a modest increase over the 1980 goal of $18,000. The University surpassed its 1980 goal by $500.

SSU Pres. Alex Lacy is serving as associate chairman for higher education during the Springfield-Sangamon County drive. He has named three coordinators for Sangamon State's campaign: Cullom Davis, Carole Fee McHugh and Leroy Jordan. The three will be assisted by Shirley Kinley.

This year's fund drive will be highlighted by a lottery, similar to that held during the 1980 campaign. For each $50 pledged by an SSU employee, the employee is given one chance to win two passes to the 1981 NAIA National Soccer Tournament, scheduled for Nov. 23-28 at Sangamon State.

"Sangamon State has much to gain by continuing to surpass its goal," Lacy said. "It is in our best interest to keep the member agencies strong since the University uses many of them in a direct way in our academic programs through applied studies and field work placements." The president added that a large number of SSU faculty, staff and students — about 200 last year — receive services from United Way agencies.

The campaign will run through Oct. 19.

Senator Percy to speak
at seminar

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) will deliver the keynote luncheon address at a seminar examining "Gasoline Consumption and America's Security," to be held in SSU's Public Affairs Center on Monday, Oct. 26. The seminar is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Springfield Area.

Percy will discuss the role of government in energy emergencies. Other speakers — including nationally recognized experts in emergency preparedness and gasoline conservation — will discuss automobile fuel economy standards as well as the equity, effectiveness and economics of gasoline rationing and gasoline taxes.

Attending the day-long seminar will be representatives of federal, state and local government; and leaders from the fields of business, labor, academia and activist organizations.

The Springfield area League of Women Voters is one of seven leagues in the country selected to co-sponsor this forum with the Environmental Policy Institute.

For further information contact Linda Treasure, League natural resources chair and seminar coordinator, at 632-2440, or Katie Huther at 786-6716.
Illinois Issues receives three major grants

Illinois Issues, Sangamon State University's monthly magazine of government and public affairs, recently received final approval of three major grant projects totaling $73,248.

The U.S. Department of Energy has made a grant of $23,248 to the publication for partial support of a comprehensive series of articles on state energy issues. The series, which is already underway, includes articles on conservation, solar power, natural gas, transportation issues, co-generation, nuclear power and several other energy areas. The series will conclude in mid-1982 with recommendations for the state's energy future.

The Joyce Foundation of Chicago has made two $25,000 grants to the magazine. The first is for a six-part series on soil conservation. Focusing on the necessary balance between economic and environmental concerns, the series will run until February, 1982. The first, overview article — written by James Krohe, Jr., one of the magazine's contributing editors — appears in the September, 1981, issue.

The second Joyce grant is for a series of articles on state water resources. The series will present a detailed picture of the state's water supplies, several articles on water use — particularly in urban areas — and on water management. The recommendations of the State Water Plan will also be discussed. The series will run from June through November, 1982.

According to publisher J. Michael Lennon, "These grants will enable us to publish definitive reports on the energy, water and soil issues confronting Illinois. We could not undertake these projects without the generous support of the U.S. Department of Energy and the Joyce Foundation."

Illinois Issues is also completing two other grant projects. Five of six humanities essays supported by a $12,248 grant from the Illinois Humanities Council, in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Humanities, were published earlier this year. The sixth will appear in the November, 1981, issue. Reprints are available upon request.

The second project, a year-long examination of state housing issues, was recently completed with the publication of a 52-page booklet entitled Housing Issues in Illinois. The project was supported by a $19,752 grant from the Ford Foundation to the magazine and the University's Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation, which collaborated on the project. Copies of the booklet are available for $1. Write to Illinois Issues, c/o Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL 62706.

Fall enrollment shows FTE increase

At the end of the regular fall registration, Sangamon State University had registered 3,633 students, of which 1,812 were undergraduate students and 1,821 were graduate students. The full-time equivalent enrollment, based on standard conversion formulas, was 2,153, of which 1,152 were undergraduates and 1,001 were graduates.

The full-time equivalent enrollment is approximately 2 percent higher than last year in spite of a small decrease in the number of students enrolling. The largest increase was recorded for off-campus undergraduates. Total enrollments for the University will increase slightly in the coming weeks as a result of late registration. Additional registration will take place in October for a significant number of courses which will be offered during the second half of the Fall Semester.
Job Fairs planned

Sangamon State University students and alumni interested in obtaining job interviews with large corporations and other employers will have the opportunity by attending two Job Fairs scheduled for Illinois this fall.

"Sangamon State is part of the Illinois Universities Centralized Placement Group," said SSU Career Counselor Pamela Hammond-McDavid. "This is a united effort of small colleges and universities throughout Illinois to pool resources. These Job Fairs attract major market employers and afford our students and alumni an opportunity to interview."

The Fairs scheduled this fall are: "St. Louis Collegiate Job Fair," Oct. 9, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville; and "Illinois Collegiate Job Fair," Oct. 16, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Naperville Central College.

Students planning to attend the Job Fairs must submit a one-page resume and pay a registration fee of $10. Pre-registration deadlines are Sept. 23 for the Naperville Chicago-area fair and Oct. 1 for the Edwardsville St. Louis-area fair.

For details and registration materials contact the SSU Career Services and Placement Office, F-50, telephone 786-6508.

Learning Center sponsors workshops

Sangamon State's Learning Center and the Student Services Office are cosponsoring a series of workshops designed to improve skills needed in college course work. The workshops are free and open to all SSU students.

Reading/study skills and test-taking will be the subjects of a workshop Sept. 24. Writing skills will be taught Sept. 28, and library skills will be taught Sept. 29. The Sept. 30 workshop will focus on overcoming math anxiety, and on Oct. 1 the subject will be coping with school. All workshops will be offered from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. at Cox House, except the library skills session which will meet at Brookens Library.

All live workshops will also be offered on Sept. 25 beginning at 9 a.m. in Room 153. Students may sign up for one or all of the workshops.

For registration information, contact the Learning Center in Room F-50, 786-6503.

Clayville Fall Festival will be Oct. 3 and 4

From candle dipping to tinsmithing, more than 75 mid-19th century crafts will be demonstrated during the 16th Annual Clayville Fall Festival at Sangamon State University's Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 3 and 4.

Open to the public between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. each day, the festival is sponsored by the Clayville Folk Arts Guild and Sangamon State University. An array of foods, drinks and entertainment common to 19th century rural Illinois will also be offered.

L licorice, taffy, maple syrup, open-kettle donuts, fresh cider and applesauce — made as they were in the 1850s — will be sold. Homemade pies, breads, jams, honey, apple butter, biscuits and gravy, and ham and beans will be served, along with more modern fare like soda, hot dogs and sandwiches.

Admission is $1.50 for persons aged 16 to 65, and $1 for those over 65. Children under 16 will be admitted free.

Clayville is 12 miles west of Springfield on Illinois Rt. 125 near Pleasant Plains.

While the Crafts Festival is the last scheduled event for 1981, the Rural Life Center and Museum will remain open to interested groups through Oct. 31. For further information, call Elizabeth Weir, educational coordinator, at 626-1132.
Workshops on small business begin in October

Small business is the subject of a series of workshops scheduled for October and November and sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration, the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), the Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce and Sangamon State University.

The series of five workshops will prepare participants for starting a small business and will provide skills for making the business a success. Those interested may enroll for any or all of the five sessions, to be held at Sangamon State's Public Affairs Center.

"Getting Started: Basic Information for Starting Your Own Business" is the subject of the first workshop, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 17, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. This session will address topics such as: selecting the right business; determining financial resources; identifying sources of loans; choosing organizational structure; dealing with regulations, taxes and insurance; marketing and promotion; and record-keeping. A registration fee of $15 includes lunch.

"Keeping It Going: Profits and the Cash Flow" is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 19, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. This workshop will assist the participant in identifying and planning cash flow requirements. Registration fee is $10.

The third workshop is titled "Keeping Track: Financial and Business Records." This session, on Monday, Oct. 26, will provide methods and plans for the development and maintenance of financial and business records. There is a $10 registration fee.

Advertising is the subject on the Monday, Nov. 2, workshop titled "Making It Grow," which will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. This workshop is designed to help the participant decide the best methods for communicating messages about his or her product or service. Registration fee for this session is $10.

"Keeping It Safe: Security" will provide the opportunity to learn practical ways to avoid retail theft, armed robbery, bad checks and stolen credit cards. This session will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 9. Registration fee is $10.

A total registration fee of $38 — a savings of $17 — will be assessed those persons interested in attending all five workshops. Some 14 contact hours of continuing education credit are also available to participants.

Faculty for the workshops include SSU faculty members; accountants; and representatives from the U.S. Small Business Administration, SCORE, the Chamber of Commerce and local media sales departments.

Registration deadline for each workshop is three days prior to the session. For further information contact the Sangamon State Office of Continuing Education at 217/786-6073.

Singer/actress Helen Reddy will present two shows in the Public Affairs Center Auditorium on Saturday, Oct. 26, at 7 and 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $12, $11 and $9. Call the SSU Ticket Office, 786-6160, for information.
Round Table
begins

The Sangamon State Administrators' Round Table will begin its 1981-82 season with "School Finance," to be held on Wednesday, Oct. 7, at the Heritage House restaurant. The program begins at 8:30 a.m. with registration and coffee and concludes with a noon luncheon.

Speakers for this meeting include: Donald D. Gill, state superintendent of education, State Board of Education; Fred H. Bradshaw, assistant superintendent of the Finance and Reimbursement Department, State Board of Education; Robert L. Mandeville, director, Illinois Bureau of the Budget; and C. Robert Leininger, executive assistant to the superintendent, governmental relations, State Board of Education.

A registration fee of $6 includes a $1 membership, morning coffee, rolls and lunch.

Other meeting dates and topics planned for the year are: "Computers for Administration," Dec. 9; "Politics of Education," Feb. 3; and "School Law," April 7. All meetings will be held at the Heritage House, except the April 7 meeting, which will be held in Sangamon State University's Public Affairs Center.

SSU's Educational Administration Program will offer a course on "Current Problems in Educational Administration" during the 1981-82 academic year for those who wish to participate in informal sessions following the Round Table meetings. The four sessions are scheduled from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Participants may enroll for two semester hours of graduate credit or attend on a no-credit basis.

Persons who enroll for credit will be expected to attend all four meetings, prepare a paper and pay a $70 tuition fee. There is no charge for noncredit participants.

Credit earned in this seminar may be applied toward a master's degree, specialist's degree, or doctorate at any of the four member institutions of the Springfield Educational Consortium: Sangamon State University, Western Illinois University, Illinois State University and Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

For further information about the course or the Administrators' Round Table contact Stuart Anderson at 786-6306.
Stuart Anderson, professor of educational administration at Sangamon State University, will be a member of the team of educators visiting Chicago State University in October. Anderson’s general responsibilities will include examining CSU’s administrative programs in light of criteria outlined in the Manual of Procedures for Approving Illinois Teacher Education Institutions and Programs.

Ronald Havens, associate professor of psychology, is the author of “Contacting ‘the Unconditioned Other’: Hypnosis as a Mode of Communication,” which appeared in the 1981 spring issue of Voices: The Art and Science of Psychotherapy.

Doh C. Shinn, associate professor of political studies and public affairs, has returned to Sangamon State University following two years of teaching and research at Yale University and Seoul National University. During that time, Shinn participated in seven meetings, including five international conferences. He also published five professional articles, some of which appeared in The American Journal of Community Psychology, Policy Studies Journal and Social Indicators Research. As a member of two cross-national research groups, Shinn plans to present his research on the quality of life and social indicators at conferences to be held in Honolulu, Mexico City, Copenhagen and Leningrad next year. Shinn’s work has been supported by grants from the National Science Foundation, the Social Science Research Council, UNESCO and the Korea Science Foundation.

Henry W. Smorynski, associate professor of health services administration, spent the month of August as a consultant to the Health Education-Risk Reduction Project of the Illinois Department of Public Health’s Division of Information and Education. As part of the project, a telephone survey of the individual health risk behavior patterns of adults in Massac, Deck and McLean counties will be undertaken in October. Some 1,200 individuals will be contacted in this survey.

K. G. Janardan, professor of mathematical systems, participated in the 141st Joint Statistical Meeting of the American Statistical Association and the Biometric Society held in Detroit in August. Janardan presented two papers—one on “Segregation Distributions for Ascertainment of Families and Lagrange Distributions of the Second Kind” to the Biometric Section, and another on “Characterizations of the Generalized Markov Polya and the Generalized Polya-Eggenberger Distributions” to the Physical Sciences and Engineering Section. The work reported on in these presentations was completed during Janardan’s recent sabbatical at the University of Pittsburgh.

James Lanier, assistant professor of human development counseling, recently was presented with two awards honoring his work in the community. Lanier received the Chief Alvin Young Youth Award, presented annually by the Springfield Housing Authority, in recognition of Lanier’s work with the SHA’s youth boxing team. Lanier has coached the squad for four years and led this year’s team to seven Illinois State Silver Glove Championships and three National Silver Glove Championships.

Lanier also received the Service Certificate of Central Lodge #3, Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons, State of Illinois, for his work with that organization.

Alexander Casella, associate professor of Environmental Studies, presented a paper entitled “An Interdisciplinary Graduate Energy Studies Curriculum.” to the International Energy Education Conference at Providence, Rhode Island, in August. Casella has also published an article on the Springfield Energy Project, a research project he is conducting with grants from the National Science Foundation, the Department of Energy and Sangamon State University. His article appeared in the May/June issue of “Alternative Sources of Energy.”

Copy for the Oct. 5 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Sept. 28.
DID YOU KNOW

That there are approximately 40,000 participants in the State Universities Retirement System, and approximately 10,000 persons receiving benefits which totaled almost $53 million in the fiscal year ending 1980?

The winner of the “Name the Prairie Dog” contest, sponsored by the SSU Athletic Office to find a name for the Prairie Stars’ new mascot, will be announced at the Sept. 23 soccer game against the University of Illinois. Also at that game, Paul and Frances Welch, founders of the Lincoln Heritage Soccer League, will be recognized for their efforts to promote soccer in the Springfield area. In addition, representatives from WCVS/WFMB radio will be presented with plaques honoring their stations’ support of area soccer programs.
Soccer tri-captains chosen

Lidster was recruited for SSU Head Coach Aydin Gonulsen by former Prairie Star Steve Pisano, who said he had scouted London for the best college-level player he could find. Lidster plays sweeper-back and was elected junior tri-captain by his teammates.

Fernandez, who transferred to SSU from Miami-Dade Community College North, was the Stars’ junior captain in 1980. His position is goalie.

Lopez came to Sangamon State from Miami-Dade South, where he helped his team to the national junior college championship in 1979. A stopper-back, Lopez was named tri-captain by members of the SSU coaching staff.

The Stars have a season record so far of 1-2-2. Their next home game is Wednesday, Sept. 23, when they take on the University of Illinois at 7 p.m. at Kiwanis Field.

Sangamon State University Springfield, Illinois 62708

Nonprofit Org.
U.S. POSTAGE PAID
Springfield, Ill.
Permit No. 703
Faculty appointments approved by BOR

Six full-time faculty appointments were approved for Sangamon State University by the Illinois Board of Regents in their Sept. 24 meeting at Illinois State University.

The new faculty appointments were: Dorothy Godsoe, director of SSU’s Learning Center; Terry Peters, instructor in experimental studies; Donald vanover, associate professor of management; Donna Corriveau, instructor in medical technology; Loretta Meeks, assistant professor of teacher education; and Sumol Padungchais, assistant professor of economics and energy studies.

Godsoe’s teaching background has primarily been in high schools in New Mexico and Illinois, including Hillside’s Proviso West. Her teaching has been in the fields of English, including English as a second language, special reading classes, language, literature, composition, reading laboratories and social studies. She has served as a consultant to various schools wishing to establish or improve reading services.

Godsoe, who will also serve an assistant professor of teacher education, holds degrees from Arizona’s Grand Canyon College and New Mexico State University.

Peters has the bachelor’s degree from Illinois College and has done graduate work at SSU and the University of Illinois. He has served as a Legislative Staff Intern and as a Governor’s Executive Management Intern. His concentrations are in the fields of English, history, and government.

Vanover has been an adult educational specialist with the Adult and Continuing Education Section, Illinois State Board of Education, since 1979. His responsibilities have included the coordination and approval of $14 million worth of adult education programs.

He also served as an administrative intern and manager of adult and continuing education at Northern Illinois University; director of adult performance-level projects, Department of Corrections; director of college programs and adult education at Menard Correctional Center; and has been an English instructor at Belleville Area College.

He holds degrees, including the Ph.D., from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

Corriveau has been a lecturer and graduate assistant for SSU, a hematology consultant to the Pennsylvania corporation, a volunteer clinical instructor at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, supervisor and clinical instructor at Memorial Medical Center, a math teacher and an instructor of hematology for a U.S. Army medical center.

She holds the bachelor’s in medical technology from the University of Illinois and a master’s degree in the same field from Sangamon State.

Loretta Meeks, who holds the master’s and Ph.D. degrees from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale and the bachelor’s from Winston-Salem State University, specializes in early childhood education, mathematics, reading and curriculum development.

She has taught in these fields at SIU and Georgia’s Albay State College, and has taught elementary school and kindergarten in North Carolina.

Sumol Padungchais has taught environmental economics for the past year at the State University of New York in Plattsburgh. Previously, she was a graduate research assistant for the Utah Water Research Laboratory, Utah State University, and a research associate with that university’s department of economics.

Her projects dealt with the evaluation of water resource management alternatives to improve energy development potential in the Yellowstone River Basin and with data analysis for a dynamic macroeconomic model of U.S. agriculture.

She holds the Ph.D. and the master’s degrees in economics from Utah State and is a cum laude graduate from Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, Thailand.

Room dedicated to Pearsons

A conference room on the fifth floor of Sangamon State University’s Public Affairs Center, Room 553, has been named the Emmet and Mary Pearson Conference Room, in recognition of the Springfield couple.

The action was authorized by the Illinois Board of Regents at their September meeting in Normal on the Illinois State University campus.

Sangamon State requested the recognition to honor the Pearsons for their outstanding leadership and support of the University. In 1972, the Pearsons donated the Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum near Pleasant Plains to the SSU Foundation. The historic site is used each year for numerous events, including the Spring and Fall Craft Festivals, and for teaching about the early history of rural Illinois and Sangamon County.

Clayville includes the 19th century inn or tavern which was the home of the Broadwell family, as well as several cabins and support buildings, all equipped with collections of primitive folk arts, artifacts, antique furnishings, tools and farm equipment.

The Pearsons have continued to give personal and financial support to Clayville, the Clayville Folk Arts Guild and to other programs of Sangamon State.

The Pearson Conference Room has been completed with decoration in the Clayville tradition — including primitive folk art, artifacts, tools and antique furnishings from the Clayville permanent collection — and will be officially dedicated on Oct. 18.
Lilly: behind-the-scenes star of "A Chorus Line"

"Lilly," the indispensable superstar of "A Chorus Line," can't sing, act or dance, yet it would require three people to replace her were she ever unable to perform. Lilly is the $150,000 computerized lighting board that cues each of the hundreds of lighting effects used in the prize-winning musical.

Lilly will not be front and center when "A Chorus Line" opens its two-show engagement on the stage of the University Auditorium in Sangamon State's Public Affairs Center Nov. 7. Avoiding the spotlight, but still giving it cues, she'll be at her usual place at the rear of the theatre, slightly to the side. There she'll control the 350 separate lights and 96 dimmers required to achieve the dazzling effects that won "A Chorus Line" and lighting designer Tharon Musser the 1976 Tony Award for Best Lighting, one of nine Tonies won by the history-making musical.

Like other stars, Lilly is demanding. She travels in a special truck, suspended in a hammock inside a huge padded box. She is three feet tall, five feet wide and two and one-half feet deep. Her weight is a secret shared by her and the men who carry her in and out of theatres. Any damage to her could result in a "memory block" and the failure to give correct cues.

Even though she's a veteran of more than 1,500 performances, Lilly can become flustered by too much excitement. The night that then-First Lady Betty Ford attended "A Chorus Line," Lilly began acting up, giving wrong cues, missing others, jumping ahead and falling behind. Since both performers and musicians depend upon Lilly for many of their cues, her malfunction meant trouble. It was later decided that the walkie-talkies used by the Secret Service men around the theatre had interfered with Lilly's thinking.

Lilly never works alone. The production stage manager and head electrician are always at her side since she has never learned the comedienne's technique of holding for laughter or applause.

She is not an only child, Lilly has sisters in New York, London, Buenos Aires, Tokyo and other cities around the world where companies of "A Chorus Line" play extended engagements.

Lilly expects to be in excellent health and functioning perfectly for the Sangamon State University engagement of "A Chorus Line." Curtain times for the shows are 3 and 8 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale at the SSU Ticket Office. Prices are: orchestra and loge seating, $14; mezzanine, $12; and balcony, $9. Dinner before the 8 p.m. show, and dessert following, will be available in the Public Affairs Center Restaurant. Dinner reservations may be made by calling 217/786-6768, which is also the number to call for information on group ticket discounts. Other ticket information is available from the Ticket Office, 217/786-6160.

MacDonald named acting university librarian

Mary MacDonald, professor of library instructional services and a charter member of the Sangamon State University library faculty, has been approved by the Illinois Board of Regents as SSU's acting university librarian.

MacDonald has been a library faculty member since February, 1970. Her primary responsibility has been working with government publications and business materials.

She will serve as head of the SSU library until a permanent university librarian is selected.

The Springfield native — she is a graduate of Springfield High School and attended Springfield Junior College — was previously employed by the Illinois State Library; the University of Illinois Library, Urbana; Kansas City's Federal Reserve Bank as a research librarian; and by libraries in Yakima, Wash., and Baltimore, Md.

She holds a bachelor's degree in library science from the University of Illinois and the master's degree from the same institution in political science.

Symphony opens 60th season

The Springfield Symphony Orchestra will open its 60th anniversary season Oct. 17 in its new home, the University Auditorium at Sangamon State University. Under the direction of musical director and conductor Kenneth Kiesler, the orchestra will perform the “Roman Carnival Overture” by Berlioz, “The Quiet City” by Copland, and “Romeo and Juliet” by Tchaikovsky.

Featured guest artist for the opening concert will be pianist Enrique Graf, who will perform Ravel’s “Piano Concerto in G.” Graf, a native of Montevideo, Uruguay, has performed in recital throughout South America and appeared as guest soloist with the Uruguayan National Symphony, the Philharmonic of Colombia and the Montevideo Municipal Orchestra. In the United States, he has performed on radio and television and has been guest soloist with the Florida Symphony, the Peabody Symphony, Georgetown Symphony and the Baltimore Symphony.

“Concert Comments,” pre-concert sessions during which the audience can meet with the conductor and soloists and informally discuss the music to be performed, are a new feature for the Symphony’s 1981-82 season. These sessions are scheduled for 7 p.m. before each performance. On Oct. 17, concert-goers will be able to meet Graf and Kiesler in Conference Room H of the Public Affairs Center. Admission to these sessions is free.

Tickets for all Springfield Symphony Orchestra concerts are available from the Sangamon State Ticket Office, 217/786-6160. Prices are: Zone 1, $8; Zone 2, $7; and Zone 3, $5.

Center offers many services

The East Central Network/Illinois Vocational Curriculum Center located in Building E on the Sangamon State University Main Campus is a curriculum center geared primarily toward vocational education. One of six federally sponsored national curriculum networks coordinated with the IVCC, the center can provide in-service programs for anyone interested in vocational education. Recent visitors for example were members of the “Energy and the Schools” class taught by SSU Professor of City Planning Mark Heyman.

The center’s hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. In-service programs can be arranged any time during office hours, or special arrangements can be made for other times.

Library workshop set

“The Resource Connection: The High School Student in The Academic Library,” a free after-school workshop for high school librarians, teachers and administrators, will be held Thursday, Oct. 15, at Sangamon State University and Lincoln Land Community College.

Presented by the library faculties of SSU and LLCC, the workshop begins at 4 p.m. The program includes presentations, tours and group discussion at both the Norris L Brokens Library on the SSU campus and the LLCC Learning Resource Center.

“Each year, the libraries of Sangamon State and Lincoln Land are visited by many high school students,” explained Ina Robertson, instructional service librarian at SSU. “Entire classes often visit during school hours for library orientation, usually in connection with research projects. In addition, students usually come to us individually or in small groups after school to work on class assignments.

“As educators, one of our goals is to produce skilled library users. The purpose of ‘The Resource Connection’ is to promote that goal through increased cooperation,” she said. “If we work together, we can better ensure that the students’ experience in an academic library will be a positive one.”

For more information call Robertson at 786-6633, or Diana Brunning at 786-2359.
Norman Mailer, from the profound to the comic — documentary captures it all Large, soft flakes of snow fall slowly on the gray lake ringed by towering peaks. A long sightseeing boat glides across the lake to a dock. Two men climb up to the dock — two friends, one older, one younger. As they walk up the wide, wooden dock, the tranquility of the moment is shattered by a harsh "Cut!"

The dock at the Alpine Konigssee (King’s Lake) in southern West Germany is the set for one sequence of a documentary film on American author Norman Mailer. Mailer is one of the men approaching the cameras on the dock. With him is J. Michael Lennon, Sangamon State associate professor of literature and publisher of Illinois Issues. The time is mid-November, 1980.

Both Mailer and Lennon have come to Germany at the request of the film’s director, Jeffrey Van Davis, an alumnus of Sangamon State now teaching and making films in Munich. For five days, Mailer fields Lennon’s questions while the European and American film crew records the interchange. Mailer talks about his work, writing in general, the work of specific writers, film, sex, marriage, children and more. Over 45,000 words are spoken in the snippets of time between the sounds of the clapboard and Davis’ commands to “cut.”

“It really did broaden my knowledge of him,” Lennon said of his intense four-day interview of Mailer. Lennon, a long-time student, critic, friend and historian of Mailer, served as literary consultant as well as interviewer for the film, titled “Norman Mailer: The Sanction to Write.” He is also the editor of a collection of 19 Mailer interviews soon to be published by Little, Brown and Co., Inc.

It was Lennon’s knowledge of Mailer which caused Jeff Davis to request his participation in the documentary project. Davis and Lennon had met in 1972 at Sangamon State where Davis was an admissions officer and graduate student in the Justice and the Social Order Program. They remained friends after Davis moved to Munich to teach American Studies at the University of Munich’s Amerika Institute.

Davis shared Lennon’s interest in Norman Mailer and conceived the idea for the film documentary about 18 months ago. With invitations and encouragement from both of them, Mailer agreed to participate in the project, but fitting it into his schedule was a problem. Coincidently, Mailer’s work in another film facilitated his appearance in Munich in November. He was acting in a cameo role in Milos Forman’s film of the bestselling novel Ragtime, being shot in London. His presence was required in London on two consecutive weekends, but the weekdays in between were open — perfect for the Munich project.

"Norman arrived Nov. 18, and we immediately began the interviews,” Lennon said. After meeting Mailer at the airport, with film crew (this sequence is used in the opening of the film), the entire company camped in Davis’ apartment, where Lennon and Mailer began their on-camera conversations. In the next four days the questions and answers continued in a number of environments: The Golden Bear restaurant in Berchtesgaden; the boat on the Konigssee; the formal gardens at Nymphenburg; Davis’ classroom at the university; and, when the class time ended before the students’ interest, a Munich beer hall called the Gasthaus
Max. At the beer hall, Mailer quipped to the students that his appearance was "a service of the management."

"He's an excellent listener," Lennon said, "and a great talker." In the introduction to his upcoming book, Lennon gives the following description of Mailer, the interviewee:

"He finds artful ways to answer uninform ed questions and can usually find a decent peg on which to hang an answer to imprecise ones. . . . He will answer dull questions with a modicum of wit, turn intellectual batteries on academics who know his work well and use his knowledge of old-friend interviewers where it will be helpful."

The Munich interviews, parts of which will be included in the book, represent Mailer's longest such inquisition. Also, though there are three other documentaries about him, Lennon said that there is no other film in which Mailer speaks so much about writing filmmaking and literature. "The film is mainly Mailer talking," he said — Mailer talking about:

Why he started writing — "It was the only thing I was good at. And I wanted to become more attractive to girls . . . In my first year at college I discovered that writing was an exciting pursuit. It was a fascinating activity."

His early success — "To have early success is obviously a mixed blessing. I went through the bends."

Ernest Hemingway — "The older I get, the more I know about writing, the more remarkable Hemingway's style seems to me. . . . His sense of the English language is virtually primitive in its power to evoke scenes and mood and to stir the senses."

The craft of writing — "To write you have to be able to give yourself the sanction to write. Or something in yourself has to give you the sanction to write. There's a moral judgment always in writing. One is assigning values to the lives of others, no matter how."

The documentary contains excerpts from two of the three films Mailer made: "Beyond the Law" and "Maidstone." "Mailer is a student of film," Lennon said, explaining that the author was interested in gleaning from the film crew hints about sound, lighting and other aspects of their craft. In discussing his filmmaking with the university students in Davis' class, Mailer said, "I'd rather be a notorious and somewhat unsavory literary personality than an avant-garde filmmaker. So I went back to writing books. But with a tear in my heart, because I enjoyed making films much more than I enjoy writing."

Mailer, who has collected and studied Mailer interviews for about 10 years, said that Mailer covered some new ground in the Munich interviews, including discussions on the Jewish holocaust; his book on murderer Gary Gilmore, The Executioner's Song; and his major project, a novel set in ancient Egypt. The first book of this three-volume work, which Mailer began in 1971, is scheduled to be published next year.

In "The Sanction to Write," Mailer stretches from the profound — in discussions of the banality of evil and the genius of metaphor — to the comic — admitting flatly that he has a prurient interest in sex. Lennon said that Davis will sell the film to German television and hopes to sell it, with the help of Mailer's agent, to the Public Broadcasting System for airing in the United States.

Dan Holt, adjunct assistant professor of history at Sangamon State University, was recently elected to the Council of the American Association for State and Local History. Holt was certified and took his seat on the Council at the organization's annual meeting in Colonial Williamsburg, Williamsburg, Va., in September.

At that meeting, Holt also chaired and commented on a session entitled "Deaccessioning: Some Ethical and Legal Problems." The session involved the legal standards and development of practices relating to disposal of collections or assets held by nonprofit organizations.

In addition Holt will deliver a paper at the Second Annual Illinois History Symposium, to be sponsored by the Illinois State Historical Library in Springfield in December. His topic will be "Charging of the Guard: From Militia to Volunteer, Illinois 1812-1848."

Alfred Arkley, associate professor of management and public affairs, delivered the keynote address at a daylong training session for Junior Achievement advisers, held Sept. 23 at the Fiat-Allis Training Center in Springfield. Arkley's topic was "The Team-Building Function of the Adviser."

George A. Lindsley, assistant professor of health services administration, and members of his "Community Health Organizations" class have developed a library resource file on some 100 community health organizations located in Springfield and Sangamon County. Class members developed an inventory of the organizations; visited each; and compiled information on program purpose, organization and administration. The file is available for use at the Get Help Here Desk in Brookens Library.

Sangamon State graduate Joe Rockford has been named deputy director of driver services in the Illinois Secretary of State's office. Previously he was head of the driver education department at Springfield High School. Rockford received the M.A. in Educational Administration at SSU in 1973.

A one-man show of art works in clay by Bob Dixon, assistant professor of creative arts, will be on display at the Illinois State Museum from Oct. 11 through Nov. 1. The works were completed through the assistance of an Illinois Arts Council Project Completion Grant and the Faculty Development program at SSU.

Marilou Burnett, associate professor of human development counseling at Sangamon State University, has had a paper accepted for the national conference of the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapists, to be held in San Diego in October. Burnett's paper is entitled "The Search for Legitimacy in the Helping Professions."

Burnett has also contributed a chapter to a recent publication by Greenwood Press entitled Toward the Second Decade. Her chapter deals with family dynamics.

Jeanne Marie Col, associate professor of public administration, was recently named president-elect of the Women's Caucus for Political Science. The group is affiliated with the American Political Science Association.

Cullom Davis, professor of history and director of SSU's Oral History Office, and Francie Stagg and Judy Haynes, graduate assistants in the Oral History Office, represented the University at the 16th national colloquium of the Oral History Association, held in September in Vermont. The colloquium featured leading oral historians from around the country who discussed topics ranging from "Interviewing Political Women" to "Oral History and Environmental Controversies." Stagg and Haynes exhibited part of SSU's collection, the largest oral history depository in Illinois. Davis is a council officer of the Oral History Association.

Terry Peters and David Hilligoss, faculty members in the Individual Options Program, will make invited presentations at "Learning for the Community," a national conference on noncredit programs to be sponsored by Lifelong Learning Resources and the Free University Network in Wichita, Kan., in October.

Peters and Hilligoss will facilitate a keynote workshop on how to apply self-directed learning theory and skills in a conference environment. Peters will also chair a panel on "The Future of Lifelong Learning."

Clarence H. Danhof, associate dean of the organization and management studies cluster and professor of political economy, was a guest at the 25th anniversary celebration of the Louisiana Council on Economic Education held in New Orleans Sept. 25. Danhof founded the Louisiana Workshop on Economic Education in 1956 and directed it for five years.

The workshop is intended for Louisiana teachers and is offered each summer as a three-week intensive program relating to issues in national economic policies. The workshop is one of the oldest continuing programs of its kind and has come to be generously supported by both the teachers and the businessmen of the state.

"Prairie Home Companion" comes to WSSR

"A Prairie Home Companion," a masterful blend of musical art and humor from Minnesota Public Radio, will be heard live via satellite starting Saturday, Oct. 3, at 5 p.m., on WSSR 92FM, Sangamon State University's public radio station.

Winner of the prestigious Peabody Award, "A Prairie Home Companion" will follow another public radio Peabody winner, "All Things Considered," which moves to 4 p.m. on weekends.

"A Prairie Home Companion," originated, written and hosted by humorist Garrison Keillor — a contemporary version of the old radio variety show. Each program features a roster of musicians who perform traditional jazz tunes, bluegrass, western swing, light opera, ethnic and old time music on a collection of instruments. Listeners also hear weekly reports from Lake Wobegon — a fictional town in Minnesota — home of program "sponsors" like Powdermilk Biscuits, Jack's Auto Repair, the Sidetrack Tap and Bertha's Kitty Boutique.

The World Theater in downtown St. Paul serves as home base for the weekly series. Used for vaudeville shows in the 1920s, the World Theater seats an enthusiastic audience of 650 people and "A Prairie Home Companion" consistently plays to a "standing-room-only" crowd. The studio audience, an important element in the "chemistry" of the broadcasts, often sings along with musicians on stage and takes full advantage of Keillor's on-air announcements and message service.

In late spring and summer the program moves outside and is broadcast from the Minnesota Museum of Art Sculpture Garden.
Arts Week is Oct. 3-11

The theme for this year's Arts Week in Illinois, Oct. 3 through 11, is "Creation" and a number of special events have been planned in keeping with that idea.

At Sangamon State University Arts Week will be observed by a concert by singing group the Sweet Adelines on Oct. 10. The concert will be held at 8 p.m. in the University Auditorium, Public Affairs Center. General admission is $5, or $4 for senior citizens and $3 for children. Contact the SSU Ticket Office at 786-6160 for more information.

Dolo Brooking, associate professor of community arts management at Sangamon State, will lead a workshop on "Creating Humane Organizations" Oct. 10 at Springfield's First Presbyterian Church. Caroline Stanhope, consultant on human behavior, will co-lead. The daylong program begins at 9 a.m.

Arts Week will also be celebrated locally in a number of performances, exhibits, tours and other events. For a complete list and further information contact the office of Springboard, the Springfield area arts council, at 753-3519.

Chemistry Program sponsors lecture

The Sangamon State University Chemistry Program and the American Chemical Society are sponsoring a lecture to be held Oct. 22 at 8 p.m. in PAC Conference Room D.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Charles Dunlap, whose topic will be "Fuels and Chemicals from Biomass." The lecture is open to the public. For further information, contact Gary Trammell, assistant professor of chemistry, 786-6630.

Observatory receives spectrographic equipment

Sangamon State University’s Observatory now possesses a spectrographic measuring engine — a device used to measure the physical characteristics of stars and other objects in the sky. The engine was donated to the University by David E. Kinser, a Springfield ophthalmologist and avid astronomy student at SSU.

Observatory Director Charles Schweighauser said that the new machine will enable the University’s astronomy students to quickly determine the elemental composition and abundance of stars from photographic film obtained from the Observatory’s 14-inch telescope and spectrographic equipment.

“The measuring engine will also allow students to measure how fast stars are approaching and receding from the solar system,” Schweighauser added. “This will in turn permit them to determine with a high degree of accuracy the dynamical relationship of the sun to other stars.

“We will be one of the few observatories in the world doing this type of precise, sophisticated work,” said Schweighauser. “We expect to establish a fine publication record in the field of stellar classification and radial velocities using the equipment Dr. Kinser has made available.”

Campbell new foundation president

Bruce A. Campbell, Springfield, was elected president of the Sangamon State University Foundation at the foundation's annual membership meeting Sept. 30. Campbell succeeds Springfield Physician Edwin A. Lee, who served as foundation president for two years.

Campbell, who is division manager-economic development for Illinois Bell Telephone Company, has been employed by the firm for 25 years in public relations departments in Springfield, Chicago and New York.

Active in community affairs, he is a member of the Sangamon County Economic Development Council and serves on the boards of several organizations, including the Springfield Symphony Orchestra Association, the Springfield Boy's Club and Memorial Medical Center. He is an accredited member of the Public Relations Society of America and a charter member of the society's Central Illinois chapter. Campbell served as the 1981 chairman for the Lincoln Academy.

He is the author of Sangamon Saga, a hard-bound pictorial history of Springfield and Sangamon County, published in 1976.

A 1951 journalism graduate of the University of Illinois, Campbell received a master's degree in Communications from Sangamon State in 1977.

SSU's United Way drive continues

Sangamon State's 1981 United Way campaign has been extended to Nov. 2. As of Oct. 14, the drive has collected 59 percent of the $19,200 goal.

Cullom Davis, who is a coordinator of the drive along with Leroy Jordan and Carole Fee McHugh, said, "It is important for the University to do its share. The students and employees of Sangamon State, in significant numbers, are users and beneficiaries of United Way Services. Also, those services offer important internships and applied study experiences for our students."

The President's Office has surpassed its goal with $1,906. Progress reports on other University divisions show University Relations at 72 percent of goal with $1,374, Academic Affairs at 59 percent with $6,090, Business and Administrative Services at 36 percent with $1,413, and Student Services at 34 percent with $564.

Davis said that the United Way is a broad-based, community program which tries to serve the needs of many in an equitable fashion. He added that the agency is efficiently run with a minimal overhead.

"United Way provides us with an excellent way to donate to those causes and agencies we support," McHugh said. She recommended that University employees needing information on designating gifts to particular agencies contact her or the other United Way volunteers on campus.

This year's drive will conclude with a lottery, similar to that held during the 1980 campaign. For each $50 pledged by an SSU employee, that employee is given one chance to win two passes to all performing arts series events scheduled at the University Auditorium. Ten sets of two passes each will be awarded. In addition, an 11th winner will receive two passes to the 1981 NAIA National Soccer Tournament scheduled for Nov. 23-28 at Sangamon State.

Center receives U of I contract

Sangamon State University's Center for Legal Studies has received a contract from the University of Illinois School of Social Work and the Department of Health and Human Services for the purpose of developing training materials for child welfare workers.

Materials to be developed will deal with legal issues surrounding paternity, child support and adoption. The curriculum material and lesson plans will be used by child welfare workers in the six-state area of Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois.

Frank Kopecky, associate professor of legal studies, and Becky Wilkin, staff member of the Center for Legal Studies, will be the principal University staff involved in the 11-month project.
SSU blood drive begins Oct. 28

The University Health Service will sponsor a blood drive for Sangamon State on Wednesday, Oct. 28. Nurses from the Central Illinois Community Blood Center will conduct the drive which will be held in Conference Rooms C and D of the Public Affairs Center.

Students, faculty and staff who donate their blood during the drive will be eligible for the University's blood assurance program which includes coverage of the donor, donor's immediate family, parents, brothers and sisters, and in-laws living within a 50-mile radius. The blood assurance program provides as much blood as may be needed in the coming year at no cost. Blood donors will learn their blood type, have their blood pressure checked and be screened for anemia. The process takes 20 to 30 minutes.

The Community Blood Center supplies Springfield's three hospitals — St. John's, Memorial and Community — and Passavant Hospital in Jacksonville. The Springfield area used 16,400 pints of blood in 1981, and it is anticipated that 20,000 pints will be needed in the coming year. To maintain an adequate supply, 60 to 70 pints must be collected each day.

Hours for the blood drive are 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Donors should register with Health Service in Room C-139 as soon as possible.

Public policy forums discuss political issues

Legislative reapportionment, the redistricting of the Illinois House and Senate, was the topic for the first of a series of public policy forums sponsored by Sangamon State University's Illinois Legislative Studies Center. The first panel discussion on "The Impact of Legislative Reapportionment in Illinois" was held Thursday, Oct. 15, in the Brookens Library Auditorium.

Participants for the discussion included: Paul Green of Governors State University; Jack Van Der Slik, SSU's senior legislative scholar; Charles Wheeler of the Chicago Sun-Times; Don Adams, Republican State Chairman; Rep. Michael McClain, member of the reapportionment commission; and Rep. Carol Moseley Braun of Chicago's 24th District. Serving as moderator for the panel discussion was Bill Miller, associate professor of public affairs reporting at Sangamon State.

Paul Green is a professor of public service at Governors State and is director of the Institute for Public Policy and Administration there. He has written a number of articles on Illinois politics and is currently involved in a major study of reapportionment in the state.

Formerly on the faculty of Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, Jack Van Der Slik is the author of American Legislative Processes, a major work on lawmaking in the United States. At SSU's Illinois Legislative Studies Center, he will be principle author of a book on the Illinois legislature.

Charles Wheeler has been legislative correspondent for the Chicago Sun-Times since 1970 and has written a number of articles on reapportionment. Don Adams, in addition to his duties as Illinois Republican state chairman, has been actively involved with the Republican National Committee.

Rep. Michael F. McClain (D-48th Dist.) studied political science at Western Illinois University and received his law degree from St. Louis University Law School. Currently McClain is serving on the legislative reapportionment commission for the Illinois House and Senate.

Carol Moseley Braun (D-24th Dist.) was elected to the Illinois House in 1978. She is a graduate of the University of Chicago Law School and has been in public service since 1973, serving as assistant U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois prior to her election to the legislature.

The public policy forums are free and open to the public. Three more forums are scheduled for the 1981-82 academic year to deal with topics such as citizen initiative and the Equal Rights Amendment.

Workshops for PR professionals scheduled

Public relations and communications professionals will have an opportunity to sharpen their skills and learn new techniques in a one-day professional development workshop scheduled for Friday, Oct. 30, at Sangamon State University. The workshop is sponsored by the Central Illinois Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) and the Office of Continuing Education at SSU.

Workshop instructors and topics include: Anna May Smith, SSU professor of management, on "Time Management and Management by Objectives"; Richard Adorian, director of public information, Illinois Department of Transportation, on "Planning and Budgeting"; and William Allen, executive director of information, Illinois Farm Bureau, on "Development of Public Relations Funding." Also included are: Nancy L. Nichols, SSU assistant professor of library instructional services, on "Funding and Grantsmanship"; Judith Everson, associate dean of arts and sciences programs at SSU, on "Public Speaking and Speech Writing"; and Charles Wheeler of the Chicago Sun-Times and Ben Kinninham of the Capitol Information Bureau on "Media Relations."

The workshop will begin at 8 a.m. in the Public Affairs Center at SSU's main campus. Registration fees for the workshop are $25 for PRSA members, $35 for nonmembers and $10 for students. Fees include all educational materials, luncheon and coffee. Continuing education credit in the amount of seven contact hours will be awarded.

More information on this workshop is available from Kathleen Kelly in the Office of Continuing Education, Sangamon State University, 217/786-6073.
Composition by Troxell published

"Elegy for Jazz Ensemble and Soloist," a composition by Sangamon State's Jerry Troxell, appears in the recently published Scores: An Anthology of New Music. "This book is the first of its kind in that it's devoted to new music written for people with moderate musical skills," said Troxell, an associate professor in the University's Creative Arts program.

Troxell explained that in this century, most compositions classified as "new music" have been extremely difficult to perform, requiring highly specialized skills. Scores contains a number of pieces which could be performed by non-musicians, as well as other compositions which require some basic musical skills but not high levels of proficiency. "Some do not require the ability to read music, only the ability to follow instructions," Troxell said.

"Elegy," Troxell's composition, provides the performers with an outline of rhythm and suggestions on orchestration. Performers choose their own instruments, sounds and pitches. Troxell said he enjoys maximizing the performers' contributions in his compositions. The piece was written in 1975 when he was studying with William Albright in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"Elegy," and the other works included in Scores represent a variety of styles in the new music genre. Troxell said that he hesitates to call this music experimental because "the term 'experimental music' for most people means music that sounds bad and is boring." He said he would rather define new music as that which explores much of the potential for the art.

The market for new music — like that for contemporary poetry — is somewhat limited, he said. "Occasionally this kind of music will be used for the score of a film such as 'Altered States,' but overall it is not widely distributed. New York City, Los Angeles, Chicago — to some degree — and universities across the country are the places to look for it," he said.

Since distribution is limited, the publication of his work in books such as Scores is important to Troxell because it increases the possibility that the work will be performed. He said that performance of a piece and the subsequent audience response are necessary for the true completion of the composition process. Troxell said the book will be most helpful in university-level performance and composition classes around the country.

Roger Johnson, a New York composer and teacher, selected the works for the book and wrote the commentary.

On sabbatical leave during the 1982 Spring Semester, Troxell will work on two new compositions. One is a chamber piece called "Schoenberg and Chaplin" for Austrian composer Arnold Schoenberg and filmmaker Charlie Chaplin. Troxell is intrigued by a brief meeting in the 1930s between these two 20th-century artists, who, though working in very different media and styles, were admirers of each other's work. Troxell hopes to musically capture the "theatre and musical essence of this event (their meeting) using signature elements from both artists' work."

His second project presently in progress is an orchestral set after the works of artist Albrecht Durer entitled "Durer Studies." Two of its three movements are nearly complete.

Dunham dance performance free at SSU

Sangamon State University's Student Activities Committee will sponsor a free performance by the Katherine Dunham Dance Troupe, Thursday, Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. in the Public Affairs Center Auditorium. The public is invited.

Katherine Dunham is a nationally prominent dancer, choreographer, actress, writer, producer, composer, educator and anthropologist. The dance troupe is the resident company of the Performing Arts Training Center, St. Louis, which Dunham founded and now serves as consultant.

Students selected for the center receive experience in total theatre through a unique synthesis of professional and academic training. The curriculum is highly specialized program of dance, drama, related theater arts and community service.

The dance company specializes in expressing the roots of black American and Caribbean dance. In 1972 at Wolf Trap Farm in Virginia, the company presented the world premiere of the opera "Treemonisha" by Scott Joplin. The company returned to Wolftrap in 1975 to perform "A Tribute to Scott Joplin" by Gunther Schuller, and again in 1980 for a nationally televised production of "Divine Drumbeat."
CAM students experience "real world" in Brooking's courses

Dolo Brooking knows that experience is the best teacher. As associate professor of community arts management at Sangamon State University in Springfield, Ill., she incorporates experiential learning into all her classes. For example: in September, Brooking arranged for the 10 students in her Museum/Art Center Management class to attend the Midwest Museum Conference (MMC) 54th annual meeting in Chicago. Not only did she deliver the students to the conference; Brooking orchestrated opportunities for them to meet and interview museum and gallery professionals.

The format for the museum/art class inspired Brooking to arrange this field trip. "In the class, we establish a mock museum with each student accepting a function such as curator, designer, registrar, development officer, etc.," Brooking said. "We even have a search committee to interview candidates and select a director." The search and selection process demonstrates a number of personnel problems such as the structuring of a search committee and adherence to affirmative action requirements.

The class is part of a sequence of studies that provide the graduate students training for management positions in arts organizations. Brooking said this training gives students "insights into management styles, group dynamics and cooperative compromise."

Despite the mock museum approach, Brooking's class is not the typical simulation exercise. The students operate as professionals while they are producing a real exhibition for the University. The student-development officer devises funding strategies, the student-designer hangs the exhibit, and the student-director of public relations arranges media coverage.

For these students, then, the Midwest Museum Conference of the American Association of Museums provided an ideal chance to glean information from their counterparts in the professional world. The theme of the meeting, "Exhibitions: Ideas Are Not Enough," was particularly appropriate for the class.

And, though the host institutions (Adler Planetarium, Art Institute of Chicago, Chicago Historical Society, Field Museum of Natural History, Museum of Science and Industry, and Shedd Aquarium) were not all art museums, Brooking believes strongly in the value of interdisciplinary experiences for her community arts management students. "I wanted the students to learn to identify the usefulness of seemingly unrelated information," she said. "The sources for inspiration are broader than we think."

So Brooking went to work, with the help of MMC program chairman, Carolyn Blackmon, identifying pros to meet with her students. "All the people I contacted — some I didn't know, by the way — were agreeable to my proposals," she said. MMC President R. Bruce McMillan, director of the Illinois State Museum, provided another kind of assistance to Brooking and her students. McMillan arranged for a number of fees — $12.50 worth — waived for the students thereby allowing them to attend the meeting for the lowest possible rate.

Once in Chicago, the students attended meetings, workshops and receptions at the Museum of Science and Industry, Field Museum, Art Institute, and the conference headquarters, the Conrad Hilton Hotel. In addition to the program meetings and their scheduled interviews, the 10 students were frequently introduced to museum professionals from throughout the central United States — longtime associates of teacher Brooking who was director of museum education at the University of Kansas prior to her Sangamon State appointment.

Observing and participating in this professional conference accomplished a number of learning objectives, according to Brooking. "The students gained some technical knowledge and also became aware of current, controversial issues in the museum management field," she said. "More importantly, they learned how to network."

For student Rob Hayes, the networking aspect — what he called the "quiet politics" — of the conference was of great interest. "I was surprised at how many of the people knew each other and how they help each other get jobs," Hayes said. In the museum/art center class, Hayes is acting as director of public relations, and, therefore, was matched with Albert Louer of the Indianapolis Museum of Art and Paul yacht from the Children's Museum of Indianapolis, both P.R. practitioners.

His conversations with Louer and yacht in Chicago led to an extensive visit with the two in Indianapolis where he was able to observe the design and implementation of a public relations program and the final product, a successful exhibit successfully publicized.

Hayes, whose background includes stints in broadcasting and newspaper ad sales, is interested in a career in film, perhaps with a museum film institute. He said that an added benefit of the Chicago experience was the opportunity to study the Art Institute film program.

In the museum/art center class, each student is urged to accept a role in the mock museum which is different from their prior training. Allyson Cook, who came to the Community Arts Management program after working as an art and gallery director for a San Antonio, Tex., gallery, chose to assume the role of a member of the board of directors. "I didn't have much experience serving on boards, and in my previous job, I thought the board was ineffective," Cook said. "I wanted to see the purpose of board members."

Cook was linked with Jean Carton, a member of the Board of Trustees at Chicago's Field Museum of National History. Through their conversations, Cook said she discovered that board members can serve as fundraisers, develop contacts, bring perspective, and inure the quality of the museum exhibits and programs. "Jean told me that board members should be advisers bringing perspectives different from the museum staff," she said, adding that Carton also passed on some good information on how to structure boards. Cook was impressed by Carton's energy and abilities, and by the fact that "she wasn't afraid of change." Would Cook now serve on a board? "Yes, if I can make some contribution."
The conference focusing on exhibitions was especially helpful for Linda Prather who is acting as designer in the museum/art center class. Prather, who came to the Community Arts Management program with a background in public relations writing, plans to develop a career in public relations for a museum. “I think that if you are in public relations, it is your duty to know as much as you can about the organization employing you,” Prather said. “The knowledge I gained about museums is invaluable.”

Prather’s contact at the conference was Paul Bluestone, exhibit designer for the Chicago Public Library Cultural Center. After attending a workshop given by Bluestone on “How to Get the Most for Your Dollar: Design and Construction,” Prather met with him and discussed exhibit design while he installed a show at the Cultural Center.

“Paul emphasized the strong role a designer can plan in the success of an exhibition,” Prather said. “We talked a lot about a quilt exhibit he had worked on (the Illinois Arts Council-sponsored “Quilts: A Tradition in Southern Illinois”). He took me through from the beginning to the opening night, through the mental procedures and the logistics.”

Prather, who described herself as a neophyte in the museum world, found it interesting that many designers at the conference came from diverse backgrounds. “Paul had worked for a while as a homebuilder, took some courses in exhibit design and then moved into the position at the Cultural Center,” she said.

Soon after the conference, Prather found her conference contacts helpful. In Brooks’ class, each student researches his or her role and makes a presentation to the class. “I needed some slides on exhibition designers for my presentation so I contacted Karen Kohn, the Chicago Historical Society designer, whom I’d met at the conference.” Kohn had participated in the workshop with Bluestone on limited budget design. “She was very helpful and sent the slides right away,” Prather said.

All the students were impressed with the favorable treatment they received from the conference participants. Brooking said that they were addressed as peers by their working counterparts, many of whom were interested in knowing more about SSU’s Community Arts Management program.

Brooking was enthusiastic about the experience and is already making plans to take next year’s class to the MMC meeting scheduled for St. Louis. The Midwest Museum Conference is one of six regional conferences of the American Association of Museums.

--- Ed Giganti

Simple in format, the program is composed of two national seminars, in the spring and fall, taking all fellows to Washington, D.C., and a state site. Locally, the program consists of 20 to 24 informal dinner meetings held in Springfield with area speakers. At the meetings, discussions are led by policy leaders from state government and voluntary organizations. EPPF participants are thereby exposed to a broad range of professional discussions and literature, unavailable in regular agency settings.

No credit is offered for participation in the fellowship program. “All participants are fully credentialed,” Spencer said, adding that the atmosphere of a non-credit experience is extremely conducive to learning and information exchange because it eliminates the usual academic and institutional pressures on participants.

Now operating in 13 states, Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico, this in-service program was initiated 15 years ago by the Institute for Educational Leadership, then a division of George Washington University. The state in-service programs are closely associated with a national fellowship program which each year brings about 50 fellows to Washington for one-year senior placements in educational agencies.

Spencer said the in-service program has a three-fold purpose for the fellows. “It gives them an understanding of the substance of a broad range of educational policy,” he said. “It also reveals the politics of policy-making and third, it examines the nature and difficulties of leadership roles in a variety of educational settings.” Spencer added that the fellowship program builds strong “network” relationships among the participants, facilitating an ongoing information exchange.

Speakers at past EPPF meetings have included: Donald Gill, superintendent of the Illinois State Board of Education; Richard Wagner, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education; Roger Miller, president of Millikin University; Charles Brady of the Illinois Catholic Conference; educational and political leaders from the General Assembly; and many other institutional, agency, or political leaders in the sphere of education. All meetings are “off the record” to promote shared experiences and problem analysis.

Program speakers and topics demonstrate a diversity which is matched by the backgrounds of the fellows. In the past two years, 31 fellows have participated in the Illinois program. They hail from a number of agencies and organizations, including the Illinois State Board of Education, Springfield Public School District 186, the Illinois Community College Trustees Association, the Illinois Senate Minority Staff, the Bureau of the Budget and the Board of Higher Education.

Spencer said that the diversity of membership and speakers is an important ingredient in the program. “It has been proven many times that the shared discussions, readings and the Washington and state policy seminars are deepening and broadening professional experiences,” he said.

The Education Policy Fellowship Program was originally funded by grants from the Ford and Rockefeller foundations. Presently, Spencer said, it is funded almost entirely by about 40 different sponsoring agencies, with scholarships given to several fellows by the Ford, Rockefeller and Kellogg foundations. Costs for the in-service program run about $2,500 to $1,500 in tuition and $1,000 for travel.

But the benefits to sponsoring agencies surpass the costs, including the cost in time the employees are excused from work, Spencer said. “For the sponsors, the program offers a way to identify talent within an employee group and also to reward outstanding performance.”

More information on becoming an EPPF fellow or sponsor is available from Spencer in the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation, 217/786-6576.
Drawings and paintings by Anne Devaney, assistant professor of creative art at Sangamon State University, are on exhibit at Millikin University through October. Devaney gave a short talk describing her work at a reception opening the exhibit on Oct. 19.

John Poertner, assistant professor of child, family and community services, is the co-author of “Modeling Service Delivery as a System of Transitions: The Case of Foster Care.” The article appeared in the August, 1981, issue of Evaluation Review and was written in conjunction with Merlin Taber of the University of Illinois School of Social Work.

Alfred Arkley, associate professor of management and public affairs, gave a presentation on “Time Management” to the Illinois Federation of Women’s Clubs’ 21st District Board Meeting and Workshop, held Oct. 3 in Rochester.

Former Sangamon State student Roger Sweet has been named director of the Illinois senate Republican staff. The appointment was made by senate minority leader James Philip; Sweet has been with the senate GOP staff for seven years. He earned the B.A. in Economics at SSU in 1972.

Wilma Scott Heide, professor of women’s studies and innovative and experimental studies, made a presentation on “Transforming Education: Feminist Perspectives” before a meeting of Illinois Women Administrators in Springfield on Oct. 9.

Matilou Catchpole, associate professor of nurse anesthesiology, is the author of “Electrolytes, Their Physical Action and Interaction,” which has been accepted for publication in the AANA Journal, the official publication of the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists.

The Nursing and Women’s Studies programs at Sangamon State University will co-sponsor a seminar on “Depression in Women,” to be presented on Oct. 30, from 3 until 4:30 p.m. in the Public Affairs Center. The program will be led by Karleen Kerfoot, a registered nurse and currently special assistant to the director of nurses, University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Earlier in the day, Kerfoot will also present a program on “Nursing Assessment of Sexual Problems,” scheduled for 11 a.m. to noon at Springfield Community Hospital, and again from 1 to 2 p.m. at Memorial Medical Center. SSU’s Nursing Program is sponsoring these presentations.

The “Depression in Women” seminar is designed for counselors and nurses and will focus on current theories of the causes of depression in women. Other topics will include appropriate interviewing techniques to use in assessment, and effective approaches to intervention.

“Nursing Assessment of Sexual Problems” will provide nurses with information on common deviations in healthy sexual functioning. Participants will learn effective interviewing techniques in assessing sexual problems, how to determine a nursing diagnosis, and appropriate means of intervention.

A doctoral candidate at the University of Illinois Medical Center, Kerfoot was in private practice as a psychiatric mental health nurse practitioner for many years. She has been on the faculty of the College of Nursing, University of Iowa, and is currently involved in several research projects in the areas of depression and sexuality. She is the co-author of two books. Sexuality: Concepts for the Practicing Clinician and Group Dynamics for Nurses.

All sessions will be provided free of charge and one contact hour of continuing education credit will be awarded to each nurse participant under the Illinois Nurses Association CEARP program.

Copy for the Nov. 6 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Oct. 30.
Burnout is topic of workshop

"Preventing and Coping with Burnout," a workshop sponsored by Sangamon State University’s Office of Continuing Education, is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Nov. 5-6.

Participants in the conference will increase their understanding of the factors causing and contributing to burnout, identify and use individual and interpersonal coping skills, develop organizational coping strategies, and plan what they can do for themselves and their organization to cope with and prevent burnout.

Faculty for the workshop are: Gene A. Brodland, associate professor in the Department of Psychiatry, Southern Illinois University School of Medicine; Howard V. Davis, professor of counseling, Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville; and James J. Pancrazio, professor of human development counseling, Sangamon State University.

Registration fee for the conference is $35 and includes educational materials, luncheon and coffee. Deadline for registration is Nov. 3. For further information, contact Kathleen Kelly, Office of Continuing Education at Sangamon State University, 217/786-6073.

Women’s Studies brown bag series continues

The brown bag discussions/feminist lecture series sponsored by Women’s Studies at Sangamon State University have resumed for the Fall Semester. Men as well as women are invited to attend the free discussion sessions, all of which are held on Mondays in the Public Affairs Center, room 3G-H.

Remaining topics and speakers for the sessions, to be held from noon to 1 p.m. are: “Sexism in Social Research,” Joyce Elliott, assistant professor of sociology/anthropology and women’s studies, Oct. 26; “Shared Perspectives from a Summer Institute: Toward Feminist Transformation of the Curriculum,” Pat Langley, assistant professor of legal studies, and Joyce Bennett, associate professor of library instructional services, Nov. 2; “What Everyone Should Know About Insurance,” insurance agent Marcia Peterson, Nov. 16; “Nurturing Qualities of Health Professionals,” Caryl Mow, associate professor of child, family and community services, Nov. 30; and “Dealing with the IRS,” led by a representative of the Internal Revenue Service, Dec. 7.
Korbel awarded Robert Roach scholarship

Dave Korbel, senior forward on the Sangamon State University soccer team, has been named the second recipient of the Robert Roach Memorial Prairie Stars Scholarship.

Korbel, from Hopkins, Minn., is majoring in management at SSU. He hopes to complete a degree in special education and work with children.

Korbel transferred to SSU from Bethany Lutheran College in Mankato, Minn., where he earned two varsity letters and was co-captain of the Vikings. He also played high school soccer, earning three varsity letters and All-Conference honors.

Korbel has scored two goals and three assists early in the 1981 season and the Prairie Stars, sporting a 7 win, 3 loss, 2 tie record, are currently ranked eighth in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

The Robert Roach Memorial Scholarship is an endowed scholarship established in 1978 in memory of Robert Cowane Roach by his family and friends. Roach, a Springfield businessman, was an ardent soccer fan and supporter of the Prairie Stars. Each year, the award in his honor is given to a senior player who has made a great contribution to the team. The scholarship is presented by Rose Marie Roach, associate dean of student services.

Korbel’s name will be added to a plaque displaying the names of the Roach scholarship winners. Steve Simon, star striker of the 1980 Prairie Stars squad, was the recipient of the first scholarship.

Flu vaccinations now available

Flu vaccinations of the type recommended for the 1981-82 season are available now from the University Health Service, C-139. Cost is $3 for students and $3.50 for faculty and staff.

The vaccines are designed to combat the three types of flu virus which the U.S. Public Health Service expects to be prevalent this year: A/Brazil, A/Bangkok and B/Singapore. These are not swine flu vaccines.

Seasonal immunization against influenza is recommended for persons who are at increased risk of complications stemming from infection. These people include: persons with heart, lung or kidney disease; diabetics; people over the age of 65; and those who provide community services or are at an increased risk of exposure.

Pregnant women, children under six, people with allergic reactions to eggs, those who wish to donate blood within 72 hours, or anyone who has had another type of vaccine within 14 days should not receive these vaccinations without consulting their own physicians.

For further information contact Lynne Price, University nurse, in the Health Service Office, 786-6676 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.
Illinois Issues wins journalism award

Illinois Issues, Sangamon State University's public affairs magazine, has been named recipient of the 1981 Washington Monthly Journalism Award for July. The award was given for the article "The Illinois Commerce Commission: Rates, Revenues and Reason?" by William Lambrecht. The article was the first in a two-part series on the power and performance of the commission.

In the story, Lambrecht, Springfield correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, described the authority the commission wields over all energy, transportation and communications in the state. He explained how conflicting forces at work in complicated rate cases particularly in utilities cases have sometimes overwhelmed the commission's members. In commend- ing Lambrecht and Illinois Issues, the Washington Monthly said, "Articles of this kind are especially valuable because they shed light on activity at the state level that often goes unco vered in the press."

The award was announced in the October issue of Washington Monthly. Awards are presented each month to the best newspaper or magazine article (or series of articles) on the political system.

Established in 1975, Illinois Issues provides monthly coverage of the politics and government of Illinois

"Jupiter Effect" refuted by Schweighauser

"The Jupiter Effect: Fact or Fiction" is the title of a lecture to be given by Sangamon State University Professor Charles Schweighauser, Friday, Nov. 13 at 8 p.m. Schweighauser, professor of environmental studies and director of the SSU Observatory, will speak in the auditorium of Brookens Library on the main campus.

The Jupiter Effect is a book by John Gribbin and Stephen Plagemann, published in 1974. It presented the theory that due to a supposed alignment of the planets due to occur in 1982, there will be an increase in seismic activity on the earth. The book presents the increase in earthquakes as the result of a long chain of cause and effect relationships.

In his lecture, Schweighauser will examine the premise of the book and refute its conclusions. "The Jupiter effect will not happen," Schweighauser said, "I have been asked frequently about the truth of the Jupiter effect, and I feel that, in keeping with the public affairs mandate of Sangamon State, it is my obligation to speak out on pseudo-scientific events which have large public impact."

Schweighauser's talk is free and open to the public. The lecture will precede the regularly scheduled "star party" at the Observatory.

Energy topics discussed at fall series

"Energy Studies Gatherings," an informal series of seminars on current issues in energy, is being sponsored by the Energy Studies Option of the Innovative and Experimental Studies Cluster throughout the Fall Semester. The public is invited to attend the free discussions.

The next program in the series will be Nov. 10 when Mark Heyman, professor of city planning, examines "Residential Energy Auditing." Remaining programs are "The Windfall Energy Profits Tax," presented by Sumol Padungchai, assistant professor of economics, Nov. 24; and "Energy Efficiency and Old Houses," led by Ed Hawes, associate professor of environmental studies, Dec. 8.

All programs are scheduled for 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. in room 3-A of the Public Affairs Center. For further information contact Al Casella, associate professor of environmental studies, at 786-6720.

Trees planted in memory of YMCA youth

The YMCA Custom Insurance Youth Soccer Team landscaped an area north of the recreation field building on the Sangamon State University campus recently.

The trees and bushes planted by team members were in memory of former team member David Brown, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, who died last September in a traffic accident.

Brown's youth soccer coach Jim Baker, who also is a member of the YMCA Coordinating Board, said the Y
A workshop, "Operations Research Techniques in Local and State Government," is scheduled for Dec. 2 and 3 in the Public Affairs Center. Sponsors are Sangamon State University's Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation and the Continuing Education Office.

Led by Rassule Hadidi, assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs, the workshop is designed to introduce several major topics of operations research in a concise manner. Emphasis will be placed on overall use of those topics in various stages of planning, decision making and control of projects rather than on their mathematical derivations.

The sessions are designed for analysts concerned with the practical uses of operations research and for those already using operations research techniques in their agencies. However, prior knowledge of the concepts is not a prerequisite.

Hadidi holds the Ph.D. in industrial engineering/operations research from the University of Missouri. He is the author of several professional publications and is a member of the Operations Research Society of America.

Registration fee for the workshop is $55, which includes the textbook and other educational materials, two luncheons, refreshments and parking. Enrollment is limited to 15. Participants may earn 1.3 units of continuing education credit.

Annuities seminar

The University will sponsor a seminar on tax-sheltered annuities for employees and their spouses at noon on Friday, Nov. 6, in room L-50. The purpose of the seminar is to help employees learn about the benefits available to them through this program.

Topics to be discussed include what tax-sheltered annuities are, what they could do for investors, why they may or may not be of value to particular individuals. The general information session will be followed with presentations by representatives of the companies which the Board of Regents have approved to do business with Sangamon State.

All University employees are invited to attend. Participants may bring their lunches.

Student holds one-woman show at SSU

"A One-Woman Show by Surreal," featuring the work of Sangamon State University student Susan Werler, will be the next attraction in the Media Gallery, lower level of Brookens Library on the SSU Main Campus.

The show will run from Nov. 13 through Dec. 13.

Werler, a senior in the University's Creative Arts and Women's Studies programs, works in various media including oil, soft sculpture, watercolor, collage, pencil, ink, clay and assemblage. While her work does not fit exactly into any single category, she is influenced by conceptual, abstract and surrealist art. A common theme in much of her work is a commitment to changing the position of women in the world.

Werler has previously exhibited work in student art shows at Sangamon State, however this is her first one-woman show. It is dedicated to the growing international bond between women, and in particular to Zakia Aziz, one of the first well-known women artists in Bangladesh, whom Werler met while in that country studying at Dacca Art College.

The show is free and open to the public during regular library hours. An opening reception will be held on Friday, Nov. 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Gallery.

International celebration held Nov. 15

The fifth annual International Celebration, featuring foods from around the world, entertainment and cultural exhibits, takes place Sunday, Nov. 15, from 5 to 8 p.m. in the Public Affairs Center Cafeteria.

The event is sponsored by Sangamon State University's International Student Association. Tickets are $4 for students and $6 general admission and are available from the Bursar's office. A limited number of tickets will be available at the door.
L. A. Ballet presents
“Cinderella”

The Los Angeles Ballet Company’s production of Sergei Prokofiev’s classic “Cinderella” will be presented in the Sangamon State University Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 20 and 21.

Choreographed by artistic director John Clifford, this full-length production is one of the company’s repertoire of more than 70 ballets. Clifford, former choreographer and principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, founded the company in 1973. Since then it has gone on to become a nationally recognized, full professional company.

The Nov. 20 performance will be at 8 p.m. while the Nov. 21 performance is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Tickets are orchestra/loge $11, mezzanine $10, and balcony $8. Special discount prices are available for children.

Vachel Lindsay celebrated on WSSR programs

This month WSSR, Sangamon State University’s public radio station, will present two special programs observing the 50th anniversary of the death of Springfield poet laureate Vachel Lindsay.

On Nov. 10 the station will rebroadcast a program produced for National Public Radio by station operations director Brad Swanson two years ago as part of the Lindsay Centenary Celebration.

The program, to be heard at 1 p.m., includes recordings of the poet reading his own works, interviews with Springfield residents who knew him, insights into Lindsay’s poetry and personality provided by SSU Professor of Literature Dennis Camp, and a reading by Gary Vitale of the poem “The Congo.”

On Nov. 18, also at 1 p.m., the station will carry a delayed broadcast of actor Jack Knight’s re-creation of Lindsay’s last public reading, which was given Nov. 30, 1931, at Springfield’s First Christian Church.

Knight’s performance will be held at the church on Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m. and the public is invited to attend. The program will be recorded live.

Copy for the Nov. 20 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Nov. 12.

Five SSU students will participate in Model U.N.

Five international studies students from Sangamon State will participate in the Midwest Model United Nations meeting next February in St. Louis. Assistant Professor of Political Studies Darryl Thomas also plans to take the students to the meeting of the National Model U.N. in New York City next April. The Model U.N. program is sponsored by professors nationwide who are interested in providing their students with experiential learning in international politics.

About 50 institutions will send delegations to the Midwest meeting, and 70 to 100 institutions will be represented at the national meeting in New York. Participants at the New York meeting will have the opportunity to meet with the U.N. delegations which they represent at the Model U.N.

At the Midwest and National meetings, the SSU students will form a delegation representing one country. The Model U.N. organization will determine the country to be represented, but Thomas said he hopes his students will be assigned a country which plays an active role in the U.N. “We are looking at countries in the Middle East, southern Africa and Central America,” he said. “I don’t want the students to go to the meeting and merely watch; I want them to be able to participate.”

Participation at these meetings requires preparation, and Thomas’ class is researching the United Nations with the help of Mary Jane MacDonald, acting head of SSU’s library, who has expertise in the use of U.N. documents. The Sangamon State students are also collaborating with a group from Lincoln Land Community College under the direction of LLCC instructor Phillip Rivera. Thomas said that SSU and Lincoln Land are sharing resources in preparing for the Model U.N. meetings.

This is the first year that SSU students will participate in the program. Last year, Thomas took several students to a meeting of the Model Organization of African Unity, held in Washington, D.C., where the group represented Senegal. Lincoln Land students have participated in several Model U.N. meetings.

Thomas said that through mock meetings of the U.N. Security Council, Economic and Social Council, General Assembly and others, the students learn the procedures, issues and politics of the United Nations. Their preparation, he added, teaches the students a number of valuable research techniques. Though this year’s delegation will be comprised entirely of political studies students, Thomas said that the Model U.N. experience is valuable to any student because of the learned skills and awareness of public affairs issues gained.

A total of eight hours credit is awarded for participation in this activity. In addition, this year’s students may have an opportunity to visit several Middle Eastern countries during the Christmas break: Rivera is planning a trip for faculty and students from LLCC and Sangamon State and Thomas is investigating funding sources which could pay students’ expenses for the trip.

International Studies at Sangamon State, a thematic activity of the Innovative and Experimental Studies cluster, is a broad-based, interdisciplinary approach to world politics and problems.

SSU among top energy savers

Sangamon State University Pres. Alex B. Lacy, Jr., announced that SSU is one of the leading energy savers among public universities in the state. Lacy’s statement was based on a recent report by the Illinois Board of Higher Education examining energy consumption and conservation at 16 Illinois public universities between 1975 and 1981. Lacy made the announcement at a press luncheon held Oct. 28.

Sangamon State was listed in the report as using the third lowest number of BTU’s per gross square foot during the 1980-81 fiscal year (52 percent less than the average used by all public universities). SSU was also a leader in terms of the total reduction in energy used per square foot over a six-year period. Sangamon State was second of the 16 schools studied, with an overall decrease of 34 percent in energy usage and a 41 percent decrease in BTU’s per gross square foot per heating/cooling degree day.

Lacy said that the substantial energy savings achieved by Sangamon State during the past six years is the result of several energy conservation activities. These include completion of an insulation program, installation of a computerized energy load management system, and adoption of operation and maintenance programs geared to reducing energy use with minimal disruption of the life, study and work environment.

At the same luncheon Lacy announced that the University’s Capital Campus will be revamped in the near future. New emphasis will be placed on the downtown campus as an information center for recruitment and admissions, a book depository, and a site for courses and continuing education programs such as “brown-bag” seminars. Current University programs at the Capital Campus, including the Public Affairs Reporting program, Illinois Network for Displaced Homemakers and General Assembly Oral History program, will be maintained. Lacy said that the Capital Campus will be used as an outreach center for populations presently underserved by SSU.

The president also discussed the 1981 season at Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum, the University’s “living history” project near Petersburg. Lacy said that an estimated 16,000 people attended the crafts festivals held at the site in the spring and fall and added that more than 2,000 area school children participated in the “Discovery Tour” and “Life in the 1850s” programs of hands-on experience.

Highlighting the Clayville season this year was the dedication of the Emmet and Mary Pearson Conference Room at the Public Affairs Center on Oct. 18. This room, where antiques from Clayville are displayed, is the first representation of the Rural Life Center and Museum on the main campus. It also recognizes Dr. and Mrs. Pearson’s contribution of Clayville to the University in 1973.
Energy project announces recommendations

The Springfield Energy Project released the draft recommendations of the Springfield Energy Futures Task Force at a press conference held Nov. 13 at the Mansion View Restaurant. The Project also released updated draft results of the Springfield Energy End-Use Data Survey.

"Our data shows that 85 percent of the money spent on energy leaves the Springfield community," said project director Al Casella, associate professor of environmental studies at Sangamon State University. "The energy conservation measures recommended by the Task Force will keep some of that money in Springfield, where it can be invested to create jobs and a better economy."

The Task Force made over 100 recommendations, including: improve traffic flow, enact energy-efficient building codes, attract energy-efficient and -producing businesses to Springfield and provide low interest loans for energy-efficiency improvements.

Three students begin GPS Internships

Dana M. Willaford of Morris, John W. Slater of Flossmoor, and Donna Kurtz of Crystal Lake are among the 13 Sangamon State University graduate students who recently began positions with the Graduate Public Service Internship Program. Through the 21-month GPSI, graduate students simultaneously begin careers in public service, earn modest stipends, and complete degrees at Sangamon State.

Willaford, who is interning with the Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety, will earn the master's degree in public administration. She received her bachelor's degree in 1981 from the University of Illinois.

Slater is interning with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. He is a 1981 graduate of Illinois College, where he earned a bachelor's degree in sociology and political science. At Illinois College he was chosen for inclusion in Who's Who Among University and College Students.

Kurtz is a junior auditor with the Illinois Auditor General's Office, and will earn the master's degree in business administration. Kurtz earned her undergraduate degree in history at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, where she graduated with honors in 1981.

PAR students visit Chicago, Mayor Byrne

Students in Sangamon State University's Public Affairs Reporting Program recently made a two-day field trip to Chicago to tour major media facilities and meet with Mayor Jane Byrne. This is the third consecutive year that Mayor Byrne has met with PAR classes.

Students visited the offices of WBBM Radio and TV; WLS Radio; the Associated Press; United Press International; the Chicago Sun Times; the Chicago Tribune; the Los Angeles Times; and Johnson Publications, publishers of Ebony and Jet magazines.

Students also met with Mary Galligan, a 1977 PAR graduate employed in the Chicago bureau of U. S. News and World Report. Other professionals who spoke to the class included Bill Kurtis from Channel 2; Gene Mustain, investigative reporter, and Ralph Orwell, managing editor, from the Sun Times; Susan Smith, 1979 PAR graduate employed by AP; Bill Rechtenwald, investigative reporter for the Tribune; Bob Kieckhefer from UPI; and John Johnson, president of Johnson Publications.

Round Table to meet on Dec. 9

The next meeting of the Sangamon State Administrators' Round Table will be on Wednesday, Dec. 9, at the Heritage House Restaurant in Springfield. The theme of the program will be "Computers for Administration."

The session begins at 8:30 a.m. with registration and coffee. The $5 registration fee includes a $1 membership in the Round Table, coffee, rolls, and lunch.

The deadline to pre-register is Dec. 9. For further information contact Stuart Anderson, professor of administration, Sangamon State University, 786-6306.

Alchemist Review now accepting contributions

Material for the sixth edition of The Alchemist Review, Sangamon State University's annual literary magazine, is now being accepted. Anyone who is currently enrolled or who has ever been enrolled in classes at SSU is eligible to submit original poetry, fiction, nonfiction, music, art and photography.

First and second place prizes of $30 and $20 will be awarded in each category. Faculty and staff members will not be eligible for these awards, but will be eligible for publication. Deadline for submitting materials is Jan. 20.

Entries are to submit no more than two items per category, and to limit fiction and nonfiction pieces to fewer than 3,000 words. All manuscripts should be typed and double-spaced. Materials should be submitted in a manila envelope with the author's name, address, telephone number and social security number on the outside. No name should appear on the material itself. A short biography of the author should also be included, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope so that the material can be returned.

Submissions should be sent to Shirley-Raye Redmond in Brookens 375. For further information call Redmond at 786-6778.

Traineeships available

Three traineeships are available for full-time graduate students in rehabilitation counseling during the Spring Semester. These posts are funded with stipends from the U. S. Rehabilitation Services Administration. In addition to the modest stipends, the traineeships carry partial tuition payments. Interested students should contact Jack Genakow, associate professor, Human Development Counseling, 786-6504, for more information.
Two PAR students awarded Armstrong Memorial Scholarships

The James E. Armstrong Memorial Scholarships for Public Affairs Reporting were awarded Nov. 5 to Leanne C. Waxman and Larry Sombke, both graduate students at Sangamon State University.

The presentations were made at a luncheon at Springfield's Sangamon Club. Among those attending were Armstrong's widow, Violet, and John P. Clarke, publisher of the State Journal-Register. Clarke succeeded Armstrong as publisher of the paper after Armstrong's death in 1968.

Waxman, 21, received the B.S. in journalism at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale. Her previous journalism experience includes a stint with The Register, a Mt. Vernon newspaper, and an internship with Carbondale's Southern Illinoisan. She has also been a reporter for the SSU student newspaper, The Daily Egyptian. Waxman's professional goal is to be a "hard-working, competitive and innovative newspaper reporter."

Sombke, 31, received the B.S. in Work/Culture/Society from Sangamon State in 1974. He previously attended the University of Missouri, where he majored in history. Sombke worked for four years as a reporter-producer at a Columbia, Mo., radio station, where he developed a series on energy issues. He hopes to work at a "major-market radio station that has the most serious attitude toward news."

In the 1930s, while he was still in high school, Jim Armstrong began working as a part-time sports writer for the Illinois State Register and Illinois State Journal. He served as publisher of the two papers from 1964 until his death four years later. He was an active civic leader who supported the establishment of Sangamon State University and was selfless in his efforts to help young people learn the newspaper profession.

The Public Affairs Reporting program at Sangamon State is one year long and features an internship with the press corps covering the state capitol during the regular session of the General Assembly. Students are assigned to newspaper and broadcast bureaus and work with experienced reporters.

Bill Miller, director of the PAR program, is an award-winning journalist who has covered state government for more than 25 years. Among Miller's awards is the coveted Edward R. Murrow Award for investigative reporting.

Blood drive most successful yet

Sangamon State University's Sixth Annual Blood Drive, held Oct. 28, was the most successful drive to date. Some 88 pints of blood were collected, and a special thank you goes to everyone who cared enough to donate.

Anyone who was unable to donate during the drive but who would like to donate under the SSU plan should contact the Community Blood Bank at 753-1530. Hours are: Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dedication held for field building

The newly constructed Recreation Field Building at Sangamon State University was dedicated by University and YMCA personnel on Nov. 7.

Participants at the dedication were SSU Dean of Students Homer Butler; Rep. Irv Smith (R-Springfield), president of the Y Board of Directors; and Jim Reed, chairman of the Y's soccer coordinating council. Also participating in the dedication were a representative of John Lampros Associates; architect Ray Boosinger, who donated his services in designing the structure; and Tim Nicoud, vice president of the SSU Foundation, which assisted in financing the $40,000 construction cost.

The structure, which will be the field headquarters for the youth soccer program, has facilities for equipment storage, rest rooms and a concession stand. The Foundation is leasing the facility to the YMCA youth soccer program for a 10-year period, after which the building will be donated to the University.

More than 2,000 youth soccer players in Y programs use nine campus athletic fields for soccer competition.

WSSR covers "Reaganomics" live Dec. 16

WSSR will broadcast live coverage of the second Public Policy Forum, "The Impact of Reaganomics on Illinois," to be held Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in Brookens Auditorium, Sangamon State University.

Panelists for the discussion include Springfield Mayor Mike Houston; Richard Kolhauser, deputy director, Bureau of the Budget; State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman (D-3rd District); State Rep. Jim Reilly (R-49th District); State Rep. Carol Moseley Braun (D-24th District); and Douglas Whitley, executive director, Taxpayers Federation of Illinois. John Collins, director of SSU's Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation, will serve as moderator for the panel discussion.

The discussion will focus on the effects of Reaganomics on state and local government, including block grants, social services, legislative priorities and decision-making.

Sangamon State University recently hosted a delegation of five higher education officials from the People's Republic of China. The visit was part of an agreement linking regional Chinese universities with institutions in the United States.

Last summer, SSU President Alex B. Lacy, Jr. was one of 15 U.S. college and university presidents to visit China at the invitation of the Chinese Ministry of Education. The U.S. delegation, sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, vi-visited universities, as well as primary and middle schools, in five provinces.

In a reciprocal visit, two teams of Chinese educators toured the U.S. Oct. 21 through Nov. 14. The team visiting Sangamon State Oct. 31 through Nov. 2 included: Liu Yongbo, deputy director of the Bureau of Higher Education in Shanghai; Lian Zhijie, director of the Bureau of Higher Education in Guizhou Province; Tong Jufu, deputy director, Bureau of Higher Education, Gansu Province; Jiang Junzheng, deputy president of Heilongjiang University, Heilongjiang Province; and Zhao Ji, president of Yunnan University, Yunnan Province. The group was accompanied by an interpreter, Mrs. Yang Wei He, a program officer with the Ministry of Education. (Mrs. Yang had served as Lacy's interpreter during his visit to China.)

Following their arrival from Western Illinois University on Saturday, Oct. 31, the visitors toured historic New Salem, Lincoln's Tomb, and the Lincoln Home. On Sunday they were flown by helicopter to Butler, Ill., to tour the hog confinement farm of John and Anita Rundquist. They then returned to SSU's main campus for a tour of the permanent buildings and the computer center. Throughout the weekend the delegation was introduced to a number of business and community leaders from Springfield and Central Illinois, as well as faculty, staff and students from the University.

On Monday, Nov. 2, the Chinese educators joined faculty and administrators from Sangamon State for a formal business meeting. The educational agreement between AASCU and the Chinese Ministry of Education will result in the exchange of faculty, students and instructional materials between institutions in both countries. The business meeting was scheduled to work out logistics for this exchange which will bring two Chinese students to Sangamon State for the Spring Semester.

Following the business meeting and a luncheon with faculty, the delegation visited the DICKEY-john plant in Auburn, before leaving for Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Lacy said that the value of the visit and the exchange program is emphasized by the great needs in Chinese higher education. Because of a limited number of openings at universities there, only a fraction of the students who graduate from middle schools win a place in higher education institutions. Of the five million Chinese middle school graduates eligible to take the national competitive exams this year, only 280,000 will be admitted to universities.
Caryl Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services, recently made presentations at two professional conferences. "Touch in Family Therapy" was presented to the Family Therapy section of the National Council on Family Relations meeting in Milwaukee in October and "Touch in the Therapeutic Relationship" was presented to the American Public Health Association meeting in Los Angeles in November. Moy also chaired a workshop on "Divorce and Stepparenting," sponsored by the Illinois Association for Family Therapy. The workshop was held in Springfield.

Peter Wenz, associate professor of philosophy, presented a paper entitled "Human Rights and Ethnic Integrity" at the 10th Interamerican Congress of Philosophy, held in Tallahassee in October. The paper, prepared under the auspices of the University's Center for Legal Studies, explored the possibility that people are entitled to government policies designed to maintain ethnic group identifications.

Also through the Center for Legal Studies, Wenz will edit an issue of The Journal of Social Philosophy which will be devoted to the issues of assimilation, ethnicity and public policy.

Walter Bishop, director of the Springfield Educational Consortium and professor of educational administration at Sangamon State University, spoke on "Critical Issues in the '80s for Small Schools" at the Small Schools Conference sponsored by the North Central Association Nov. 5 in Springfield.

Jerry Curl, director of advising and counseling and associate professor of human development counseling, was honored for "Outstanding Service to the ISU Alumni Association Board of Directors" at ceremonies held during the Illinois State University Homecoming on Oct. 17. Curl has served on the association board since 1975.

Curl will conclude his term as president of the Illinois College Personnel Association at the Illinois Personnel and Guidance Association's annual convention to be held in Chicago in November. At the convention, Curl will co-chair a panel discussion on "The Future of Higher Education: The Implication for Student Personnel Programming."

John Knoepfle, professor of literature, has been awarded a $12,500 grant by the National Endowment for the Arts to produce a book of poems about the Sangamon River Basin. Entitled Sangamon Basin Poems, the book will consist of approximately 80 original compositions. No publication date has been set, but Knoepfle estimates that the book, his 15th, will take nearly a year to complete.

Edward Hawes, associate professor of history in the Environmental Studies Program, presented a paper on "Interpreting Rural Life in the Central Midwest" at the Sixth International Congress of Agricultural Museums, held in Stockholm and Julita, Sweden, in September. Hawes' paper focused on methods of research and interpretive planning for dealing with social contexts in outdoor museums, and utilized materials developed through a grant made by the National Endowment for the Humanities to Sangamon State for the Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum. The paper will be published in a future issue of Acta Museorum Agriculturae (Prague).

Hawes was also re-elected to another three-year term on the President — the 10-member governing board of the ICAM.

In November Hawes attended a meeting of the Midwest Outdoor Museums Coordinating Council held in Green Bay, Wis., Hawes, who serves as council vice president, took part in a panel discussion on recent trends in interpretation.

Janardan originally presented the paper at the International NATO Advanced Study Institute held in Italy at the University of Trieste during July and August, 1980.

The paper was written in conjunction with David Schaeffer of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and Russel DuFrain of Oak Ridge Associated Universities, Oak Ridge, Tenn. It presents a biologically motivated model for studying variations in chromosome aberrations induced by chemical or physical means in human and animal cells. This model can provide information on the interaction of the damaging agents with the cells.

Robert J. Clement, director of financial assistance at Sangamon State, has been elected to a four-year term on the Board of Education of District 8. Clement took office on Nov. 10. He is also currently serving as facilities chairperson for the 1982 Illinois Association of Financial Aid Administrators convention, to be held in Springfield in March.

David Everson, professor of political studies and director of the University's Illinois Legislative Studies Center, is the author of "The Effects of Initiative on Voter Turnout: A Comprehensive State Analysis," which appeared in the September issue of Western Political Quarterly. He is also the author of Public Opinion and Interest Groups in American Politics, scheduled for publication by Franklin Watts in 1982. Everson spoke on "The Indirect Initiative in Illinois" to the Springfield Rotary Club in October.

Alfred Arkley, associate professor of management and public affairs, was facilitator of "The Small Group in Supervision and Training," which was presented to the student chapter of the American Society for Personnel Administrators at Millikin University in October. Arkley also facilitated a half-day workshop on "Team Building" for Junior Achievement advisers in October at the Public Affairs Center on the Sangamon State Main Campus.

John Poertner, assistant professor of child, family and community services, and Britta Harris, research associate, Center for Legal Studies, participated in a panel discussion at the 34th Annual Scientific Meeting of the Gerontological Society of America, held Nov. 8 through 12 in Toronto. The panel presented "Elder Abuse: A Policy-oriented Approach," based on the recent study of abuse and neglect of the elderly completed by Poertner, Harris and others. Also on the panel were Michelle Marcy, Marion Smith and Richard Ham of SIU School of Medicine, and Joyce Crouse of Eastern Illinois University, all participants in the study.
NAIA Tourney underway at SSU

Tickets for the 23rd annual National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Championship Soccer Tournament, to be held for the third consecutive year at Sangamon State University’s Kiwanis Field Nov. 23 through 28, are now on sale.

Sangamon State, which ended the season ranked ninth in the NAIA with a record of 13-6-3, will have an automatic bid to the tournament as the host. Teams throughout the United States and Canada are now engaged in district and area play to determine the 11 remaining participants for the 1981 tourney.

This year’s tournament will operate under a new format. As a result of a recent realignment of the NAIA’s soccer areas from eight to 11, the field has been expanded from 10 to 12 teams.

The national tournament field will be made up of the 11 area winners and the host Prairie Stars. The championship format will consist of round robin play in four separate pools of three teams, with the four bracket winners advancing to the semifinal round.

The pre-tournament Hall of Fame Banquet was held Sunday, Nov. 22 at 6:30 p.m. in SSU’s Public Affairs Center. Round robin play began at 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 23, with a match on Kiwanis Field. A second match began at 10:15 a.m. on the field adjacent to the stadium. The Parade of Champions, the official opening day ceremonies, took place on Kiwanis Field at 12:30 p.m. They were followed immediately by the beginning of afternoon play with games at 1 and 1:15 p.m. On Tuesday, Nov. 24, and Wednesday, Nov. 25, matches will follow the same schedule.

The semifinal round will be held on Friday, Nov. 27, with matches set for 4 and 7 p.m. in the stadium. The consolation game will be played in the stadium at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 28, and the championship game will be played at 1 p.m. Saturday in the stadium. No matches are scheduled for Thanksgiving Day.

Tournament tickets are $12 for an entire family, $10 for adults, $5 for college students and $3 for fans under 18 years of age. Tickets are available at both Roberts Brothers Stores and the SSU Bursar’s Office. Single game tickets will be available at the gate.

Vision, hearing tests available

Members of the SSU community may have their vision and hearing tested free of charge on Wednesday, Dec. 2. Vision testing will be done from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Hearing tests will be conducted from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Learning Center. Appointments are not necessary. All screening will be done on a first-come, first-served basis.

Each vision test takes 15 to 20 minutes. Hearing tests take from 5 to 10 minutes. If a problem is identified, the person will be re-screened at a later date and referred to a specialist according to need.

Sangamon State University
Springfield, Illinois 62708
PAC on cover of telephone directories

Sangamon State University’s Public Affairs Center is featured on the cover of approximately 60,000 Springfield-area telephone directories to be delivered after Dec. 1.

The PAC was chosen to be illustrated on the cover because it is a local representation of the theme Illinois Bell is using for directories throughout the state — “Discover the Magnificent Resources of Illinois.” P. Tim González, manager of the Springfield Residence Service Center, said, “The theme was selected to encourage location of new businesses in the state.”

The fact that Illinois is the nation’s industrial center, linked to the rest of the country and the world by a network of transportation and telecommunication systems, is pointed out on the back of the directory. It is also noted that Illinois is first in agricultural exports; rich in energy resources; a leader in manufacturing such diverse products as heavy industrial and farm equipment, steel, electronics, candies, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics.

“The strengths of Illinois are reinforced by its excellent, diversified university system,” points out the concluding paragraph. “The Public Affairs Center of Sangamon State University exemplifies this system. It represents a successful blending of academic study with service to the community...a center for both public affairs activities and for the performing arts. On five levels, it houses a nine-room Conference Center, a 2,000-seat auditorium, an attractive atrium lounge, dining facilities, classrooms and offices. The Public Affairs Center was officially dedicated in March, 1981.”

González presented a framed copy of the directory cover to SSU President Alex B. Lacy, Jr., University Relations Director Gail Lutz, and Public Affairs Center Manager John D. Kennedy in the Atrium Lounge Nov. 23. This framed commemorative will be displayed in the reception area of the office of the president on the fifth floor of the PAC.

The directory cover and the Public Affairs Center were the subjects of a column by business writer Dan Cronin, which appeared in The State Journal Register on Sunday, Nov. 29.

Spring registration

Spring Semester registration will be held Jan. 15, 16 and 18 in Brookens Concourse. Course schedules and further information are available from the Office of Admissions and Records, 786-6626. Classes begin Jan. 18.

Note: The University will be closed Dec. 25-Jan. 3.
SSU student Ryan honored as Lincoln Academy laureate

Sangamon State University student Steve Ryan was among 53 students from colleges and universities around Illinois who were recognized as Lincoln Academy Student Laureates for 1981 at ceremonies held Nov. 21 in the House of Representatives Chamber of the Capitol Building.

Gov. James R. Thompson presented each student with the Medallion of Lincoln and a $100 honorarium. The program included a performance by the Springfield Symphony Orchestra and was followed by a luncheon hosted by Gov. and Mrs. Thompson at the executive mansion.

Ryan, a Springfield native, is pursuing a bachelor’s degree in Creative Arts with an emphasis on ceramics. A graduate of Lincoln Land Community College, he works as a studio assistant at Sangamon State. Following graduation, Ryan plans to work as a production potter, eventually pursuing a master’s degree in ceramics and teaching. A former United States Marine, Ryan is married and has four children.

The Lincoln Academy was created in 1965 as a private, nonprofit, nonpartisan organization to honor present and former citizens of Illinois whose contributions to the betterment of humanity have brought honor to the state in the tradition of Abraham Lincoln. The Student Laureate Award Program was founded in 1975 by Geraldine Freund, a regent of the academy, to honor overall excellence by those in Illinois’ institutes of higher education.

Student laureates are chosen by the chief executive officer of each four-year, degree-granting college and university in Illinois. Selections are made on the basis of academic achievement, extracurricular activities, the ability to overcome obstacles in order to achieve goals, and overall contribution to the school in the course of obtaining an education.

Heinecke scholarship goes to Penner

The Burnell Heinecke Illinois Legislative Correspondents Association Scholarship was awarded Dec. 9 to Sangamon State University graduate student Diana G. Penner, a former reporter and news editor of Southern Illinois University’s campus paper, the Daily Egyptian.

The 23-year-old Penner holds the B.S. in journalism from SIU-Carbondale. While an SIU student, she was also editor of the Southern Journalist, an alumni newspaper of the SIU Journalism Department, and worked as an intern for United Press International. Following graduation in 1980, she worked as a reporter-writer for the Jackson Sun, Jackson, Tenn.

Penner — a student in SSU’s Public Affairs Reporting Program — says her professional goal is to work as a reporter for a large metropolitan daily newspaper or a wire service, focusing on public affairs reporting.

She is the third recipient of the Heinecke scholarship, which was awarded at a reception in the home of Sangamon State President Alex B. Lacy, Jr. The scholarship was established in 1979 in Heinecke’s honor by the Illinois Legislative Correspondents Association. He is a former president of the ILCA.

A reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times for 23 years, Heinecke was the newspaper’s first year-around legislative correspondent in Springfield. In more recent years, he operated his own news service and he is now the administrative assistant to State Treasurer Jerry Cosentino.

Four AAUW awards given

Four Sangamon State University students have been named recipients of scholarships awarded by the Springfield branch of the American Association of University Women.

Rosella Young of Illiopolis was awarded the Mary Gene Hall scholarship, and Anne Archer Schuering of Springfield was awarded the Sandra G. Hockenyos scholarship. Cathy Coughlin and Brenda Swartz, both of Springfield, were selected to receive two unnamed scholarships.

The AAUW scholarship funds were established by the Springfield branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,200 fund, the first scholarship fund to be established at Sangamon State 11 years ago, is financed with proceeds from AAUW’s annual community Christmas House Tour.
Professor leads group to Greece

During Spring Semester break — from March 12 to 21, 1982 — Professor of Literature Dennis Camp and his wife, Trula, will lead a group of students on a tour of Greece. The group will visit Athens, Delphi, Olympia, Mycenae, Epidaurus, Corinth and some of the islands.

One package price includes all travel to and from Springfield, all accommodations and two meals per day. For full details contact Camp at Brookens 388, phone 786-6778.

Although Sangamon State students will be given first preference, anyone from the campus or the greater Springfield communities is welcome to join the group.

Rehabilitation counseling accepted

The rehabilitation counseling emphasis within Sangamon State University’s Human Development Counseling program has received preliminary accreditation status with the Council on Rehabilitation Education, Inc. Council headquarters in Chicago notified the program of its acceptance in October.

Preliminary status will continue through the 1983-84 academic year, during which time CORE will monitor the program’s progress annually.

Three traineeships are also available for full time graduate students in rehabilitation counseling during the Spring Semester. The positions pay a modest stipend, plus partial tuition costs. Interested students should contact Jack Genskow, associate professor of human development counseling, at 786-6504.

Operations research workshop repeated

A second session of the workshop, "Operations Research Techniques in Local and State Government," is scheduled for Jan. 27 and 28 in the Public Affairs Center. Led by Rassule Hadidi, assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs, the workshop will concentrate on planning, decision making and control of projects rather than on their mathematical derivations.

Enrollment is limited to 15 and participants may earn continuing education credit by completing the workshop. Contact the Office of Continuing Education, 217/786-6073, for further information or to register.

Media courses on opera and American Indian history offered

Sangamon State University’s Innovative and Experimental Studies Cluster will present two special courses during the Spring Semester — "Opera as Drama," an audio cassette course, and "North American Indian History," a television course.

"Opera as Drama" is a two- or four-hour course designed for the general listener. The course will examine drama as presented via the musical components of opera, from the 17th century through the present. Instructor for the course is Mark Siebert, professor of music at SSU.

The course is presented primarily on audio-cassettes, available in the Media Center at SSU’s Brookens Library and in selected public libraries. Students may listen to the tapes during normal library hours; the cassettes may not be checked out.

Supplemental readings, available at the University’s bookstore, and five on-campus discussion groups will complete the course. Campus meetings are set for Jan. 18 and May 14, from 7 to 9 p.m.

"North American Indian History" is offered in cooperation with Times-Mirror Cable TV and will be broadcast over Cable Channel 6 on Monday evenings beginning Jan. 25.

This 15-week, two-credit-hour course will study the impact of European and American domination over the native people and cultures of North America, emphasizing the conflicts and struggles for cultural and personal survival. The program series, "Views on American Indian History," prepared by the American West Center of the University of Utah, will be used.

Among the topics to be examined in the course are: Spanish influence on the Indians of the Americas; the American Indians and the European colonies up to 1776; American Indian displacement and resettlement; the Plains Indians in the United States experience; and the American Indian experience in the far Southwest.

Supplementary reading materials, available at the University’s bookstore, and five on-campus discussion groups will complete the course. Campus meetings are scheduled for Wednesdays, 6:30-10 p.m., Jan. 20, Feb. 17, March 24, April 21 and May 12.
PAC exhibit features five U.S. painters

Five American painters are featured in Sangamon State University’s Painting Invitational Exhibition now on display in the Public Affairs Center on the main campus. The exhibit will continue through Jan. 4 in the main concourse on the building’s first level.

Boggs, a graduate of the University of Illinois, has exhibited his fanciful, three-dimensional paintings in numerous shows including the Illinois State Fair Professional Exhibition. Marleen Gold received her bachelor of fine arts degree from Kansas City Art Institute. Her landscapes demonstrate a concern for structure and light and have been shown widely in the Kansas City area.

Gold’s work is shown by the Bedyk Gallery in Kansas City.

Della Henke paints highly individualized, figurative works, frequently on raw canvas. A graduate of the University of Iowa, he is also a craftsman printer producing limited edition, hand-made books. Both Knoll and Schley also publish handmade books in addition to painting. Knoll received his master of fine arts degree from the University of Iowa where he teaches papermaking.

Schley, also a graduate of the University of Iowa, paints rich, expressionistic works with oil on paper. His paintings demonstrate elements of the fauvist style and a concern for sensuous surfaces.

Immigrant children photos on display

“And They Call Us a Problem?: The Immigrant Child, 1890 to 1930,” an exhibit of photographs produced by the National Park Service’s American Museum of Immigration, will be on display at Sangamon State University’s Public Affairs Center through Dec. 30.

This touring exhibition is from a collection of photographs of immigrant children taken by master photographer August Sherman from 1892 to 1925 while he was employed at Ellis Island. The exhibition depicts the spirit of the two-and-a-half million children who came to this country during the peak years of immigration: courage, fear, innocence and pride all surface in the young faces.

Andrea Temple, photographer for the Statue of Liberty National Monument, selected and rephotographed the pictures, which are part of the official collection of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The exhibit is on display in the concourse on the first level of the building. It is free and open to the public during normal business hours.

Gerontology Institute set

Sangamon State University’s Eighth Annual Gerontology Institute has been scheduled for three weekend sessions in April. Prominent scholars and practitioners from around the country will serve as lecturers and discussion group leaders for sessions examining: “Medicine and the Aging Process,” April 2 and 3; “Health Care Needs of Special Aged Populations,” April 16 and 17; and “Health Care Settings and the Aged,” April 30 and May 1.

Students interested in attending the institute are encouraged to enroll in PAC 453, Myths and Realities of Aging, during registration for the Spring Semester in order to be assured of a place. The course carries two semester hours of credit. In addition to attending the institute, students will be required to attend three classroom sessions and prepare a formal paper.

Regular registration for the 1982 Spring Semester will be Jan. 15, 16 and 18 in Brookens Concourse on the Main Campus.

Admissions at Capital Campus

The Sangamon State University Office of Admissions and Records has established a permanent office at the University’s Capital Campus, the Land Building at Sixth and Capitol Streets in Springfield. An admissions officer from SSU will be at the office to answer questions and provide information four days each week.

The new office will operate between 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays, and between 3 and 6 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. While appointments are not necessary, students may call 786-6626 to schedule specific times for interviews.

Applications for admission, financial assistance, class schedules and general information about SSU will be available at the Capital Campus office.

Seniors may use mail registration

Persons 62 years of age and older wishing to participate in Sangamon State University’s Senior Learner Program during the Spring Semester may register for courses by mail.

To obtain the necessary registration materials, contact Carole Kennerly at SSU’s Office of Continuing Education. Senior learners’ registration for spring courses must be received at the University’s Office of the Bursar before Jan. 18, 1982.

Seniors participating in the program pay a $10 fee per semester. That fee covers parking, use of Brookens Library, and allows the senior to audit courses offered by the University. Though academic credit is not awarded in the Senior Learner Program, continuing education credit may be given.

For more information call Kennerly at 786-6073.

Holiday building use limited

As in previous years, use of campus buildings will be limited during the holiday closing. All members of the University community are asked to cooperate by not using their offices during the time the University is closed.

From 10 a.m. on Dec. 24 until 7 a.m. on Jan. 4, thermostats in all campus buildings — except for certain operational areas including WSSR space in building I, and Public Safety offices in building C — will be set at 55 degrees. Temperatures in building K will be kept at 60 degrees. If heating above 55 degrees is required in other areas, please contact Dick Williams, director of physical planning and operations, at 786-6530.

Anyone who must visit his or her office during the break should wear warm clothing and cooperate as much as possible with conservation measures.

A skeleton physical plant crew will work during the holidays, and the campus will be patrolled by public safety officers. In the event of snow, the Perimeter Road and service access areas will be cleared. Parking lots and sidewalks will be cleared to a very limited extent.
Astronomy brings ambitious teens to SSU

While many youngsters their age contentedly sit and gaze at the stars in wonder, Kent Biggs of Petersburg and Craig Crawford of Springfield are diligently laying groundwork for what they hope will be fruitful careers in the field of astronomy.

The two teens discovered at an early age that the study of celestial bodies was interesting and exciting, and both chose astronomy as a hobby.

Biggs was just seven when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Biggs, bought him his first book on astronomy. He "read that book from cover to cover several times and became hooked."

Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Crawford, Jr., "really started to get interested in astronomy" as a result of a grade school science class at St. Aloysius, although his mother pointed out that he was familiar with the stars, planets and constellations even before that.

The pursuit of their astronomical hobbies eventually led both boys to Sangamon State University's Observatory — Biggs to participate in one of the Observatory's regular Friday night Star Parties, and Crawford to observe a lunar eclipse in 1979 — and to the attention of Charles Schweighauser, director of the Observatory.

Impressed by their interest and knowledge, Schweighauser, a professor of environmental studies, encouraged the two to enroll in formal astronomy courses offered at SSU. The boys jumped at the opportunity. Crawford took his first course, "The Solar System" in the summer of 1980 and followed that last winter with "Astrophotography." Biggs started off with "Introduction to Astronomy" and intends to take "Astrophotography" in the fall of 1983.

Not many youngsters have college courses credited to their high school transcripts before their junior year, so it is a tribute to the dedication and interest of the two boys that they have been able to successfully complete the courses at such a young age (Biggs is a sophomore at Calvary Academy and Crawford is a sophomore at Griffin High School).

But Biggs gives the credit to Schweighauser. "Professor Schweighauser is a very patient and understanding teacher," said Kent. "He explains everything in detail and at a level I am able to understand."

The college courses have broadened and refined the boys' interest and both are now developing their own home observatories. In the mean time, the two have turned their hobbies into exciting part-time jobs helping Schweighauser in the Observatory during the weekly Star Parties.

The hands-on contact each has had over the past two years has convinced them that astronomy is a field they wish to pursue in the future.

Crawford, an honor student, vice president of the chess club and an Eagle Scout candidate, said, "I intend to go into some form of astronomy, but I'm not sure exactly what." However he has a keen interest in astrophotography, and is busy developing a mount to enable him to take high quality photos through his own telescope.

Biggs, on the other hand, is very interested in computer science and spectroscopy, the study of the optical spectra to determine wavelengths of the component waves, and is interested in the possibilities of combining the two areas.

All this may sound like heavy subject matter for 10th-graders, but Biggs and Crawford are not typical 10th graders. While each has many of the same interests their friends and classmates have — sports, fun, social life — you won't find either of these two sitting around starry-eyed. Kent and Craig are too busy gazing at the stars scientifically.

Richard Judd, associate professor of management, and Robert Maurath, associate professor of accountancy, coordinated and presented a series of small business workshops during October and November. The workshops - produced in conjunction with the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, the Service Corps of Retired Executives and the U.S. Small Business Administration - were presented through the University's Office of Continuing Education. Some 191 participants from throughout Central Illinois attended.

During October Judd also addressed sessions of the Public Relations Society's Professional Development Workshop on "Decision Making in Organizations." The program was held at Sangamon State.

He presented "Perspectives on Productivity in a Sullshig Economy" to the Region V (Midwest) Small Business Administration and SBI Directors' Annual Conference, held in Chicago. At that meeting, Judd was elected treasurer of the organization.

Judd and Lee Rathbun of Arthur Young, Inc., presented a one-hour seminar on "Technological Awareness" at the Office Products Trade Fair held at the Prairie Capital Convention Center.

Judd is also the author of "Financial Concerns and Business Strategies During Inflation/Recession," which appeared in the October edition of The Journal of Small Business Management.

Co-author of the article was Chan H. Lee, former faculty member in the SSU Management Program.

Jeffer Van Davis, was shown as a special event at the annual convention of the Modern Language Association, held in New York City in December. Michael Lennon, associate professor of literature at Sangamon State, served as Mailer's interviewer in the film and also participated in a panel discussion of the film following the screening.

Harry J. Berman, assistant professor of child, family and community services at Sangamon State, presented a paper entitled "Setting Training Priorities: A Statewide Training Needs Assessment" at the annual meeting of the Gerontological Society, held in Toronto in November.

K. G. Janardan, professor of mathematical systems at Sangamon State University, is the co-author of "Threshold Estimation from the Linear Dose-Response Model: Method and Radiation Data," which appeared in the December issue of Environmental Management. The paper was written in conjunction with David Schaeffer of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and Harold W. Kerster of California State University.

Alfred Arkley, associate professor of management and public affairs, was a panelist in a roundtable discussion of "Academics in Government: Implications for Academic Theory and Policy" at the annual meeting of the Northeastern Political Science Association, held in Newark, N.J., in November.

Stuart Anderson, professor of administration at Sangamon State University, is the author of "Lifestyles/Personal Health Care in Different Occupations," which appears in the December issue of the NASSP Bulletin. The Bulletin is published by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Jeanne Marie Col, associate professor of public administration, co-chaired a Round Table on Africa at the November conference on American foreign policy held at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Col recently returned from a conference in Uganda where she presented a paper on the problems of reconstructing that country's rural infrastructure and administration. She presented the paper and answered questions in a recent informal lecture given to an interdisciplinary group of students and faculty members at SSU.

Gerlinde Coates, foreign student adviser at Sangamon State University, recently made a presentation at the National Association of Foreign Student Affairs Region V Conference in DeKalb. Coates shared a videotape developed at SSU entitled "The International Student Speaks Out: A Forum for Sharing" and took part in a panel discussion of "Cultural Factors in Adjustment."

"Yuletide Carols," a set of three a capella choral works by Jerry Troxell, associate professor of music, was performed during the holiday season at three St. Louis-area churches. His setting of "O Come, O Come Emmanuel" was performed at the Church of St. Michael and St. George in Clayton on Dec. 6, and his setting of "He Came All So Still" was performed along with the "Emmanuel" at the Salem United Methodist Church in Ladue on Dec. 13. Also on the 13th all three works were featured in a "Festival of Lessons and Carols" at Pilgrim Congregational Church in St. Louis. The works, on traditional texts, are for a chorus of men's and women's voices and were completed last spring.

Jeffrey Chesky, assistant professor of gerontology, and Marc Travis, graduate student in the Biology Program, presented a paper entitled "Aging Myocardium-Adaptation to Physical Training" at the Gerontological Society of America meeting held in Toronto on Nov. 9. The paper was a summary of two years of research activity at Sangamon State.

Robert Spencer, professor of government and public affairs at Sangamon State University, recently presented a lecture on "The American Founders' Intent: Reflections on the American Revolution" as part of an evening lecture series at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. The series concerns examples of mental illness in literature and is sponsored by SIU's departments of psychiatry and medical humanities.
Lidster receives MVP award at reception

SSU President Alex B. Lacy, Jr., presented the Osborn Most Valuable Player Award to sweeperback George Lidster, who also was recognized as an honorable mention in the NAIA’s 1981 All-America Team balloting.

The Most Improved Player Award went to forward Dave Korbel, while Chuck White received the Sportsmanship Award.

Eusebio “Bebo” Lopez was recognized for being voted to the NAIA’s second All-America Team, and all members of the 81 Prairie Stars received plaques.

Lidster, who came highly recommended at the beginning of the year as one of the best soccer prospects in London, England, lived up to his pre-season billing. The junior was the backbone of the defense and the most experienced player for the Stars. Lidster also was the fourth highest point producer, with seven goals and three assists for a total of 10 points.

Although diminutive at 5-foot-3, Korbel at forward was considered the team’s sparkplug who gave 100 percent throughout the season. He produced three goals and six assists to be the fifth highest point producer of the year. Head Coach Aydin Gonulsen said he showed “tremendous improvement during his senior year.”

Junior Chuck White was a coach’s delight. Although coming off the bench during most of the season, his extremely good attitude gave the Stars fine support. White played junior college soccer at Lincoln Land Community College.

Lopez at stopperback helped Lidster provide a thoroughly stubborn defense throughout ’81—“an extremely competitive player for two years for us,” said Coach Gonulsen. Last year Lopez transferred to SSU from Miami-Dade Community College-South, where he contributed to a junior college national championship.

Copy for the Jan. 20 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Jan. 11.

Aydin O. Gonulsen, Sangamon State University's athletic director and head coach of the Prairie Stars soccer team, has been named National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics 1980 Soccer Coach of the Year.

The award was presented Sunday, Nov. 22, during the NAIA's annual Hall of Fame Banquet marking the kick-off of the 1981 National Soccer Championships, held Nov. 23 to 28 at Sangamon State.

Now in his fifth year at SSU, Gonulsen, 38, led his Prairie Stars to a 1980 record of 19 wins, 3 losses and 1 tie, good for a seventh place finish in the 1980 national tournament. His 1981 squad compiled a 13 win, 6 loss and 3 tie record, and appeared in the 1981 tournament. Gonulsen's overall record at Sangamon State is 74 wins, 30 losses and 5 ties.

In addition to this national honor, Gonulsen was selected NAIA District 20 and NAIA Area 3 Coach of the Year for 1980.

Gonulsen has 30 years of playing experience plus 14 years of coaching, promoting, organizing and administering soccer programs. He is one of the founders of soccer in Springfield and was instrumental in getting soccer recognized at the high school and junior college level in the city.

A National Junior College Athletic Association All-America soccer player at Warren Wilson College in 1963 and 1964, Gonulsen is a member of the National Soccer Coaches Association and the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America. He holds the B. A. in social studies from Pikeville College, Pikeville, Ky., and the M. A. in Recreational Administration from Sangamon State University.

SSU Head Coach Aydin Gonulsen was named National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Coach of the Year for 1980. The award was presented during the Hall of Fame Banquet kicking off this year's national soccer tournament. Presenting the award to Gonulsen is Doug Burke, chairman of the NAIA tournament game committee.

Library hours

Sangamon State University's Brookens Library will be open according to the following schedule during semester break: Monday, Dec. 21 through Thursday, Dec. 24 — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday, Dec. 25 through Sunday, Jan. 3 — CLOSED; Monday, Jan. 4 through Saturday, Jan. 16 — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sundays, Jan. 10 and 17 — 2 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Convocom awarded start-up grant

Convocom, the West Central Illinois Educational Telecommunications Corporation, has received a $559,000 grant from the National Telecommunications and Information Administration of the United States Department of Commerce. The grant, to be matched by $186,000 in local funds, will cover the cost of equipment needed to implement a telecommunications network for educational, cultural and public affairs programming to serve west central Illinois and parts of Missouri and Iowa.

Announcement of the grant was made Jan. 15 by Rep. Paul Findley (R-20th), who was instrumental in gaining its approval.

Convocom is a consortium of Illinois colleges and universities: Sangamon State University in Springfield, Bradley University in Peoria, Western Illinois University in Macomb, Illinois College in Jacksonville and Black Hawk Community College in Moline. WTVP, Peoria's community-owned public television station, is also a functioning part of the system.

Chartered in 1976, the corporation's main goal is to expand and extend public television service to two million people living in a 32,000 square-mile region encompassing west central Illinois, northeastern Missouri and southeastern Iowa. This region constitutes the most populous demographic unit in the U.S. not yet having its own public television stations.

Convocom will offer a wide range of program services: college courses for credit; in-depth coverage of state government; reports dealing with community issues; cultural and public affairs programs for general audiences — plays, ballets, concerts, documentaries, sports events; and continuing education for professionals.

The corporation will operate through television stations: WTVP, channel 47, Peoria; WJPT, channel 14, Jacksonville; WQPT, channel 24, Quad Cities; channel 22, Macomb; channel 27, Quincy; and several translators located in the region.

The stations will be linked by a two-way microwave network, to be used to tie in studios at Bradley, Western Illinois, Black Hawk, Illinois College and Sangamon State. The system will have technical facilities designed to distribute materials throughout the region either directly to homes or workplaces, or at specific locations such as classrooms, hospitals and public libraries.

In addition, the network will permit the flow of materials into many local cable TV systems, and will have the capability of originating programs in the field via portable camera/recording equipment. Public radio stations in the region will also be able to exchange programs at very low cost over the network.

Utilizing a satellite terminal already in place at WTVP in Peoria, Convocom will provide national programs from the Public Broadcasting System.

The grant and matching funds, totalling $745,000, will be used to purchase equipment necessary to provide simultaneous audio, video and data communication between and among the principal consortium members.

The corporation hopes to have the entire network operating within one year of the grant announcement. The first phase — linking Macomb, Canton, Peoria, Lincoln, Springfield and Jacksonville — should be on the air by fall 1982. Phase two — adding Quincy, Carthage and the Quad Cities to the network — should be operational by spring 1983.

United Way drive sets SSU record

The 1981 United Way drive at Sangamon State University totaled $19,565. The University's goal for the year was $19,115.

Cullom Davis, Leroy Jordan and Carole Fee McHugh — coordinators of this year's campus drive — noted that this was the largest contribution the University had ever made to the United Way. It is "evidence that the University is a responsible community neighbor," they said.
SSU student invited to science meeting

Timothy Brown, an undergraduate student in Sangamon State University’s Physical Sciences Program, was selected to attend the 1982 meeting of the Solar Physics Division of the American Astronomical Society, held in Boulder, Col., Jan. 11 through 14.

Brown was the only undergraduate among the five students selected nationally for the honor.

In addition to the invitation, Brown received a $500 cash award to offset travel and living expenses while at the meeting, and a one-year subscription to the Division’s Solar Physics Journal.

The SPD Student Award is presented annually to outstanding college students in all fields of science who are interested in pursuing careers in solar physics. Brown, a senior majoring in physics and astronomy, said he has a keen interest in the sun and in solar-terrestrial relationships and has been observing and filming solar phenomena using telescopes available in Sangamon State’s Observatory.

Brown said his interest in solar physics began in 1975. “What I find most intriguing about the sun is its many sources of phenomena which can influence the earth. For example, the development of an active region which may produce a flare and which then may be great enough to produce effects upon the earth such as communication disruption or geomagnetic storms.”

As an undergraduate research paper, Brown has been cataloguing major sun flares since 1966 and relating those flares to effects on earth. He hopes to establish a method of predicting the occurrence of major geomagnetic storms using the data he collects.

Participants sought for OR conference

Sangamon State University’s Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation will convene a one-day conference on Operations Research Applications on April 28 to examine the applications of OR methods in state and local agency activities. Participants are being sought in a number of areas:

To present papers which explore OR techniques, problems of application, results of analyses utilizing OR approaches, etc. (Papers may be case studies or generalized analytic pieces.)

To make a brief issue presentation as part of a panel discussion of OR applications.

To serve as a resource person in providing panel reaction.

To attend as an interested participant, sharing ideas and experiences and hearing presentations.

Proposals for papers, panel presentations and discussants are encouraged and should be submitted no later than Feb. 1 to: Rassule Ha-didi, Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation, Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL 62708; telephone 217/786-6576.

Proposals will be evaluated within three weeks of receipt. Specific topics, papers and discussants will be listed in a preliminary program to be available in March.

Study shows transportation savings

Springfield consumers could save $18 million in transportation costs, according to a study completed by the Springfield Energy Project. The results of the study were released during a news conference held on Dec. 18 at the Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce conference room.

Al Casella, director of the SEP, and Bill Warren, author of the transportation study, both associate professors in Sangamon State University’s Environmental Studies Program, presented data showing that Springfield residents could save 14.4 million gallons of gasoline — a savings of $18 million — through transportation efficiency.

The transportation study was designed to assess the consumption of gasoline and diesel fuel for the average trip to and from work in Springfield and looks at possible fuel saving scenarios for small cars, ride-sharing, mass transit and control of urban sprawl.

Jack Lanich, director of the Springfield Mass Transit District, was also on hand to answer questions about mass transit and energy conservation.

Illinois Issues gets grant for series

Illinois Issues, Sangamon State University’s magazine of Illinois politics and government, has recently been awarded a $14,000 grant from the Louis Ancel Charitable Trust for a series of articles on the “new federalism.”

Two in-depth articles will be written for the magazine by Thomas Anton, professor of political science at the Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Anton is the author of The Politics of State Expenditures and Moving Money, and is recognized as an expert on intergovernmental fiscal issues.

Using a computerized data system at the University of Michigan, Anton will analyze Illinois as a supporter and consumer of federal programs during the past five years. Also, he will project what Illinois can expect to lose in federal spending as a result of President Reagan’s proposed fiscal policies. The computerized system will allow Anton to examine the state county by county and identify which areas of Illinois will be hit hardest by the cut-backs.

Louis Ancel, senior partner in the Chicago law firm of Ancel, Glink, Diamond, Murphy and Cope, serves on the board of directors of Illinois Issues.

The articles, accompanied by several complementary pieces, will appear in the magazine in the spring of 1982.
New bill allows no-penalty early retirement

This segment of the State Universities Retirement System series concerns the Early Retirement Without Discount program. Questions should be addressed to the SURS staff members listed below or to Gloria Casey in the SSU Accounting Office, 786-6727. You may write to the SURS at 50 Gerty Drive, Champaign, IL 61820.

Governor Thompson has approved House Bill 289 which allows for early retirement without the one-half of one percent per month reduction in your retirement annuity.

To be eligible to retire under this bill you must have at least eight, but not more than 35 years of service credit, and be at least 55, but not more than 60 years old. You must also retire within six months of the last day you are on payroll and make a one-time lump sum payment to the Retirement System. This obligates your employer to also make a one-time payment to the Retirement System. The payments by you and your employer will be a percentage of your last full-time annual salary rate, or if not full-time, the full-time equivalent, based upon your age at retirement.

Assuming your last annual salary is $15,000 and you are 57, you would make a one-time payment of 21 percent of $15,000 ($3,150), while your employer would make a one-time payment of 60 percent of $15,000 ($9,000). You must actually be the age in question. If you are 57 years and 11 months, you would make a payment based upon age 57 and not age 58.

Assume you have a four year average salary of $13,800 and you have 22 years of service credit in the Retirement System and are age 57. If you retire under the early retirement option, your monthly retirement annuity will be $458 rather than $376. Thus, your monthly retirement annuity is increased $82 and you will recover your lump sum payment in slightly over 38 months. Please note, the lump sum payments do not add to your years of service credit, they only eliminate the reduction for retiring prior to age 60 with less than 35 years of service credit.

The life of the Early Retirement Option is from Sept. 8, 1981 (date HB 289 was signed by Governor Thompson) through June 30, 1987. From now through May 31, 1982, the number of persons who can retire under this bill may be limited to any number by your employer. Beginning June 1, 1982, through June 30, 1987, the number of persons who can retire under this bill may be limited by your employer to no less than 15 percent of those eligible. The right to retire under this bill shall be allocated based on your seniority with your employer, and not on your service credit in the Retirement System.

Until June 1, 1982, an employer does not have to let anyone retire under the Early Retirement Option. After June 1, 1982, if an employer has 90 people who qualify for early retirement, at least 14 individuals must be allowed to elect the option. Your employer may allow more than 15 percent of those eligible to retire using the Early Retirement Option.

Any questions you have regarding the Early Retirement Without Discount should be addressed to SURS staff members Bill Jackson or Jim Beedie at 217/333-3860.

Copy for the Feb. 5 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than Jan. 27.
Performing arts series begins Jan. 30

Subscriptions for the Spring Performing Arts Series in the Auditorium of Sangamon State University's Public Affairs Center are on sale now.

The series, the second offered in the Auditorium, begins Saturday, Jan. 30, with a performance by the Ririe-Woodbury Dance Company, a professional modern dance troupe which has built a strong international reputation for its exceptional work.

The national touring company of the Off-Broadway musical hit "One Mo' Time" comes to the Auditorium stage Thursday, Feb. 11. A joyful re-creation of the New Orleans of the Roaring '20s, the show features a collection of red-hot jazz, sultry blues and spicy ragtime.

Classical pianist Alan Marks will perform on Friday, Feb. 26. Recognized as one of the premier artists of his generation, Marks has played with leading orchestras around the world.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Leonard Slatkin, will appear in the Auditorium on Friday, April 30. The 100-member organization, the nation's second oldest major orchestra, will perform works by Dvorak and Tchaikovsky. Sergiu Luca will appear as guest violinist.

All series performances are at 8 p.m.

As a special option to series subscribers, tickets for the smash Broadway musical "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" may be ordered with the series. The play, to be presented at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 4, is sold out; however there is a waiting list for tickets. Call 786-6160.

Series subscriptions are priced at $39 for orchestra/loge, $35 for mezzanine and $27 for balcony seats. Tickets for the optional play are $15 for orchestra/loge, $14 for mezzanine and $12 for balcony. Individual tickets for series events are also on sale now.

For ticket information contact the SSU Ticket Office, 217/786-6160. For a descriptive brochure on the spring series contact the PAC Manager's Office, 217/786-6150.
Legislative interns part of SSU's special mandate

Sangamon State University, through its Legislative Studies Center, is responsible for the placement and academic training of a number of full-time graduate interns with the Illinois State Legislature and with private organizations who lobby with the legislature. This year there are 12 SSU students serving with legislative staffs through the Illinois Legislative Staff Intern Program, which is sponsored by the Illinois Legislative Council.

There are also individual interns sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Illinois and the Joint Committee on Administrative Rules. All of these programs began Oct. 1. In January and February internships sponsored by the Illinois State Bar Association and the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers will also begin. These students will work full time in their placements through the middle or end of July.

By developing, coordinating and directing these intern programs, SSU is able to directly aid the state legislature and improve the legislative process. Each new group of interns — bright, talented people who might not have otherwise become involved with state government — brings a challenge and a stimulus to the staffs that they join. The tasks of providing the academic training and coordinating these programs require the members of the Legislative Studies Center to be highly involved and visible at the legislature. The resulting partnership between the legislature and SSU is in the best tradition of the University’s public service mandate.

Through these internships, the students are able to pursue graduate studies and research while observing and becoming actively involved in the operation of the Illinois General Assembly. For persons pursuing a public service career or a private sector career related to government, being an intern provides skill, experience and insight which allows them to function effectively in governmental settings. For the person seeking an advanced or professional degree being an intern provides direct experience in the political process within the context of an academic seminar. All interns receive $750-800 per month in stipends and four to eight hours of graduate credit for their internships.

Each year at the end of their internships, a number of students take full time positions with their sponsors. Former interns have gone on to become state legislators, state agency directors, legislative staff members, representatives of business associations and attorneys in practices related to state government. Others have pursued advanced academic degrees.

The application deadline for the Legislative Staff Internship is March 1, 1982. Program information and application forms may be obtained from: Kent Redfield, Associate Director, Legislative Studies Center, PAC 466, Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL 62704; telephone 217/786-6602.

-- Staff

James W. Johnson, coordinator of the Minority Services Center at Sangamon State University, conducted a Drama Education Workshop at Pleasant Grove Baptist Church on Jan. 10, and has been asked to speak on the role of the minority service center at Gateway House on Feb. 1.

The invitation to present the drama education workshop was a direct result of Johnson’s involvement in cultural outreach efforts in Springfield’s minority community, particularly a performance by the Katherine Dunham African Dance Troupe and the Just Us Ensemble’s performance of “A Day of Absence.” “A Day of Absence,” a play by Douglas Turner Ward, was presented Dec. 11 in Brookens Auditorium by a cast of SSU students and community people. It was the first in a series of cultural programs planned by the ensemble and the Minority Services Center.

Johnson was also honored at a recent luncheon recognizing previous recipients of Western Illinois University’s Alumni Achievement Awards. Johnson received the award in 1974; the luncheon marked his continuing achievement as well as his accomplishments as founding director of the WIU Gwendolyn Brooks Cultural Center.

Rebecca S. Douglass, director of the East Central Network for Curriculum Coordination/Illinois Vocational Curriculum Center located at Sangamon State University, was a participant at the 75th annual American Vocational Association convention held recently in Atlanta. Douglass’ main presentation was entitled “A Curriculum Development Perspective” and discussed the need for curriculum and dissemination to be institutionalized into state planning.

Douglass also made a presentation on “How To Use the National Network for Curriculum Coordination in Vocational-Technical Education” and gave an NNCCVTE status report.

Douglass has just finished a two-year term as chairperson of the NNCCVTE.

Stuart Anderson, professor of administration at Sangamon State, has been chosen to serve as a hearing officer in a case involving dismissal of a tenured Cook County high school teacher. The State Board of Education prepares lists of approved hearing officers. Anderson is also a member of the American Arbitration Association.

The Sangamon Consort, SSU’s early music ensemble, performed in the ballroom of the Dana-Thomas House on Dec. 12 during the annual house tour sponsored by the American Association of University Women. Mark Siebert, professor of music, directed the madrigal group and recorder ensemble in a program of French Renaissance music.

Richard Judd, associate professor of management at Sangamon State University, addressed the Springfield chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors at their Dec. 4 meeting. Judd’s topic was “From Financial to Operational Auditing Within a State Agency.” The presentation focused on criteria for evaluation of audit findings and organizational politics which develop after operational auditing is introduced into an agency.

Judd is the author of two papers recently accepted for presentation and publication. “Are There Viable Approaches for Improving Productivity for Small and Intermediate-Sized Firms?” has been accepted for the 1982 Southwestern Small Business Conference, to be held in Dallas. “An MBO Approach for Entrepreneurs” has been accepted for the Small Business Administration Association’s annual meeting, to be held in Chicago. Both programs are scheduled for March. A third paper, “Effects of Wage Incentives on Productivity,” is under review for inclusion in the management section of the upcoming MBAA meeting.

Brenda Harrison, former Sangamon State University student, was recently appointed lobbyist for Gov. James Thompson’s re-election campaign committee. Harrison is on leave of absence from the Illinois State Dental Society. She received the M.A. in Educational Administration from SSU in 1978.

Two more graduates of that program — John A. Marsaglia and William G. Bird III — were recently involved in career moves. Marsaglia was appointed junior high school principal in the Williamsville Community Unit School District #15. The position became vacant when Bird, who had held it for four years, resigned to accept a position in commercial sales. Marsaglia received the M.A. from SSU in 1980; Bird earned the general administrative certificate.

Education, politics are February Round Table topics

“The Politics of Education” is the topic of discussion for the next meeting of the Sangamon State Administrators’ Round Table, scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 3 at 8:30 a.m. at the Heritage House Restaurant in Springfield.

Speakers will be: Rep. Jim Reilly (R-Jacksonville); Rep. John F. Dunn (D-Decatur); Rep. Irvin F. Smith (R-Springfield); and Sen. John W. Maitland, Jr. (R-Bloomington).

The $6 registration fee includes morning coffee and rolls and lunch. Registrations must be completed by Feb. 1. For further information contact Stuart Anderson, professor of administration, Sangamon State University, 786-6306.
Markowitz aims to play for U.S. in Israel

Most soccer fans undoubtedly think that soccer is an international language.

Although fluent in both English and his native Hebrew, the goal of Sangamon State University student Israel Markowitz is to learn to speak that "international language" well enough to get back to Israel to compete for the U.S. in the 1985 Jewish Olympics, the Maccabiah Games, which are staged every four years. Markowitz and his parents emigrated to Florida from Israel in 1975.

"I'd love to return to Israel," Markowitz said, "especially as a member of the American team."

Markowitz was among 300 players who tried out for the U.S. team this year. However only 18 players and six reserves are selected for the team and he was eliminated in the finals, which were held in Long Island.

Unless he receives a bid to join a professional soccer club after graduation in the spring, Markowitz will keep in touch with U.S. coach Al Albert of The College of William and Mary in hopes of making the Maccabiah squad in 1985. Otherwise, Markowitz would like to play in Jewish Pan-American games.

Markowitz transferred to Sangamon State this fall, where he played left fullback for Coach Aydin Gonulsen’s Prairie Stars. Markowitz was one of the five defensive men who helped SSU to a season record of 13 wins against six losses and three ties. The Stars, rated among the top 10 teams in the nation throughout the 81 season, hosted the National Soccer Tournament in late November. They finished 1981 ranked ninth in the nation.

Winning soccer has become a habit for Markowitz. He was a member of the third best junior college team in the nation, playing for Miami-Dade Community College North prior to transferring to Sangamon State.

At SSU, Markowitz played in every game during the fall season, and started in each match but three. He views his role as a team player, and feels fortunate to have been a starter.

"I had to learn a new position when I came to Sangamon State because a more experienced player was at my old position," Markowitz said, adding that he felt confident with his new assignment. He scored three goals this year, although scoring is not expected of a defensive player.

The 20-year-old Markowitz became a naturalized U.S. citizen last January. Reflecting on the one month of national guard duty his father had to contribute to Israel’s defense each year before moving to the U.S., Markowitz said, "Sangamon State is very peaceful and friendly. I socialize with Arabic students as well as Americans. Several Arabic students regularly help me with my homework. There is no interracial tension here." Frequent personal attention from the faculty also helps Markowitz with his computer science curriculum.

When not busy with studies or soccer, Markowitz likes to dance, socialize and participate in numerous sports. "I run three to four miles daily just to keep in shape," he said. This winter he plans to begin teaching Hebrew at a Springfield temple.

Variety of activities offered SSU students

The Athletic and Recreation Office at Sangamon State University is sponsoring a number of activities during the upcoming months, including aerobic dance classes, a ski trip and an intramural basketball league.

Two sessions of aerobic dance classes are scheduled, from Feb. 1 through 25 and from April 5 through 29. Classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday from 7:45 p.m., or on Monday and Wednesday from 5 until 5:45 p.m. All classes will be held in the Game Room in building D. Cost is $12 for an SSU student or activity card holder and $24 for all others.

A trip to Ski Sundown in Dubuque, Iowa, is scheduled for Feb. 20 and 21. Cost is $50 for an SSU student or activity card holder. This includes round trip transportation by charter bus, lodging and a one-day ski lift ticket.

Teams or individuals interested in playing intramural basketball may sign up now in the Athletic Office. The league is open to all SSU students, staff and faculty. Games will be played on Sunday afternoons in Cass Gymnasium at Lincoln Land Community College, beginning Jan. 31.

For further information on these and other activities, contact the Athletic and Recreation Office, E-16, telephone 786-6674.

Lopez on Second All-America team

Sangamon State University’s outstanding stopperback, Eusebio "Bebo" Lopez, has been named to the nation’s All-America Second Soccer Team by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Last year Lopez received an honorable mention in the voting for the NAIA’s All-America Team.

Since he first transferred to Sangamon State in the fall of 1979, SSU Soccer Coach Aydin Gonulsen has called Lopez one of the best fullbacks in college soccer. "Bebo is one of the most tenacious tacklers in the nation," Gonulsen said.

For the past two years, Sangamon State has been ranked in the top 10 in NAIA soccer, defeating top NCAA opponents as well as teams in the NAIA.

Courses offered by advising office

Services offered to students and staff by the University's Advising and Counseling Center will include two courses for the Spring Semester.

"Career Planning/Self Assessment" (UNI 407) will be offered Mondays from 5:30 to 9 p.m. during the first eight weeks, and "Get a Job" (UNI 408) will be offered in the same time slot during the second eight weeks. Both courses carry two hours of academic credit.

Other services available to members of the University community include: individual life/career counseling by Jerry Curl, SSU's director of advising and counseling, or Pam Hammond-McDavid, coordinator of career services/placement.

Vocational tests, using the Strong-Campbell Interest Inventory and the Edwards Personal Preference Profile, are available to students and staff at a cost of $2.50 per test. Non-students also pay a processing fee of $5 for one test or $8 for two tests.

Assistance with resume writing and job interviews is also available through the Career Services/Placement Office, and a credential file service — which may include transcripts, letters of reference and resumes — is available to students.

Lacy appointed to board of historical project

Dr. Alex B. Lacy, Jr., president of Sangamon State University, has been appointed to the advisory board of the Mary McLeod Bethune Historical Development Project in Washington, D.C.

The project, sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women, is seeking historical status for the home of Mary McLeod Bethune, the founder and first president of the NCNW and a national Council of Negro Women. Dr. Alex B. Lacy, Jr., president of Sangamon State University, has been appointed to the advisory board of the Mary McLeod Bethune Historical Development Project in Washington, D.C.

Her home, at 1318 Vermont Ave. in Washington, is now the Mary McLeod Bethune Memorial Museum and the National Archives for Black Women's History. The property is currently listed on the National Registry of Historic Places as part of the Historic District of Logan Circle, but the development project is seeking full recognition of the historic significance of the home and the advisory board hopes to convince the Department of Interior to grant the property Historic Site status.

The nine-member board will also develop a fund raising program and establish long range plans for the development of the museum and archives.

Tammy Wynette, the “first lady of country music,” will present two shows in the auditorium of Sangamon State University’s Public Affairs Center Saturday, Feb. 27. Tickets for the 6 and 9:30 p.m. performances are now on sale.

The opening act for both shows will be Nightstrokes, one of the hottest new country groups.

Tickets, priced at $12 for orchestra/loge, $11 for mezzanine, and $9 for balcony, are available by mail, phone, or over-the-counter from the Ticket Office on Level One.

Pre-concert dinners will be available in the PAC Restaurant before the 9:30 p.m. show, and a dessert buffet will be offered after the 6 p.m. show. For dinner reservations, call 786-6768. For ticket information, call 786-6160.

Special events mark black history month

The Black Caucus at Sangamon State University will sponsor a number of special events marking Black History/Black Liberation Month throughout February.

Special classes, lectures and discussions will be conducted which address such themes as “Blacks in Illinois,” “The Plight of Black South Africa” and “The Black Political Experience.”

Activities began Feb. 3 with a lecture by Sen. James Taylor (D-26th) in the atrium of the Public Affairs Center. Other scheduled events include the Second Annual Springfield Black History/Black Liberation Conference, sponsored by the Illinois Council for Black Studies, to be held in the PAC Feb. 5 and 6. A highlight of the conference will be the presentation of the Otis Morgan Memorial Scholarship, honoring a charter member of the SSU faculty.

Speakers at the conference will be Robert Walhaus, deputy director, Health and Academic Affairs, Illinois Board of Higher Education; Alice Kirby, director of personnel, State Comptroller’s Office; Gerald McWorter, chair, Illinois Council for Black Studies; Jake Jennings, director of community services, Malcolm X College; and a representative from the Reagan administration.

Other activities include a performance of the Broadway musical “One Mo’ Time,” Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. in the University Auditorium; the NAACP Lincoln/Douglas banquet and reception, Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. in the PAC; “Black Education in Illinois,” a presentation by James D. Anderson, Feb. 18 at noon in the PAC; and “Reflections on Malcolm X,” Feb. 22 at noon in Brookens Auditorium.

For further information about Black History/Black Liberation Month events, contact Marj Fonza, chairperson of the Black Caucus Social and Cultural Affairs Committee, at 786-6648.
Intersession will examine alternatives to violence

"The Struggle for Peaceful Conflict Resolution" will be the topic of Sangamon State University's 1982 Intersession, the ninth annual seminar focusing on critical public issues. This year's Intersession, to be held on the main campus March 12 through 20, will explore the need for alternatives to violent responses to conflict.

Recognizing that cooperative conflict resolution requires participation rather than passivity, Intersession organizers will bring members of the community together with SSU faculty and distinguished guest lecturers in a laboratory setting to explore and question familiar ways of viewing violence and resolving conflict.

The tentative list of guest lecturers includes: Shirley Chisholm, former member of the United States Congress from New York City and a candidate for the presidency in 1972; Patricia Rosezella, professor in the Urban Studies Program in Chicago for Associate Colleges of the Midwest; Lisa Leghorn, co-founder of Transition House, a shelter for battered women in Massachusetts; Clare Nader, an associate director of Environmental Programs at Oak Ridge National Laboratories (one of the famous Nader laboratories); Wilma Scott Heide, People working in social services, law enforcement, labor and management, state and local government and education may be particularly interested, she said.

Two semester hours of Public Affairs Colloquia credit will be awarded for successful completion of the course. Registration is now open and may be arranged through the Registrar's Office (F-20) on the main campus at any time up to the beginning of Intersession.

Many of the lectures and presentations are open to the public on a non-credit basis, a detailed schedule of those events will be available soon.

For more information about Intersession 1982, contact Mary Klindt, administrative assistant, Innovative and Experimental Studies Program, Sangamon State University, 217/786-6540.

Jazz musical in Auditorium

Feb. 11

"One Mo' Time," the smash-hit jazz musical re-creating the glorious days and nights of vaudeville, struts onto the University Auditorium stage at Sangamon State University Thursday, Feb. 11 at 8 p.m.

Taking the audience back to the foot-stomping vaudeville of the 1920s, "One Mo' Time" re-creates an evening at the legendary Lyric Theatre in New Orleans. Sassy jazz and backstage high-jinks add up to a wild time when Big Bertha Williams and her touring company are booked into the Lyric.

Audiences across the country have clapped along with the syncopated jazz rhythm as the performers dance the Charleston, the Cakewalk, and the Black Bottom while belting out saucy 1920s jazz hits like "Kitchen Man," "I've Got What It Takes," "Shake That Thing," "C. C. Rider," "Get On Out of Here" and "The Right Key But the Wrong Keyhole."

Tickets for "One Mo' Time" are now available from the SSU Ticket Office, 217/786-6160. Ticket prices are: $12, orchestra and loge; $11, mezzanine; and $9, balcony. Dinner before the show, and a dessert buffet following, will be available in the Public Affairs Center restaurant. Valet parking will be available for $2.
Workshop on computers set for beginners

Basic computer programming is the subject of a workshop offered by Sangamon State University's Office of Continuing Education. "The Basics of BASIC: An Introduction to Computer Programming" will be offered at a variety of times March 3-6.

The workshop is designed to give the novice hands-on experience with computer programming. The sessions will take the participant from a simple introduction of equipment and terms to actual program writing using the BASIC computer language.

This workshop will use "Introduction to BASIC," a learning program and materials developed for Radio Shack, a Division of Tandy Corp., by Norman T. Bell, professor of educational psychology at Michigan State University. Radio Shack will provide TRS-80 microcomputers for participants' use during the workshops.

Four sessions of the eight-hour workshop will be offered so participants may choose the times most convenient to them. Session A will meet from 1 to 5 p.m., March 3 and 4; Session B, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., March 4 and 5; Session C, 7 to 10 p.m., March 3, 4 and 5; and Session D, 8:30 to 5 p.m., on March 6.

Eight contact hours of continuing education credit will be awarded for completion of this workshop. Fees are $25 for Sessions A, B and C and $30 for Session D, which includes lunch. More information on this workshop is available from Kathleen Kelly in the Office of Continuing Education, Sangamon State University, 786-6073.

Public affairs center gets new name

One of Sangamon State University's four public affairs centers, the Center for the Study of Middle-size Cities, has recently been renamed the Center for Community and Regional Studies. The change reflects an expansion of the center's original focus — cities with populations between 50,000 and 250,000 — to include local and regional studies as well. Luther Skelton, associate professor of environmental studies, is the center director.

More information about the center and its work may be obtained from the center office, PAC 422, telephone 786-6571.

A number of players on the 1981 Prairie Stars soccer team have been named to post-season honors. Mario "Sito" Cobiella and Gary Bloom have been named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Area III All-Star team. Cobiella joined the all-star backfield while Bloom was named to the all-star front line.

Eusebio "Bebo" Lopez and George Lidster were named to the 33-member All-Illinois Soccer Team as well as to the first team of the NAIA All-Mideast Soccer Team. Lopez is a fullback and Lidster is a halfback.

"Touch in the Counseling Relationship. An Exploratory Study," an article by Caryl Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services, was the lead story in a recent edition of Patient Counseling and Health Education.

"Effects of Wage Incentives on Productivity," a paper by former Sangamon State University student Ralph Lawrence, has been accepted by the Management Division of the Midwest Business Administration Association for presentation at their annual meeting, to be held March 25-26 in Chicago. Lawrence, a graduate of SSU's Management Program, is currently an industrial engineer with Eaton Corporation in Lincoln. The paper was written in conjunction with Richard Judd, associate professor of management, and stems from research Lawrence conducted for his senior thesis. The paper was one of 12 selected from among 34 submissions.

Judd is also a candidate for the office of vice president for publications of the Small Business Institute Directors' Association. The national election will be held in early February.

Britta Harris, former research associate with the Sangamon State University Center for Legal Studies, has announced her candidacy for state senator from the 45th legislative district. The newly drawn district encompasses all of Logan, Menard and Woodford counties, along with portions of DeWitt, Marshall, McLean, Sangamon, Stark and Tazewell counties.

At SSU Harris was co-director of a 1981 study of neglect and abuse of the elderly in Illinois and co-directed a conference on law and the handicapped held at the University in 1980. She formerly taught political science at Lincoln College, was an interviewer for the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research, and a researcher and administrative assistant for the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois.

Harris holds a B.A. in political science from Northwestern University, an M.A. in public administration from the University of Illinois, and an M.A. in legal studies from Sangamon State.

She has also been active in a variety of community services.

Sherri Mitchell, 1981 graduate of Sangamon State University, is working as a producer/announcer with Springfield radio station WVEM-FM. Mitchell is heard weekdays from noon to 5:30 p.m. She received the B.A. in Communications last spring.

Futures market workshop series begins Feb. 16

Price/Risk Management in Agriculture will be the topic of a series of workshops to be conducted by Sangamon State University's Office of Continuing Education in cooperation with the Farm Market Division of Heinold Commodities, Inc., beginning Feb. 16.

Ray Barclay, branch manager of Heinold Commodities in Springfield, will be the workshop instructor. The series will focus on the use of the futures market as a tool to reduce financial risk. Topics of discussion will include forward pricing, the principles of hedging, basis, margins, financing and planning.

The workshop series consists of six Tuesday meetings to be held in the Public Affairs Center on the University's main campus between Feb. 16 and March 23. Each session begins at 7 p.m.

The deadline to register is Saturday, Feb. 13. There is a $40 registration fee. For more information contact Kathleen Kelly at the SSU Office of Continuing Education, 217/786-6073.
Intersession examines alternatives to conflict

Sangamon State University’s 1982 Intersession, “The Struggle for Peaceful Conflict Resolution,” will be held March 12 through 20 on the main campus.

Nationally and internationally known guest lecturers will join with community members and University faculty and students to examine alternative ways of responding to conflict.

Sangamon State faculty contributing to this year’s Intersession are: Nina Adams, assistant professor of history and women’s studies; Michael Ayers, associate professor of economics; Joyce Bennett, associate professor of library instructional services; Nancy Ford, assistant professor of legal studies; Larry Golden, associate professor of political studies; Barbara Hayler, assistant professor of social justice professions; Ron Sakolsky, assistant professor of public administration; Charles Sampson, associate professor of public administration; and Phyllis Walden, assistant professor of experiential learning. Wilma Scott Heide, professor of innovative and experimental studies and women’s studies, is serving as Intersession coordinator.

Scheduled guest lecturers include: U.S. Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm; Patricia Rozelle, professor in the urban studies program in Chicago for Associate Colleges of the Midwest; Lisa Leghorn, co-founder of Transition House, a shelter for battered women in Massachusetts; Claire Nader, science/public policy adviser and former associate director of environmental programs at Oak Ridge National Laboratories; Steve Sachs, political scientist, Indiana University; Irma Ryan, labor organizer from Decatur; Charles Rankin, director of the Midwest Race and Sex Desegregation Center in Manhattan, Kan.; Eugene Duban, associate judge in the Seventh Judicial Circuit; Deborah Dee Taylor, assistant chief of consumer protection for the Illinois Attorney General’s Office; and the United Mime Workers, a mime troupe from Champaign.

Two semester hours of credit will be awarded for completion of the course. Registration is now open and may be arranged in the Registrar’s Office, F-20, through March 12.

Many lectures and presentations are also open to the public on a noncredit basis. For further information contact Mary Klindt in the Innovative and Experimental Studies Office, 217/786-6540.

Third recognition dinner set

The Third Annual Recognition Dinner, honoring civil service and administrative staff who have completed 10 years of continuous full-time service to the University, will be held Tuesday, March 16, at the Black Angus Steak House.

Those to be honored at this year’s dinner are: Wanda Andrews, Bill Bryan, Curt Carlson, Judy Day, Lee Etter, Ron Fagg, Tom Goins, Pat Kruger, Jane Lauer, Roy Nance, Owen Rugg, Sue Ann Schleder, John Solomon, Don Walcher and Marj Westphal. All will be presented with commemorative pins.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Entrees and prices are: fried chicken, $7.50; prime rib, $8.95; New York steak, $11.30; and seafood platter, $11.35. Prices include tax and tip; there will be a cash bar.

Reservations may be made by contacting Carolyn Bardos at 786-6378, Shirley Hood at 786-6557 or Lucy Howdeshell at 786-6674.

Lindley heads anniversary committee

Sangamon County Auditor Maralee Lindley has been named chairwoman of a committee formed recently to plan activities for the observance of the 10th anniversary of Sangamon State University’s first graduating class.

The activities will coincide with Sangamon State’s 1982 Commencement Weekend ceremonies, May 15 and 16, Lindley said. She added that the goal of the committee “is to bring members of the Alumni Association and the Public

The aim of the new policy is to make the University’s grading system more traditional and comparable to grading systems at other schools. The new policy sets clear standards for giving credit —addressing concerns voiced by many students over how SSU transcripts are evaluated by businesses and graduate schools. SSU transcripts do not currently specify a level of performance equivalent to credit.

Ferguson brings jazz to SSU

Maynard Ferguson has been referred to as provocative, ingenious, sophisticated, offensive and nothing short of crazy. No matter how they refer to him, however, jazz buffs generally agree that the musical veteran is truly a legend in his own time.

Ferguson brings his orchestra to the stage of Sangamon State University’s Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 25.

Ferguson has made more than a dozen albums in his 40-year career. And, not including all sales before he signed with Columbia Records in 1969, he has amassed combined sales of more records than any other band leader at that label since the 1940s — including Duke Ellington and Count Basie.

His latest album, “It’s My Time,” fuses past energies and present interests and gives a glimpse of future musical projects.

Tickets for the concert are $8 for orchestra/loge, $7 for mezzanine and $6 for balcony, and are available now at the SSU Ticket Office, lower level of the Public Affairs Center, phone 786-6160. Dinner will be offered in the PAC Restaurant before the concert and a dessert buffet will be offered after the show. For reservations, call 786-6768.

New grading policy to take effect next fall

Sangamon State University has a new grading policy. It was signed into existence Feb. 18, and goes into effect in the fall.

The three University senates — faculty, staff and student — have been wrestling with the question of grades at SSU for some time and last month were able to agree upon a bill which was presented to President Alex B. Lacy, Jr. and approved during ceremonies at Cox House.

The aim of the new policy is to make the University’s grading system more traditional and comparable to grading systems at other schools. The new policy sets clear standards for giving credit —addressing concerns voiced by many students over how SSU transcripts are evaluated by businesses and graduate schools. SSU transcripts do not currently specify a level of performance equivalent to credit.

Emergency Loan Fund receives $3,000 contribution

The Student Emergency Loan Fund at Sangamon State University recently received $3,000 through a cooperative effort of the SSU Student Senate and the University Foundation.

Each organization contributed $1,500 to help improve the cash flow of the fund.

The new bill specifies that decisions regarding the number of credit hours a student may take per term will be made by the individual programs; that courses taken under the credit/no credit option are not included in the grade point average (GPA); that the period for changing from the letter grade option to the credit/no credit option will be through the 12th week of the term; that incompletes, which will be granted for a period of one year, will not be changed automatically to another grade (e.g. no credit, F, etc.) when the year expires; that students may officially withdraw from a course through the eighth week of the term and that the withdrawal is noted on the transcript; that the change of enrollment status from credit to audit may occur at any time during the semester with permission of the instructor; and that, if a student repeats a course for which a grade was awarded, the grade of the repeated course will appear on the student’s end-of-term grade report and transcript, deleting the earlier grade from the transcript and from any computation of GPA.
Eighth Gerontology Institute set for April and May

Sangamon State University's eighth annual Gerontology Institute has been set for three weekend sessions in April and May. Prominent practitioners and scholars from around the country will be on campus to join with students in an examination of current concerns and issues in the study of adult development and aging.

Session I, "Medicine and the Aging Process," will be April 2 and 3. Speakers include: Harvey L. Sterns, director, Institute for Lifespan Development and Gerontology, University of Akron; Amasa B. Ford, professor, community health and family medicine, Case Western Reserve University; Ron Ettinger, professor, Institute of Dental Research, University of Iowa; Alvin J. Levenson, chief of geriatric psychiatry, University of Texas Medical School; Stanley Brody, professor of physical medicine and rehabilitation in psychiatry, University of Pennsylvania; and Edwin A. Lee, Springfield physician.

Session II, "Health Care Needs of Special Aged Populations," will be April 16 and 17. Speakers include: Joseph M. Holtzman, director of the Gerontology Center, University of Oklahoma; Marian Spencer, Gerontology Department, School of Nursing, Boston University; Paul Kim, professor, Department of Social Work, Florida International University; Tish Sommers, president, The Older Women's League; Jean M. Coyle, assistant professor, Gerontology Program, Eastern Illinois University; Edward Lowicki, Hospice of Mississippi; and Wilma Scott Heide, professor, Innovative and Experimental Studies and Women's Studies, Sangamon State University.

Session III, "Health Care Settings and the Aged," is set for April 30 and May 1. Speakers will be: Vanderlyn Pine, chair, Department of Sociology, State University College of New York; Edward Trudeau, medical director of physical medicine and rehabilitation, Memorial Medical Center; Marcia B. Steinbauer, associate, Department of Community Dentistry, University of Louisville; Sylvia Sherwood, Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged, Roslindale, Mass.; Roger Schlichting, National Pharmaceutical Council, Washington, D.C.; Institute director Gari Lesnoff-Caravaglia, associate professor, Gerontology Program, Sangamon State University; and Dennis Teitge, assistant professor, Management Program, Sangamon State.

Welcoming remarks will be delivered by University Pres. Alex B. Lacy, Jr.; Howard S. Barrows, associate dean for educational affairs, Southern Illinois University School of Medicine; Floyd S. Barringer, medical liaison for Health Science Professions at Sangamon State; David L. Spencer, chief of family practice, SIU Medical School; Dennis Foss, vice president for academic affairs, Sangamon State; and Jim Edgar, Illinois secretary of state.

The Gerontology Institute is presented by Sangamon State University in cooperation with Southern Illinois University School of Medicine; co-sponsors are the Illinois Secretary of State and the Illinois State Board of Education.

Ten contact hours of continuing education credit (1.0 CEUs) will be awarded by the University for each session attended and registered with the National Registry for Continuing Education. Participants may also elect to register for continuing education credit with the Illinois Department of Public Health, Illinois Nurses Association or the Illinois Podiatry Society. Continuing medical education credit is available from the Southern Illinois University medical school.

Two semester hours of academic credit are available to SSU students registered in PAC 453: Myths and Realities of Aging. These students must attend all three sessions as well as additional class meetings, and fulfill other requirements. Contact the SSU Gerontology Program, 786-6589 for details. Students must register with the University Registrar before March 26.

All sessions will be held in Brookens Auditorium and the Public Affairs Center on the SSU main campus. Sessions begin with registration and sign-in at 11 a.m.; opening meetings begin at 1 p.m.

Cost of the Gerontology Institute is $55 per session, which includes refreshments, dinner and a continental breakfast, as well as program materials and the continuing education registry fee. Cost is $150 for persons registering for all three sessions in advance.

For further information contact Gari Lesnoff-Caravaglia at 217/786-6589 or Kathleen Kelly in SSU's Office of Continuing Education at 217/786-6073.

Paintings on display in gallery

A traveling exhibition of paintings sponsored by the Illinois Arts Council is on display in the third floor gallery of Brookens Library, Sangamon State University, now through March 14.

The exhibit is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 2 until 10 p.m. Sunday. For further information contact graduate student Vincent Dunn at 786-6786.

Energy efficiency competition announced

The Springfield Energy Project, a community-based energy study coordinated by Sangamon State University's Energy Studies Program, and the Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce recently announced the creation of a competitive energy efficiency award for businesses, industry and non-profit institutions in Sangamon County.

The competition is open to all county enterprises that have implemented energy-saving programs over the past five years said Al Casella, director of the SEP and coordinator of SSU's Energy Studies sequence.

Studies of energy use in Springfield indicate that nearly $136 million left the economy in the form of fuel payments in 1980. Said Casella, "This kind of competition has no losers; everyone wins due to the money saved on energy dollars. Reducing total energy consumption by only 10 percent equates to every man, woman and child in Springfield having an extra $134 of discretionary income to spend within the local economy every year."

Evelyn Zuspann, chairwoman of the Chamber of Commerce, pointed out in announcing the contest "private sector initiative is the key to any phase of economic development. Establishments and organizations which have taken steps to increase their energy efficiency are contributing to the economic growth of our community and should be recognized."

A March 1 deadline was set for award nominations. The winner, determined by a five-judge panel, will be announced in late March.
Media services reorganized

In order to better serve the needs of the University community, media services at Sangamon State University have recently been reorganized into three areas: Educational Production Services, Audio-Visual Services and the Library Media Lab.

The reorganization was the result of a study made at the request of the Faculty Senate.

The Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs directs Educational Production Services, headed by Irene Allsup, and Audio-Visual Services, headed by Larry Older. The SSU Library operates the Library Media Lab, headed by Curt Neitzke.

Educational Production Services is responsible for the design and production of instructional materials for use in classrooms, workshops, conferences, media productions or publications. Services include graphic design and/or photographic services for charts, graphs, illustrations, transparencies, slide productions and black-and-white prints.

A major part of the unit's work will include production of tapes for the CONVOCOM network. Educational Services will also prepare other audio-visual materials for classroom use and unit staff are available for consultation.

Educational Production Services is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Offices are located in Brookens 1808 (enter off Brookens Concourse); telephone 786-6788.

Audio-Visual Services provides delivery and setup of audio-visual equipment for classes and other on-campus activities. Equipment for off-campus University events may be obtained from the unit as well. AV Services is also responsible for the collection of SSU-owned films and videotapes and makes other films and software available on a rental basis.

Hours for Audio-Visual Services are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with delivery available from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Offices are located in Brookens 134 (enter off the Concourse); telephone 786-6550.

Library Media offers instruction in the use of media equipment, a "do-it-yourself" audio-visual lab with comprehensive facilities for persons interested in producing their own instructional materials, facilities for previewing films and producing tapes, areas for listening to records and tapes and watching television, and access to typewriters.

The library's non-print collection includes phonograph records, filmstrips, audio tapes and multi-media kits. Related hardware such as microfiche readers, cassette recorders, cameras and slide projectors are available at the circulation desk on the main level, as are non-print materials on reserve for classes. Additional services are available through the library's circulation department, headed by Barbara Dewhurst.

Hours for the Media Lab are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Library Media is located in Brookens 141; telephone 786-6633. Further information is also available at the Get Help Here Desk on the main floor of the library.

Tax workshop for small businesses set

The Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce, the United States Small Business Administration and Sangamon State University's Center for Community and Regional Studies and Office of Continuing Education will sponsor a one-day Tax Workshop for Small Business on Saturday, March 6.

The workshop will cover topics such as changes in federal tax law, the new accelerated cost recovery system, savings from investment credit and individual retirement accounts, and will include a review of federal taxes for new businesses.

Pam McNichols, a tax technician for the Internal Revenue Service, will conduct the review, providing expertise in the various aspects of income tax law, answers to tax questions and assistance in form preparation.

The conference, which was planned and coordinated by SSU faculty members Richard Judd, associate professor of management, and Robert E. Maurath, associate professor of accounting, will be held in Sangamon State's Public Affairs Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A $20 registration fee, covering cost of materials and lunch, is required. For more information or to reserve a place in the class, call 217/786-6073.

Summer course to study utopian settlements

"The Pursuit of Happiness in the Promised Land: Utopian Settlements in the Midwest" — a course combining study, travel and field work — will be offered during the 1982 summer session by the History Program and Applied Study Office at Sangamon State University.

From June 14 through 18 students will travel in a group to the sites of four 19th century communal experiments: the Mormon and Icarian sites at Nauvoo, the Janssonele settlement at Bishop Hill, and the Amana Church Society communities in Iowa. Students will have the opportunity to engage in field work at the sites and study by direct experience the history, theory and practice of intentional communities.

The course is designed for teachers of social studies at the elementary and secondary level and for other students interested in local and regional history.

Four semester hours of credit may be applied at the undergraduate or graduate level to a major in history, may help fulfill the applied study requirement, or may be used as a general elective in another degree program at Sangamon State.

In addition to the week of travel, two six-hour Saturday sessions — on March 27 and April 24 — will be held for prior study and planning. A four-hour session will be scheduled after the field trip to evaluate the experience. Students will also be required to keep a journal of their experiences on the trip.

Estimated cost of the course is $350, which includes tuition, fees, transportation, lodging and meals. A $25 deposit is required on or before March 10 to reserve a place in the class.

To register or for further information, contact Dottie Troop in the Applied Study Program, Brookens 411, 786-6640 or J. Richard Johnston in the History Program, Brookens 386, 786-6778.
Ten new Prairie Stars signed for 1982

Sangamon State University’s head soccer coach, Aydin Gonulsen, has announced the signing of ten new recruits — seven from Illinois and three from Minnesota — for the 1982 season. They are: Jeff Smith, Mike Lindstrom and Tom Bundy, all from Springfield; Brian Shanley, Northbrook; Dan Brink, Quincy; Kelly Belobraydic, Collinsville; Kelly Taylor, Belleville; and Mike Block, Springfield. All but Smith are returning after a three-year break.

Heading the list of new Prairie Stars from Illinois, Smith is a 6’1”, 175 lb. sweeperback who was named to the Junior College All-Star Team as a defensive player for Lincoln Land Community College last season.

Mike Lindstrom, a 5’11”, 150 lb. back, was a teammate of Smith’s. Bundy is a 6’, 175 lb. midfielder who played for the Stars in 1978 and is returning after a three-year break.

Shanley, a 5’10”, 150 lb. forward, and Brink, a 5’10”, 155 lb. halfback, both attended Lincoln College. Belobraydic, a 6’2”, 200 lb. goalie, and Taylor, a 5’11”, 150 lb. midfielder, attended Belleville Area College.

Block, a 6’, 160 lb. midfielder who won an honorable mention last season to the National Junior College All-America Team, Rectenwal, a 6’, 150 lb. midfielder, and Knight, a 5’10”, 155 lb. forward, all attended Bethany Lutheran College in Mankato, Minn.

“This is a big step for us,” Gonulsen said in announcing the recruits, pointing out that this season he will focus his recruiting efforts on Illinois talent. Smith and Lindstrom are the first players to come out of the developing Springfield system (youth soccer through LLCC), and we hope they will be stepping-stones for others to follow.

“It has been my goal for years to get to the point where I can begin to recruit local talent with real quality,” he added.

Smith was twice named Most Valuable Player at Southeast High School, where he was also named to the all-city soccer team three times. He played outstanding defense at Lincoln Land and Gonulsen enthusiastically compares him to former SSU All-America sweeperback Rick Wiegand.

But the coach also has high praise for the rest of his recruits. Of Lindstrom he said that he is “aggressive and a hard worker, with all the qualities needed to be a good defensive player.”

Bundy had three assists for the Stars in 1978 and was named the team’s Most Improved Player that year. Gonulsen called him “one of the most experienced players on the team, with tremendous poise and finesse.”

Shanley and Brink played soccer in high school as well as in college. Gonulsen said that he expects them both to develop into “top-notch players.”

Belobraydic has been playing soccer since he was nine years old. Taylor played varsity soccer for three years in high school and was captain of the team for two years.

Block, said Gonulsen, “has the mental and physical make-up to be a first-class collegiate player.” Rectenwal is “a very good offensive player, with a lot of speed and a strong shot.” Knight was cited for “good ball skills” and accuracy as a striker.

Gonulsen will lose eight players through graduation this year: Gary Bloom, Mario Cobiella, Tony Fantham, Nelson Fernandez, Charles Gardiner, Dave Korbol, Eusebio Lopez and Jim Smith. Those eight accounted for more than half the team’s scoring in 1981 and played a significant role in the Stars’ 13-win, 7-loss, 4-tie record.

Energy Studies to hold seminars

“Energy Studies Gathering,” an informal seminar sponsored by Energy Studies and Innovative and Experimental Studies at Sangamon State University, will meet on Tuesdays from 11:45 a.m. until 1:15 p.m. in Room 3B of the Public Affairs Center, through May 4.

Remaining topics and speakers are:

Basu leads discussion series

Ashim K. Basu, assistant professor of health services administration at Sangamon State University, is serving as leader of the “Great Decisions ‘82” discussion group on international affairs.

The series is jointly sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association of New York and the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations and is coordinated locally by Lincoln Library as a public education program.

Programs began Feb. 10 and will continue through March 31. Remaining topics include: “Protecting the World’s Resources: Is Time Running Out?” (March 10); “Japan: Strategic Ally, Economic Rival?” (March 17); “Global Inflation: Is There a Cure?” (March 24); and “The USSR and Poland: Troubles in the Worker’s Paradise” (March 31).

All programs are held at Lincoln Library and meet from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Host families needed for international students

Sangamon State University and the Rochester’s Women’s Club are sponsoring a Host Family Program designed to provide newly arrived international students at SSU with American families with whom they can share visits, occasional meals, holiday celebrations, community events and other activities. This is not a residential program and students are not expected to live with their host families unless an invitation is extended by family choice.

For more information about the Host Family Program contact Gerlinde Coates at 786-6678 or Harriet Arkley at 498-9042.
Seven of the eight guest speakers scheduled to talk this semester with students in "The Politics of Education," a graduate-level course taught by SSU Professor of Educational Administration Stuart Anderson, are themselves graduates of the Educational Administration Program at Sangamon State University. They are: Leroy Jordan, associate dean of innovative and experimental studies at Sangamon State; Robert Hill, principal of Springfield High School; Robert Hart, principal of Butler Elementary School; Elbert Betts, principal of Grant Middle School; Sue Bentz, assistant superintendent of the Department of Professional Relations, Illinois State Board of Education; Brenda Harrison, legislative liaison for the Illinois Dental Society; and Joseph Rockford, deputy director of the Driver Services Department, Secretary of State's Office.

Anna May Smith, professor of management at Sangamon State, is the author of an article on time management which appeared in a recent issue of Zontian, an international magazine for professional women. Smith also gave a lecture on that subject to a meeting of the Central Illinois Management Association in February.

Smith and Helen Coyne, assistant professor of management at SSU, are team-teaching "Foundations of Management" this semester with Robert G. Cronson, auditor general of Illinois.

Marjorie Fonza, assistant professor of nursing, and James Lanier, assistant professor of human development counseling, were recently honored by the Springfield Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) for their outstanding contributions to the community. Fonza received the branch's award for service in the field of education, recognizing her work as a health educator and her voluntary efforts in recruiting, fundraising and education for black students; Lanier received the award for service in the area of youth development, recognizing his work with the Springfield Housing Authority Boxing Team.

Richard Judd, associate professor of management at SSU, was the editor for the Small Business Institute Directors' Association 1982 National Conference Proceedings. The national conference was held in San Francisco in February. Judd also chaired a workshop session on "Gaps Between Resources Available and Business Owner Needs."

John Palincsar, assistant professor of legal studies at SSU, has been asked by the Illinois Pollution Control Board to serve as a hearing officer in a complaint by the Illinois Attorney General's Office against the water pollution control facilities of the village of Pawnee. Palincsar spent four years as an attorney with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency before coming to Sangamon State, and has previously served as a hearing officer for the Illinois Department of Revenue in cases dealing with pollution control equipment.

SSU Associate Dean of Students Rose Marie Roach recently participated in a panel discussion of women from various professions, held at Lincoln Library as part of the observance of Women's History Week. The panel examined community resources and the contributions women can make to the future of the community.

Fabric work of many cultures shown

The International Students Association at Sangamon State University, in conjunction with local women artists, will sponsor "Fabrics of Many Cultures," a display of creative work by women from various cultures.

The program will be held Monday, March 8, from 11:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Sixth Street Art Center, as part of Springfield's observance of Women's History Week (March 7-13) and International Women's Day (March 8).

Copy for the April 5 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than March 26.
Sangamon State University's husband-and-wife tennis coaching team, Dave and Sue McCain, are each predicting winning seasons for their teams in 1982.

Women's Tennis Coach Sue McCain says her team should finish in the top 10 in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics this year. The women Prairie Stars finished eighth in 1981.

SSU, with a perfect record against NAIA competition in the fall, won the District 20 tournament, taking the No. 2, No. 3, No. 5 and No. 6 singles titles, and the No. 1 and No. 2 doubles titles. The win qualifies them for the 1982 national tournament.

"The competition at the national tournament will be tougher this year," Sue admitted, "but our spring schedule is tougher, too. That should prepare the team for the tournament."

The women begin their spring season on Friday, April 2, at Indiana State University-Terre Haute. The first home match is against Eastern Illinois University on Wednesday, April 14. On the list are six dual matches and a tournament at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

All players are returning from the fall season in which the Prairie Stars posted a nine-win and 10-loss overall record.

Kathy Herrick, SSU's No. 1 singles player, should hold that position this spring. She will pair with Ann Waddell, the No. 2 singles player, to form a strong No. 1 doubles team — one that McCain feels should be "very tough in the national tournament."

Linda Bucci, No. 3 singles, and Phyllis Fison, No. 5 singles, will form the No. 2 doubles team. Sheila Huard, No. 4 singles, and Kay Giacomini, No. 6 singles, will play No. 3 doubles.

Herrick and Waddell earned All-America Honorable Mention status at the 1981 National tournament. This year, said McCain, "it would be nice to come home with at least two All-Americans." But coming home with the national title would be even nicer, and McCain and her Prairie Stars expect to be prepared for the challenge.

Dave, in his second year as head coach of the SSU men's squad, led the team to a 12-win and six-loss record, a District 20 title and a 15th place finish in the NAIA national tournament last May — impressive statistics for a team in its first year of collegiate play. Impressive enough, in fact, to win McCain a place as NAIA District 20 Men's Tennis Coach of the Year for 1981.

All players from the 1981 team return: Jim Kuntzi, Bo McLaughlin, Mark Mosbach, Greg Piland, Kurt Sames and Craig Strauch. They will be joined by three newcomers: Buzz Hardy of Springfield, Scott Ealy of Elfiningham and Ernie Miller of Taylorville.

McCain said his squad is much stronger this season. "All of my returning players are better than they were last year, and the three newcomers give the squad much greater depth."

"Sames, Piland and McLaughlin have proven themselves to be top college players at the national tournament," he said. "It will be a very tight battle among them to determine who will play number one."
Literature sponsors Verbal Arts Festival

The Ninth Annual Verbal Arts Festival sponsored by Sangamon State University’s Literature Program will be held March 8 through 12 on the main campus.

On Monday, March 8, Mary Ellen Solt, a concrete poet from Bloomington, Ind., will read selections from her work in Brookens Auditorium. A slide presentation accompanies the reading. Solt is the author of "Flowers in Concrete, A Trilogy of Rain and Eyewords.

On Tuesday, March 9, award-winning poet Donald Finkel will read from his work. Finkel is the author of "The Garbage Wars, Adequate Earth" and, most recently, "What Manner of Beast." Finkel’s presentation will also be in Brookens Auditorium.

On Wednesday, March 10, SSU Associate Professor of Literature Jacqueline Jackson and students from her creative writing classes will read from their own works in Conference Room D, Public Affairs Center. Jackson is the author of 10 nationally recognized books for children.

On Thursday, March 11, in Conference Room D, Sangamon-area novelists and poets will read from their works.

The festival concludes on Friday, March 12, with a reading by novelist William H. Gass. Gass — the author of "Omensetter’s Luck, Willie Masters’ Lonesome Wife and In the Heart of the Heart of the Country and Other Stories" — will appear in Brookens Auditorium.

All readings will begin at 8 p.m. Admission is free and everyone is invited to attend. For further information contact Shirley-Raye Redmond at 786-6778.

Cullom Davis is new VPAA

Cullom Davis, professor of history and director of Sangamon State University's Oral History Program, has been named Vice President for Academic Affairs at Sangamon State. His appointment, approved by the Illinois Board of Regents at their March meeting, is effective May 16.

Davis, who holds the A.B. in history from Princeton University and the M.A. and Ph.D. in American history from the University of Illinois, is a charter member of Sangamon State's faculty and served as Assistant Vice President for Academic Affairs during the University's first operating year. In that post he was responsible for planning and administering curriculum and instruction.

"As a charter administrator and faculty member, I understand and value the institution's distinctive qualities," Davis said. "As a historian, I am impressed by its remarkable growth and accomplishments in the decade since we awarded our first degrees.

"My agenda for office is lengthy and detailed, but its cornerstones are a commitment to enhancing the quality of our programs, the morale of our faculty, the service to our students and the reputation of our institution."

As VPAA, Davis will be responsible for faculty recruitment and development, as well as curriculum development. The university has 42 undergraduate and graduate degree programs and more than 170 faculty.

Davis said his goal is "to build on the record Presidents (Robert C.) Spencer and (Alex B. J.) Lacy and my predecessors have established in making Sangamon State a proud community asset, a vital force among Illinois universities and a national model of progressive higher education."

"I'm absolutely delighted that Professor Davis has accepted the position," President Lacy said in announcing the selection. "I think it is a good indication of the calibre of our faculty considering that we conducted a nationwide search and selected one of our own for the post."

"One of the key challenges facing Professor Davis will be improving the quality of the academic programs," Lacy said. High among the priorities listed by both men is the continued development of the relatively new degree programs — especially in the professional areas.

Said Lacy, "Cullom Davis is fully capable of leading the development in those programs, and he is eminently qualified to lead the faculty."

Davis, 46, came to Sangamon State from Indiana University, where he was assistant professor of history and Associate Dean of the University Division. He has also taught at the University of Illinois and Punahou Academy in Honolulu, Hawaii.

His predecessors as VPAA were Sue Dezendolet, who accepted a similar post in Georgia and resigned last July after three years with the University, and John Keiser, who served as VPAA for six years. Dennis Foss, associate professor of sociology/anthropology, has been serving as interim VPAA since Dezendolet's departure.

The author of more than a dozen books, articles and reviews dealing with history, Abraham Lincoln, Illinois and Springfield, Davis established SSU's Oral History Program. Under his guidance, it has developed into a program of national prominence, attracting numerous grants for the study of Illinois history. The Oral History Program will continue at SSU despite Davis' departure.

Davis, his wife, Ann, and four of their five children live in Springfield. He is very active in civic affairs and has served on the boards of nearly a dozen community organizations during his time in Central Illinois.

He is currently on the boards of the Abraham Lincoln Association, the Illinois State Historical Society, the Sangamon County Historical Society and the Springfield Marine Bank.

Lithographs displayed in gallery

The recent works of Robert Franzini, assistant professor of art at Morehead State University in Kentucky, are featured in an exhibit currently displayed in the Sangamon State University Gallery. The exhibit, which features 26 of Franzini's lithographs, etchings, reliefs and monotypes, will be in the gallery through April 14.

The SSU Gallery is located on the third floor of Brookens Library and is open to the public free from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays, and from 2 to 10:30 p.m. on Sundays.
Williams heads list of distinguished visitors

Sir Alan Lee Williams, OBE, a former member of the British Parliament and a candidate for a seat in the House on the newly formed Social Democratic Party ticket, will address Sangamon State University's Foreign Policy Forum at noon Friday, April 16, in the Public Affairs Center Restaurant.

His luncheon address is entitled "The Atlantic Alliance in Conflict." A question and answer period will follow his address.

Currently on a nationwide tour of the United States, Williams and his wife, Jenny, will spend a day at Sangamon State University meeting with faculty and students. Their visit is made possible by the Ford Foundation and the Former Members of Congress Association of Washington, D.C.

Williams has served as director-general of The English-Speaking Union of the Commonwealth since 1979. He has had a distinguished career in British governmental and public service. In addition to his terms in Parliament, he has served as Parliamentary Private Secretary (PPS) to the Secretary of State for Defense (1968-70, 1974-76), deputy director of European Movement (1970-71), director of the British Atlantic Movement (1972-74), PPS to the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1976-79), chairman of the Labour Party Defense Committee (1977-79), member of the Committee on Disarmament and Arms Control (1975-79) and member of the Trilateral Commission (1976).

Sir Alan represented the Hornchurch constituency in Parliament from 1966 to 1970 and 1974 to 1979 as a member of the Labour Party. He split from that party to help organize the Social Democratic Party.

Educated at the Roan School in Greenwich and Ruskin College in Oxford, he has written extensively on European defense, east/west detente, and the UN, Warsaw and NATO Pacts.

His luncheon and address are open to the public. For more information contact Betty Sorling in the SSU Foundation Office, 217/786-6058.

Dr. M. Waghmare, principal (president) of Raharshi Shahu College, Latur, Maharashtra, India, will be on campus from Saturday, April 17, through Tuesday, April 20. In the United States under the auspices of the Fulbright-sponsored Indian Educational Administrators Project, Dr. Waghmare has a scholarly interest in black literature and is considering a postdoctoral research project on the theory of literature of oppressed minorities.

Waghmare's duties as an administrator and educator have focused on university and community relations, faculty development and evaluation, and the extension of higher education opportunities in semi-urban and rural areas.

During the week of April 26, Martha Keys, member of the House of Representatives during the 94th and 95th Congresses, will visit the University. While in Congress, Keys was a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, House Select Committee on Welfare Reform, and the Health, Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation subcommittees. Keys helped administered the child care tax credits, federal estate tax revision, farmland use valuation, Social Security Insurance for group home residents and equity in Social Security.

Keys also served as Assistant Secretary for Education. She remains active in Washington, working on behalf of a variety of interests. Most recently she has been associated with the Former Members of Congress Association.

Polish journalist to speak

Former Polish journalist Marian Marzynski will be on the campus of Sangamon State University Tuesday, April 6, for a showing of his acclaimed film, "Return to Poland" and a discussion of the present state of affairs in that country. Marzynski's appearance is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Public Affairs Center Conference Room G on the lower level.

Marzynski left Poland in the late 1960s. He produced "Return to Poland" in association with public television station WGBH in Boston. In the film, he provides the audience with a glimpse into the lives of Poles who are thinking, talking and arguing about their future.

Marzynski's appearance is presented free by the SSU Student Activities Committee. A reception in the PAC restaurant will follow the discussion. For further information contact John Zehr, student activity assistant, at 786-6666.

Spring Star Parties will feature Voyager photographs

Visitors to Sangamon State University's spring Star Parties, which will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. Fridays through May 14, will have the opportunity to view three of the celestial objects recently explored via NASA spacecraft.

This spring telescopes in the SSU Observatory will be focused on the Orion Nebula, Jupiter, Saturn and, when visible, the Moon. Observatory director Charles Schweighauser said that the spring Star Parties will also feature a continuously repeating tape and slide presentation of many of the remarkable photographs of Jupiter and Saturn taken by Voyagers I and II during their recent explorations.

Schweighauser was a guest at the Pasadena Jet Propulsion Laboratory when many of the photographs were being received from outer space. He produced the tape-slide presentation for the Friday Star Parties.

Orion was selected for telescope viewing because it is one of the few regions of the Milky Way in which new stars are being born. Jupiter, the largest planet in the solar system, has 16 moons, some of which are visible through telescopes. Jupiter's giant red spot is larger than several Earths.

Ganymede, the largest moon in the solar system, may be viewed through telescopes at the observatory and compared with photographs in the tape-slide presentation.

The rings of Saturn, though photographed by both Voyager missions, remain objects of scientific wonder. They were first observed in the 17th century by Galileo, who could not, however, ascertain their composition.

The SSU Observatory is located atop Brookens Library on the University's Main Campus. Entrance is at the southeast corner of the library building.

Star Parties are free and open to the public. Visitors may call the University operator at 786-6600 after 7 p.m. on Fridays to determine if sky conditions are suitable for viewing.

Joyce Elliott, assistant professor of women's studies and sociology at Sangamon State University, was inadvertently left out of the list of faculty who contributed to the 1982 Intersession.
Eleventh spring festival opens Clayville season

Nearly 100 artisans will demonstrate the crafts of rural 19th century Illinois during the 11th annual Spring Crafts Festival at Sangamon State University’s Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum, Saturday and Sunday, May 1 and 2.

The festival opens Clayville’s 1982 season and features craftspersons from throughout the Midwest demonstrating such typical 1800s crafts as scrimshaw carving, fishnet weaving, woodcarving, soap making, pottery, quilting and more.

A large selection of foods typical of 19th century rural America will also be available and music of the era will be performed throughout the festival, which is open to the public between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. both days. Admission to the Festival is $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens, and free for children 16 and under.

Special events for the season include Children’s Day, May 8 (rain date, May 9); a Rug Hooking Show on May 15 and 16; and a public auction and fund raising sale for Clayville, sponsored by the SSU Foundation and the Friends of Clayville on Saturday, May 22.

Metal Workers Day is scheduled for Sunday, May 30; the annual Quilt Show is set for June 12 and 13; and an antique show and sale will be held Sunday, June 27.

On July 3 and 4, members of the Clayville Folk Arts Guild will bring their interpretation of 19th century Illinois life to Springfield’s second annual Lincolnfest.

Decorative Arts Day will be held at Clayville on Sunday, July 18, and Woodcrafters Day on Sunday, Aug. 1. Needlework will be featured Aug. 7 and 8, and the extremely popular Clayville Music Festival, sponsored by the Illinois Arts Council, the Folk Arts Guild and SSU, is set for Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 14 and 15.

Folk Foods Day will be Aug. 29; an Afghan Show, Sept. 12; and a second antique show and sale, Sept. 19. The annual Fall Crafts Festival will take place Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 2 and 3. The regular season ends on Oct. 31.

On Dec. 12, the Clayville inn will open to the public for a special Christmas at Clayville celebration, re-creating the Christmases of rural Illinois in the 1850s.

Once a stagecoach stop, Clayville is open to the public 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays and on holidays May through October. Daily tours and living history interpretations are given for individuals and groups. Larger groups should be scheduled in advance.

The Clayville Rural Life Center and Museum is located 12 miles west of Springfield on Illinois Route 125. For more information, call the Center at 217/626-1132 or Sangamon State University at 217/786-6058.

SSU credit union receives charter

The Sangamon State University Employees Credit Union — for all permanent full- and part-time staff members — received its official charter from the Illinois Department of Financial Institutions on March 23.

A booth in Brookens Concourse will be staffed from noon to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays to sign up new members, answer questions and transact other business. For further information contact any of the credit union board members: Gloria Casey, Judy Clanton, Pat Copeland, Bob Crane, George Kane, Shirley Kinley, Jim Korte, Shirley Maurath or Pearl Mounce.

Borge concerts set for May 15

Virtuoso comedian Victor Borge will bring his unique style of humor to the stage of the Sangamon State University Auditorium for two shows on Saturday, May 15. Borge’s appearance was scheduled as an addition to the regular Auditorium season as part of the Commencement weekend festivities.

Combining a sophisticated wit with masterful keyboard artistry, Borge is considered the comedian’s comedian as well as the musician’s musician. Affectionately called “the Great Dane,” he holds the world record of 849 performances (on Broadway) for a one-man show and has one of the most demanding concert schedules of any artist before the public today.

As a maestro, Borge has conducted scores of leading symphony orchestras, including the prestigious Concertgebouw in Amsterdam; the Danish Royal Symphony; the London Philharmonic; and the Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit and Cleveland symphony orchestras.

Tickets are on sale now. Prices are $12 for orchestra/loge seating, $11 for mezzanine and $9 for balcony, Visa and MasterCard orders will be accepted.

Dinner will be served in the Public Affairs Center restaurant between 7 and 9:30 p.m.; and the dessert buffet will be served during the same hours in a PAC conference room. Both the restaurant and conference rooms are located on the first level of the PAC.

For ticket information, contact the SSU Ticket Office at 217/786-6160. For dinner reservations, call 786-6768.

Ray Johnson (right) supervisor of credit unions for the Illinois Department of Financial Institutions, presents the charter for SSU’s newly formed Employees Credit Union to union board chairman Robert Crane and SSU director of Personnel Services Velma Carey during the union’s initial sign-up session on March 23. Carey and University President Alex Lacy are the sponsors of the credit union.
Illinois Issues publishes special reports on the cutback amendment and new federalism

Illinois Issues, Sangamon State University's monthly public affairs magazine, has published a special report on "The Cutback Amendment." Produced in cooperation with SSU's Illinois Legislative Studies Center, the report was published as a special edition of the magazine.

Written by David H. Everson, director of the ILSC, and Joan Parker, a researcher in the center — with the aid of Kent D. Redfield, associate director of the ILSC, William L. Day, editor emeritus of Illinois Issues, and Rita Harmony, a researcher in the center — the 36-page monograph explores the origins, passage and effects the amendment will have on government and political life in the state.

"The report is the first full treatment of cumulative voting in Illinois — from the Civil War right up through the passage of the amendment eliminating cumulative voting and reducing the size of the Illinois House," said Michael Lennon, publisher of the magazine. Lennon, together with Caroline Gherardini, editor of Illinois Issues, edited the special report.

The monograph contains chapters on the history of cumulative voting between 1870 and 1970, the 1970 Constitutional Convention, the controversial 1978 legislative pay raise which sparked citizen group efforts to initiate the amendment, the passage of the amendment, and an in-depth look at future consequences the cutback is likely to have.

Copies of the special edition can be obtained from: Illinois Issues, Building K, Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL 62708 (217/786-6084). Cost is $4 plus 50 cents postage per copy.

A two-part series on "The New Federalism in Illinois," an in-depth look at the effects Reaganomics will have on the state, began in the March issue of Illinois Issues and will conclude in May.

Written by Thomas J. Anton, professor of political science at the Center for Political Studies, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan, the comprehensive study is based on extremely detailed fiscal data and estimates and tracks federal funds at the state, county and local levels in Illinois over the past 10 years. Anton is considered by many to be one of the finest scholars of intergovernmental relations in the nation today.

"The New Federalism in Illinois" compares federal outlays with federal tax receipts and pays particular attention to the savings the Reagan administration claims will result from the consolidation of categorical grant programs into "blocks," said Lennon.

"For the first time, the lay public in Illinois will have a clear and unambiguous picture of how Illinois will fare under Reagan's 'New Federalism,'" he added. "Anton explains precisely how much each major governmental unit will receive in each of the 100 largest federal programs (accounting for 88 percent of all federal expenditures); how these outlays compare with past outlays; and how they compare with those in other states.

"These comparisons will certainly be of immediate and important use to Illinois policymakers as they prepare the state's response to what Anton calls the most far-reaching reorganization of the federal system since the first 100 days of the New Deal," Lennon pointed out.

Mike Lawrence, Illinois statehouse correspondent for Lee Enterprises, will write two articles evaluating the responses of state and local officials to the "new federalism." These articles, which complete the magazine's series, will appear in future editions. The series was funded in part by a grant from the Angel Charitable Trust of Chicago.

Copies of the magazine's series on the new federalism may also be obtained by writing to Illinois Issues. Include $2.25 plus 50 cents postage for each issue ordered.

Conference on Operations Research Applications set for April

A "Conference on Operations Research Applications," presented by Sangamon State University's Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation, will be held Wednesday, April 28, in the Public Affairs Center.

The day-long conference is free and open to the public.

Topics to be discussed include: "Comparative Evaluation of Gross Erosion Assessment Techniques Used in the Blue Creek Watershed"; "Print Shop Consolidation"; "Developing a Classification System for the Illinois Department of Corrections"; "The Program Evaluator: Caught in the Network of Services?"; "Mathematical Programming Applications in the Public Sector"; "Decentralization Strategies for Public Sector Planning and Control"; "Significance Placed on Operations Research by Internal Auditors"; "The Importance of Model Building in Operations Research"; "Measuring Organizational Conflict: The Dimensionality Reduction Technique"; "Benefit-Cost Analysis with Non-Monetary and Unknown Variables"; "Modeling the Movement of Persons Between Statutes in Human Services"; "Public Transportation Fare Policies and Consumer Behavior"; "An Actuarial Planning and Modeling Method"; and "Integrating Cost-Benefit Analysis Results into State Funding Mechanisms for Health Care."

Sangamon State faculty participating in the conference will be: Rassule Hadidi, assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs; John Collins, director of the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation and associate professor of public administration; Ardeshrir Lohrasbi, assistant professor of management; John Poertner, assistant professor of child, family and community services; and Henry Smyrinski, associate professor of health services administration.

Other speakers will be: Thomas E. Davenport, Environmental Protection Agency; V. A. Toolen, former state director; Nola Joyce, Jeanne Cyriace, Robert Jones and David Jaet, all of the Illinois Department of Corrections; Wynne Sandra Korr, Jane Addams School of Social Work, University of Illinois Chicago Circle; Osman Coskun, assistant professor of general engineering; Stuart Nagel, professor of political science, and Merlin Labor, professor of social work, all from the University of Illinois; Robert Paul Beech, Chicago-Read Mental Health Center; Robert A. Wallhaus, Illinois Board of Higher Education; Rudy Davenport, Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc.; Charles Gurian, Main Hurdman Certified Public Accountants; Mary Ellen Guy, South Carolina State Hospital; Abby Taubin and Don Kopec, Chicago Area Transportation Study; Philip S. Salisbury, Illinois Department of Public Aid; and Charles E. Bennett, Richard L. Fox and John R. Noak, all of the Division of Health, Information and Evaluation, Department of Public Health.

Luncheon is available to conference participants for $4. Registrations should be made no later than April 16.

For further information about the program contact Rassule Hadidi at 217/786-6770. To register contact the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at 217/786-6576.
WSSR side-band service aids the print handicapped

The WSSR Print-Handicapped Service, a station activity unfamiliar to a large segment of the community, is an additional effort at fulfilling the station's mandate to serve an audience underserved by other media.

Jeanne Enlow, coordinator of the service, explained in non-engineer terms the side-band used for the programming: "Because of the broad frequency range available in FM broadcasting, it is possible to piggyback a number of audio channels on a single carrier. At WSSR, two of those channels are used for the two sides of a stereo broadcast, leaving another channel for specialized programming. This last channel is the SCA (Subsidiary Communication Authorization) and requires a special receiver, which the station makes available to those using the special service. This targeted signal to a special receiver is referred to as a narrowcast, rather than a broadcast.

"Some examples are the signals used for 'piped-in music' heard in elevators, restaurants, etc., and for 'closed captioned' television service," she added.

Describing the service and its need, Jeanne continued: "The visually handicapped turn to radio rather than other media — television, newspapers, magazines — as a means to help sustain and enrich their lives. We try to bridge the gap between the handicapped and the non-handicapped with a variety of informative and entertaining programs."

A recent national survey revealed that 1.5 percent of the population in any given area are visually impaired, which means that in the 10 counties served by WSSR there are approximately 7,000 residents in need of the service. Locating those people depends on word-of-mouth advertising.

Jeanne reported on her goal of placing 10 receivers each month. "We have reached the goal we set last fall, when we activated the service beyond instructional programming, but we are a long way from our hopes of placing some 4,000 to 7,000 receivers with individuals who need them."

Jeanne urges anyone who knows of individuals in need of the service to contact her and she will get in touch with the individuals to offer the service and a receiver.

Anyone who is unable to hold or read printed matter due to a visual or physical handicap is eligible for a receiver free of charge as long as it is needed. Applicants must be registered with the Library of Congress Talking Book Service or with the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, or be certified blind. A receiver will be delivered or mailed, depending upon the location of the applicant.

Local SCA programs are supplemented by those available from National Public Radio's National Program Service for the Print-Handicapped, including reading of the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal. Offered twice daily, Monday through Friday. Locally, the State Journal Register is read each day by Jeanne and other volunteer readers. "(By the way, if you enjoy reading aloud and have the time to volunteer your services, please call Jeanne.)"

Area papers — including the Taylorville Breeze-Courier, Decatur Herald, Pawnee Post and the Mt. Pulaski Times — are read weekly. Jeanne explained, "We concentrate on local items, features and national columns, because obviously our audience may receive their state and national news and some local government reports from other broadcast media. However, we do headline such news in case, for some reason, they have missed a news story."

"It was a surprise," added Jeanne, "to discover how popular the reading of the newspapers’ ads and want ads was. We do comparative shopping of the ads and listeners really use the information."

Jeanne continued, "Other popular local programs that have proven to be of service are ‘Bridging the Gap’ and ‘Sharing.’ ‘Bridging the Gap’ presents sighted guests and topics concerned with details which can be learned by reading, such as first aid, consumer fraud and taxes. On ‘Sharing’ the guests are sight-impaired and have much to offer on how to cope with activities that sighted individuals take for granted, such as sewing and travel.

Programs from NPR and other sources include ‘At Home on the Range,’ a program on cooking hosted by a blind gourmet; ‘Kindred Spirits,’ which discusses different aspects of the world’s religions; ‘Law and the Disabled’ which features two disabled Washington attorneys speaking on the rights of the disabled and the laws that govern them; ‘Let’s Hear It!’, a weekly news magazine that examines legislative, consumer and national issues as they affect handicapped persons; and ‘Incorporation,’ consisting of readings from various publications focusing on information for and about the handicapped.

There must be support for a service such as the WSSR print-handicapped program. Financial support comes from Sangamon State University and a major grant from the Illinois State Library. Important support is also given by the many volunteers, and those who use the service and support it by giving of their time to serve on the advisory board. And still others take an active interest in the programming of the service and participate on call-in programs, contributing answers they have discovered to the big and little problems of the sight-impaired.

Arts and sciences forums continue

Two programs remain in the spring series of forums sponsored by the Arts and Sciences Cluster at Sangamon State University. The programs present humanities and science faculty summarizing the processes and products of their recent research in informal discussion sessions.

The forums are held from noon to 1 p.m. on Fridays. Participants are encouraged to bring their lunches; coffee and dessert are provided.

Remaining programs in the spring series are scheduled for April 16 and 30. On April 16 in room J-149 Ray Schroeder, associate professor of communication, will share segments of his recent videographies and explain this new form of filmmaking. On April 30 in room G-38 Peter Wenz, assistant professor of philosophy, and Mary Kate Yntema, professor of mathematics, will offer their analyses of Douglas Hofstadter's award-winning Godel, Escher, Bach — a computer scientist's examination of parallel musical and visual forms.

Previous programs this spring have presented Anne Devaney, Linda King and Bob Dixon — assistant professors of creative arts — discussing their work on display in the annual Faculty Show; Mark Siebert, professor of music, discussing the work of the Sangamon Consort, a group which performs music written before 1750; and John Knoopke, professor of literature, reading selections from his Sangamon River Basin poems.
K. G. Janardan, professor of mathematical systems at Sangamon State, and John E. Miller, data processing analyst at SSU, both made presentations at the meeting of the Illinois Chapter of the American Statistical Association held March 27 at Bradley University.

Janardan spoke on "Loglinear Modeling: A Study of Gall Bladder Disease"; Miller's topic was "Naive Contingency Table Analysis: An Application."

Karen Karczewski and William Wilson, students in Sangamon State University's Medical Technology Program, have been selected chair and vice-chair, respectively, of the Student Forum of the Illinois Medical Technology Association. Karczewski previously attended Illinois Central College and is an officer of the Medical Technology Club at Sangamon State. Wilson attended the University of Kentucky and is president of the club.

Two members of the Sangamon State University faculty contributed chapters to a new book entitled Socialization, Sexism and Stereotyping: Women's Issues in Nursing, published by the C. V. Mosby Company. Alma Lower-Palmer, associate professor of nursing and anthropology, wrote a chapter on "The Cultural Basis of Political Behavior in Two Groups," which concerns nurses and political activists. Wilma Scott Heide, professor of women's studies and innovative and experimental studies, wrote a chapter on "Feminist Activities in Nursing and Health Care."

W. Williams Stevens, Jr., faculty associate to the vice-president for academic affairs, and Stuart Anderson, professor of educational administration at Sangamon State, are the authors of an article about the SSU publication Capital Commentary, which appeared in the February issue of the National Civic Review.

Capital Commentary is a newspaper focusing on state government and politics written especially for high school students. The paper was initiated by Stevens and Anderson in 1979. Currently published by Illinois Issues, Capital Commentary is distributed to 1,050 Illinois classrooms.

The National Civic Review is a citizen's forum on self-government published by the National Municipal League.

James Martin, a member of the Administration Program at Sangamon State, gave a paper at the annual meeting of the Midwest Chapter of the International Society of Arboriculture, held in St. Louis in March. Martin's topic was "Marketing in the Tree Business."

Charles Strozier, associate professor of history at Sangamon State, was one of three professionals who presented a program on the history of mental illness in the U.S. and Central Illinois March 28 at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. Strozier's topic was "Historical Uses of Psychiatric Records: Jacksonville State Hospital and the 1850s," in which he discussed the records and how they reflected the United States at that time. The other speakers were Jacksonville physician Frank Norbury and Miroslav Velek, associate professor of psychiatry at SIU.

Richard Judd, associate professor of management at Sangamon State University, has signed with Prentice-Hall, Inc. to write Strategic Management and Policy: Concepts and Cases. Judd's co-authors on the textbook will be Robert Justis of the University of Nebraska and David Stephens of the University of Texas. A January, 1984, publication date is expected.

Jeanne-Marie Col, associate professor of public administration at Sangamon State, has been elected Region VI representative to the Executive Board of the National Young Professionals Forum, which is a section of the American Society for Public Administration. Region VI includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Col also recently hosted a delegation of six members of parliament from the Ugandan National Assembly. During their visit the Ugandans met with staff of the University's Illinois Legislative Studies Center, legislators, and staff members from the General Assembly.

Ronald Havens and Richard Dimond, both associate professors of psychology, are members of the newly elected faculty senate at Sangamon State University. Havens is professor of psychology; and Robert Wesley, former SSU student, are the authors of "A Nationwide Comparison of Doctoral and Subdoctoral Clinical Psychologists and M.S.W. Social Workers in Public Mental Health Settings," which has been accepted for publication by Professional Psychology.

Sangamon State University Professor of City Planning Mark Heyman was one of four panelists who took part in the Women in Communications annual "Hearts and Darts" discussion on Feb. 23. Subject of this year's program was media treatment of the tax increment financing plan for Springfield's downtown area. Other panelists were Carolyn Oxboby, downtown developer; Don Logue, Springfield Central Area Development Association; and Jim Grimes, Communications instructor at the Capital Area Vocational Center. Barbara Dickerman, League of Women Voters, served as moderator.

Kirchner named internal auditor

Sandy Kirchner has been appointed internal auditor for Sangamon State University. Kirchner, who assumed her duties March 15, comes to SSU from the Public Affairs Department of the city of Springfield where she served as an internal auditor in the mayor's office.

A 1976 graduate of Illinois State University, Kirchner received her bachelor's degree in accounting. She is a 1972 graduate of Normal Community High School.

Her professional background includes one year with Roosevelt National Life Insurance Company, two years with the Illinois Auditor General's Office and two years with the city of Springfield.

At Sangamon State, Kirchner will be responsible for the development of an auditing program for next year as well as for the next five years. She will report to the president.

She is a member of the governing board of the Springfield chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditors and is currently seeking election to the post of chapter secretary.

The SSU Talent Show, scheduled for April 24, has been cancelled due to lack of participation.

Copy for the May issue of the SSU Journal should reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than April 27.
Tennis heads list of spring activities

The first round of tennis lessons offered by the Sangamon State University Athletics and Recreation Office will begin April 26 and run through May 20.

Beginners may sign up for classes held Mondays and Wednesdays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. or Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Intermediate classes will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. or 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Other four-week sessions are scheduled as follows: Session I, June 7 to July 1; Session II, July 5 to 29; Session IV, Aug. 2 to 26; and Session V, Aug. 30 to Sept. 30.

Youth classes, available during sessions II, III and IV only, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. (for ages 7-10) or on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1 to 2 p.m. (for ages 11-14).

Cost of the lessons is $10 for SSU students and activity card holders, $18 for youths and $20 for community members. Participants will be required to provide an unopened can of tennis balls in addition to the fee.

Other activities sponsored by the Athletics and Recreation Office include trips to two St. Louis Cardinal baseball games, a Play Day in Center Park, and an opportunity to join the Sangamon River All-Craft Race.

Trips to St. Louis to see Cardinals baseball are scheduled for Sunday, April 18, and Friday, May 7. On April 18 the Cardinals will face the Philadelphia Phillies in a game that begins at 1:15 p.m. The May 7 game, against the Atlanta Braves, begins at 7:35 p.m.

Cost of each trip is $13 for SSU students and activity card holders, or $20 for other people. The price includes transportation by luxury bus and field box seats. The bus will leave SSU at 10:30 a.m. on April 18 and at 5 p.m. on May 7. A free country and western concert by an artist to be announced later will follow the May 7 game.

A free Play Day will be held Saturday, April 24, at Springfield's Center Park. Entertainment, food and drink will be provided. The rain date is May 1.

Anyone interested in entering an SSU-sponsored craft in the Sangamon River All-Craft Race should call the Athletics and Recreation Office.

Series examines philosophical themes in black life

“Philosophical Themes in Black Life,” a six-week lecture series offered by Sangamon State University’s Office of Continuing Education, is meeting Thursdays at 7 p.m. in room 100A of the Capitol Campus, Sixth and Capitol Streets.

The series began March 25. Otis Bolden, SSU’s affirmative action officer, will conduct the series, which explores the subject through discussion, guest lecturers, films and an examination of current literature. Among the books to be examined are: The Invisible Man and Shadow and Act by Ralph Ellison; Nobody Knows My Name and Notes of a Native Son by James Baldwin; Negritude by Leopold Senghor; Whispers From a Lost Continent by Wilfred Cartey; and The Wretched of the Earth by Franz Fannon.

Bolden, an educator and administrator, has taught black philosophy, sociology and literature at Webster College and St. Louis Community College at Forest Park. He was director of the Black Studies Program and assistant dean of instruction at Forest Park before coming to SSU.

Eight faculty members to take sabbatical leave

Eight Sangamon State University faculty members have been granted sabbatical leave for the 1982-1983 academic year by the Board of Regents. They are Marilou Burnett, Alexander Casella, Lawrence Golden, Robert Haynes, David Hilligoss, Caryl Moy, Larry Shiner and Mary Kate Yntema.

Burnett, associate professor of human development counseling, will take leave the entire academic year to do research on three-generational family dynamics for a monograph on family reconstruction. Her research will be conducted at the Universities of Oklahoma, Wisconsin, California at Berkeley and Stanford, and the Boston Family Institute at Harvard.

Casella, associate professor of environmental studies, has requested leave during the spring of 1983 to conduct research and writing on energy planning. His work will take place either at the Institute of Local Self-Reliance in Washington, D.C., or at the University of San Francisco.

Golden, associate professor of political studies, will survey literature on inequality, American law and the American legal system during his leave in the spring of 1983. His research, to be used as background in the critical theory of American law, will take place at the Universities of Massachusetts and Wisconsin, and in London.

Haynes, associate professor of biology, will work with Dr. Clyde Goulden at the Division of Limnology and Ecology of the Academy of Natural Science in Philadelphia, researching the systematics and evolution of microcrustacea. The research results will be potentially useful in screening industrial toxins. He will be gone the entire academic year.

Hilligoss, associate professor of experimental studies, will culminate nearly 20 years of studying native American community organization, and educational alternatives, with research at three native American communities — Big Mountain, Arizona; Bell Community, Oklahoma; and Big Yellow Thunder Camp, South Dakota. The results of his interviews will be compiled into a book. He will be gone in the spring of 1983.

Moy, associate professor of child, family and community services, plans to complete supervisory training in family therapy to allow her to become certified as an approved supervisor by the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy. Her work will be conducted at Northern Illinois University during the fall of 1982.

Shiner, professor of philosophy, will complete a book-length project entitled The Interpretative Nexus: A Phenomenological Approach to Historical Knowledge. The work deals with debate over the radical differences between natural science and human science, and between the explanations in science and explanation in history. His work will be conducted in the spring of 1983.

Yntema, professor of mathematics, will spend the academic year writing a book for math-anxious adults. The book will be designed for people who are willing to try math but don’t know where to start. Her work will be conducted in Springfield.

Governor proclaims SpringfieId Energy Project Day

Wednesday, April 28, was proclaimed "Springfield Energy Project Day" by Illinois Governor James R. Thompson in recognition of the work done by project participants in producing a plan to make Springfield a more energy self-reliant city.

Ellen Craig, special assistant to the governor for consumer affairs, presented the proclamation to SEP Director Alexander J. Casella, associate professor of environmental studies at Sangamon State University, during a ceremony in the Statehouse Press Room. Springfield Mayor J. Michael Houston and Commissioner Paul Bonasinga were also on hand for the presentation.

That evening, project volunteers were honored at a dinner in the restaurant of SSU's Public Affairs Center. David Morris, director of the Institute for Local Self-Reliance, Washington, D.C., delivered the keynote address on "Energy Self-Reliance for Springfield - The Path Ahead."

The Springfield Energy Project is a community-based energy planning project that has been exploring since January, 1981, the energy options open to the city. The SEP's goal has been to produce a plan which would enable the city to cut its energy consumption by 40 percent and produce 50 percent of its energy locally by the year 2000.

SEP's 289-page final report was presented to the Springfield City Council on April 27. The document contains over 50 objectives and 250 recommendations produced by the project's 10 task forces which, if implemented, could make the community more energy efficient and could help prevent the flow of energy dollars from the city.

The Governor's proclamation recognizes the Springfield Energy Project as an "outstanding example of cooperation, with representatives from educational institutions, state and local governments, businesses, community groups and concerned individuals working together on Energy Future Task Forces."

The project was funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation, with additional assistance from the U.S. Department of Energy and Sangamon State University. Nearly 200 Springfield citizens participated in the task forces and contributed to the recommendations.

New book takes a detailed look at the public and private Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln the man has often seemed infinitely distant from Lincoln the President; yet the man of mournful countenance who suffered recurrent bouts of depression and withdrawal was also a vigorous political leader who transformed the anguish of the Civil War into "malice toward none; charity for all."

Lincoln's Quest for Union, a new biography of the 16th president written by Charles Strozier, assistant professor of history at Sangamon State University, finally brings the public and private man together by showing how Lincoln's personal character and style responded to the needs of a divided nation.

Drawing on both public records and personal memoirs — most notably the autobiographical sketch Lincoln prepared for his presidential campaign and the recently discovered papers of Robert Todd Lincoln — Strozier, a highly regarded Lincoln scholar, paints a richly detailed portrait of this complex and heroic figure.

Strozier examines simultaneously the family and professional lives of the President to reveal how mastery of his own divided self enabled him to express, through his absolute command of language and extraordinary empathy, the profound political and emotional needs of a divided nation.

With Lincoln's Quest for Union, Strozier has managed "to add dimension to our understanding of Lincoln's private motives and their relation to his public stance," said reviewer Richard N. Current, university distinguished professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and author of The Lincoln Nobody Knows.

Lincoln's Quest for Union is now available, at $17.50 for hardbound copies, from bookstores or direct from the publisher, Basic Books, Inc. of New York, NY.

The Illinois Humanities Council has awarded $11,000 to Sangamon State University's Oral History Office for "Eyewitness Illinois II: Stories of the Governorship," an oral history program. The project director's memoirs of living former Illinois governors. The office was awarded funds in 1986 for "Eyewitness Illinois I" and spent last year collecting and processing oral histories of recent governors. "Eyewitness II" is the second phase of the project — the dissemination of that information to the public through a comprehensive multimedia program.

Drawing from oral histories of legislators and other state officials as well as former governors, the project director and an advisory board will generate news releases, magazine articles, feature stories and radio broadcasts. Some of these historical reminiscences were already part of SSU's extensive collection.

The project began March 1 and will require 13 months to complete. In addition to the Humanities Council grant, funds were also provided by the University and through private donations.

According to project director Marilyn Immel, this project is based on the conviction that "the business of the governor deserves larger and better public understanding, and that oral history techniques offer a distinctive way of achieving it."

Equally important is the belief that since 1945 the Illinois governorship has evolved from a relatively quiet, simple and informal office to a complex, modern and diversified executive operation. Finally, "Eyewitness Illinois" demonstrates that the governorship embraces critical humanistic concerns since executive decisions and behavior reveal not only a great deal about the governor as a person but also about society's values and the quality of life in the state.

A complete transcript of the project will be available at a later date.

A poster commemorating the 10th anniversary of Sangamon State University's first graduating class was unveiled at an April 15 reception hosted by Franklin Life Insurance Company. The original design, screen-printed poster was created by Steve Mercer, a Peoria-based artist commissioned by Franklin Life for the project. The poster incorporates a symbolic shape of the SSU campus superimposed on an indigenous Central Illinois background using the University's colors of blue and white. Maallee Lindley, chairwoman of the Tenth Anniversary Committee (left), and Mercer unveil the poster which will be offered for sale in a limited edition. For information call 786-6716.

Former PAR student wins Pulitzer Prize

Sangamon State University graduate Debbie Singer Peterson will share a Pulitzer Prize for stories she wrote for the Kansas City Star covering last year's Hyatt Hotel disaster and identification of its causes.

Peterson, a former student in SSU's Public Affairs Reporting program, shares the prize with other reporters on the Star staff who also covered the story.

Bill Miller, associate professor of public affairs reporting and director of the program, said, "I was overwhelmed when I heard of Debbie's prize. She was an excellent student and is a tremendous reporter."

Peterson interned with the Associated Press while at SSU and was employed with AP as an Illinois Statehouse correspondent following graduation. She married another PAR graduate, Mark Peterson, in 1981.

Peterson is a native of Chicago and received the B.A. from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale. At SSU she was a recipient of the James E. Armstrong Memorial Scholarship, presented by the State Journal-Register.

Energy Studies seminars conclude

The final program in the Energy Studies Gathering informal seminar series for the spring will be Tuesday, May 11, when Caren Grantz, graduate assistant with the University's Springfield Energy Project, will discuss "Energy Attitudes in Springfield: Survey Results."

The program is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. in room 3B of the Public Affairs Center.

The series is sponsored by Energy Studies and the Innovative and Experimental Studies Cluster at Sangamon State University. Everyone is invited to attend.

Copy for the June 7 issue of the SSU Journal must reach the Publications Office, B-57, no later than May 28.
1982 Intersession continues to absorb student interest

If students continuing to meet beyond course requirements is any criterion for success, then Sangamon State University’s Intersession ‘82, “The Struggle for Peaceful Conflict Resolution,” must certainly be considered a success. Most of the students are continuing to meet.

From March 12 through 20, for nine intensive days and/or evenings, approximately 100 participants addressed peaceful conflict resolution via readings, simulation experiences, drama, films, small group discussions and presentations by guest faculty. Focusing on sexism, racism, workplace and class relations, and consumer experiences — in and out of the home — participants drew on these experiences including power inequalities as parts of the genuses of human conflicts. Implications of these four areas for national and international relations were explored during — and since — Intersession. Participants learned to acknowledge conflict as normal and to address it as a powerful potential for growth rather than a negative reality to be avoided.

Participants learned of the racist symbolism behind many common expressions; they discussed patriarchal and androcentric values as a cause of individual and institutionalized sexism; the absence of democracy in the workplace was traced to classist and elitist roots; discussions of consumer relations also revealed inequalities of power that generate conflict.

The small group discussions were the most intense part of the Intersession. Exploring such possibilities as the public and private valuing of empathy, compassion and nurturance to create a healthier and more peaceful environment, participants recognized that it may take more energy, creativity, courage and leadership to resolve conflicts peacefully than to resort to violence (which itself acknowledges the impotence of the violent). Questions raised included observations about the roles of the communications media in glorifying violence, militarism and “macho” behaviors, while making peaceful behavior seem less newsworthy and less dynamic.

These small group discussions included processes that reflected feminist and related perspectives which value both cognitive and effective learning. Power was sometimes redefined to include empowerment of self and others, rather than control over others, and education itself was seen as political in the generic sense of promoting empowerment and change. Discussions were often characterized as having “x-ray vision . . . cutting through the most superficial layer to the core.”

The entire Intersession, except for the small group discussions, was open to the public. This included the final Saturday’s daylong workshops on action possible beyond Intersession, and an Action Fair of resources for peaceful conflict resolution. Some students may have expected a kind of handbook on peaceful conflict resolution, but most came to realize that the Intersession provided instead some experience in understanding human conflicts, some non-adversarial ways to grow through addressing conflict, and some resources to create their own peaceful conflict resolution processes.

For the first time, Intersession public events were signed for the hearing impaired. All but the small group discussions were videotaped and audiotaped. Educational materials will be developed from these resources. Was Intersession ‘82 a success? Ask the participants. Its planning was a struggle, as are peaceful conflict resolutions themselves.

Illinois Issues, Sangamon State University’s monthly public affairs magazine, has received a $13,893 grant from the Illinois Humanities Council to continue its series of humanities essays in 1982.

Watkins will supplement the essay with an article on political parties and the women’s movement which will also appear in the May magazine.

Future essays will be provided by Garry Wills, professor of history at Northwestern University, on “Liberal Education,” scheduled for publication this summer; Eugene Kennedy, professor of psychology at Loyola University, on “The Passing of the Immigrant Church in Chicago,” to appear in early fall; and Carolyn Marvin, of the University of Pennsylvania, on “Information Technology and the Humanities,” to appear in late fall. The fifth essay, scheduled for the December issue, will be assigned soon.

The Illinois Issues Humanities Essays series began in 1981 with a selection of six essays. The IHC grant supplies partial funding for the series and is provided in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Humanities. Free copies of the essays will be available from the IHC, 201 West Springfield, Champaign, IL 61820.

WSSR helps train WIU news director

Ken Thermon, news director of Western Illinois University’s public radio station WIUM, recently completed a seven-week training period in the WSSR newsroom under the supervision of News Director Rich Bradley.

The expenses Thermon incurred commuting from Macomb to Springfield twice a week were underwritten by an “In Service” Training Grant secured by WIUM from the Cooperation for Public Broadcasting.

At WSSR Thermon concentrated in newsmagazine formats, working with student newscasters and covering news events.

The training Thermon received at WSSR will aid him in developing the policy and philosophy of the news department at WIUM, which has been qualified as a National Public Radio station since February, 1982.
Weather terms and procedures clarified

Since spring is the time when tornados and other severe weather conditions are most likely to occur in Central Illinois, the University's Public Safety Office has published a clarification of weather terms, procedures to follow in the event of severe weather, and the best areas for shelter on campus.

WEATHER TERMS

Tornado warning: a tornado has been sighted or is indicated on radar.

CAMPUS NOTIFICATION SYSTEMS

Siren: Civil Defense system.

Public address system: police or emergency vehicles.

Weather wardens: Designated people in each building, responsible for alerting others in their immediate work areas and assisting them to a sheltered area.

Note: Fire alarms should NOT be used as a weather alert. Contact Public Safety if you spot a funnel cloud or if an emergency or problem exists in your area.

The Public Safety Office monitors weather conditions constantly, by radio and officer observation. If severe weather conditions arise between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., the office will notify weather wardens. After 5 p.m., people on campus will be notified of severe weather conditions through a cooperative effort of Public Safety, the campus operator, stationary engineer, staff in Brookens Library and the duty dean.

Diagrams showing shelter areas have been posted at the entrance to each campus building. In general these areas are: restrooms; other central areas of the buildings, by support walls and away from glass; in lower floors or basements; in areas not paralleling the tornado's path. Outdoors seek shelter in ditches, culverts or ravines.

Eight top players signed for '82 Prairie Stars

The nation's top junior college soccer scorer and two of his teammates from Oklahoma's Claremore College, a Springfield native, and four members of the Lewis and Clark Community College soccer team have all signed letters of intent to attend Sangamon State University in the fall.

Momodou Musa, Essa Sarr and Mike Deering, from Claremore College; Marty Stuper, from Springfield; and Scott Hennessey, Steve Reust, Stephen Nauman and Kevin Robson, all from Lewis and Clark, will join the 1982 Prairie Stars.

Musa, a 6'1", 160 lb. striker, led the Claremore Thunderbirds to a 16-1-0 record in 1981, good for a fifth-place ranking in the National Junior College Athletic Association. Musa poured in 38 goals in the team's 17-game season, averaging just over two goals a game. He scored 68 goals in his two seasons at Claremore, an NJCAA record.

Musa and Sarr, both from Gambia, West Africa, and Deering, from Tulsa, Okla., were the top three players from a team which shut out nine opponents and scored 138 goals during the season. The Thunderbirds were eliminated from the NJCAA tournament at the regional level by the eventual national champions, St. Louis Community College-Florissant Valley.

Musa, an accountancy major, and Sarr, a political studies major, have been playing soccer since the age of five. Both were members of the Gambian Junior National Team. Deering did not begin playing soccer until he was 19. He will major in management at SSU.

Stuper is a 5'10", 155 lb. fullback/fullback who has been attending American University in Washington, D.C. He previously attended Lincoln Land Community College, where he played on the 1978 and 1979 Loggers, and Lanphier High School, where he played soccer during his junior and senior years. Stuper will major in political studies at SSU.

Hennessey is a 6', 160 lb. midfielder who will major in business administration. Reust is a 6'4", 195 lb. fullback who will study social justice professions. Nauman is a 5'10", 155 lb. forward/midfielder who will major in environmental studies. All three are from Florissant, Mo.

Robson, a 5'8", 150 lb. halfback who will major in chemistry, is from Spanish Lake, Mo.

The addition of these players brings the total of newly recruited Prairie Stars to 18. Ten players from Illinois and Minnesota were signed last month.

SSU soccer coach Aydin Gonulsen said that it has been incorrectly reported that halfback Tony Fantam and striker Charles Gardner are among eight players who will not return from the Prairie Stars' 1981 squad.

Said Gonulsen, "Although they are seniors, Fantam and Gardner both have a remaining year of eligibility and will be members of the '82 team.'

In addition to Fantam and Gardner, returning players from '81 are last year's Most Valuable Player George Lidster, Kevin Arnott, Dean Webb and Chuck White.

The Sangamon State University Office of Continuing Education and the Sangamon County Heart Association, an affiliate of the American Heart Association, will sponsor a one-day seminar entitled "Coronary Artery Disease: State of the Art" on Wednesday, May 5, in the SSU Public Affairs Center.

The seminar is designed to provide health professionals with state of the art information on coronary artery disease. Participants will review the theories of pathology and the disease process; explore new concepts of treatment; discuss current assessment approaches and explore developments in rehabilitation, the psychosocial aspects of care, arrhythmia genesis and drug therapy.

A registration fee of $28, including the cost of materials, lunch and refreshments, is required. Students enrolled in accredited nursing programs may participate for $15.

For information contact the SSU Office of Continuing Education, Division of Academic Affairs, PAC 519, 217/786-6073.
Ballots were counted April 16 to determine winners in the election held to fill eight civil service and two administrative positions on the University's Staff Senate. The newly elected senators are: Shirley Hood, Mary Hummel, Maureen Parish, Lois Weissberg, Lucy Howdeshell, Irene Allsop, Terry Powell, Ann Kormorech, John Kennedy and Mary Beth Parker.

Other members of the Staff Senate for 1982/83 are: Carolyn Bardos, Everett Bell, Charline Bradley, Bob Clement, Judy Day, Ruth Giachetto, Sharon Hill, Shirley Maurath, Pamela McDavid and Becky Yeach. The first meeting of the new senate will be Friday, May 7.

Ardeshir Lohrasbi, assistant professor of management at Sangamon State University, was a member of the committee which produced a seminar on "Increasing Profits through Improved Human Relations," sponsored by the Lincoln Land Chapter of the American Production and Inventory Control Society and the Management and Business Administration programs at Sangamon State. The program was held April 3 at SSU.

Officers of the Sangamon State Administrators Round Table for 1982-83 were elected at the group's April 7 meeting, held in the University's Public Affairs Center. They are: Nan Spalding, Springfield Services Team, State Board of Education, president; Richard Wilson, superintendent, Stonington Community Unit School District #7, vice president; Stuart Anderson, professor of administration, Sangamon State University, secretary; and Harold Vose, regional superintendent of schools, Sangamon County, treasurer.

More than 100 Central Illinois educators attended the meeting, which examined the subject of "School Law." Several area attorneys made presentations.

Jeffrey A. Chesky, assistant professor of gerontology, is co-author of an original research paper entitled "Effects of Exercise on the Biochemical Aging of Mammalian Myocardium II. Creatine Phosphokinase." The paper appeared in Mechanisms of Aging and Development, Vol. 16.

Bill Miller, associate professor and director of public affairs reporting at Sangamon State University, has been named to the National Freedom of Information Committee of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi. Miller - president of the Illinois Freedom of Information Council, a coalition of statewide journalism organizations dedicated to the protection of First Amendment rights - participated in the First Amendment Congress in Chicago in March. He took part in a panel discussion of freedom of information issues in Illinois. Miller also serves as freedom of information chairperson for the Illinois News Broadcasters Association.

Ralph Horwitz, professor of management and business administration at Sangamon State University, was invited to take part in the Management Classics Lecture Series presented by the Graduate School of Management, University of Dallas, in March. Horwitz' lecture was entitled "The Political Economy of Confidence: The Conciliation of Supply-Side and Demand-Side Economics."

Peter Wenz, associate professor of philosophy at SSU, delivered two papers in April relating to his ongoing work with the University's Center for Legal Studies. On April 2 Wenz delivered a paper on "Ethics, Energy Policy and Future Generations" at the Sixth Morris Colloquium held in Boulder, Colo. This year's colloquium examined "Environmental Futures: Issues in Ethics and Economics." On April 30 Wenz delivered a paper entitled "Human Rights and Ethnic Integrity" at the American Philosophical Association Western Division Meeting held in Columbus, Ohio.

Wenz is also the author of two papers focusing on different aspects of the philosophy of 18th century British empiricist George Berkeley. "Berkeley and Kant on the Analytic and Synthetic A Priori" appeared in the March issue of The Berkeley Newsletter, while "Berkeley's Two Concepts of Impossibility: A Reply to McMackin" will appear in the July issue of The Journal of the History of Ideas.

Horace Waggoner, research associate in the University's Oral History Office, is the author of an article on aviation history which appeared in the March issue of Aerospace Historian. The article concerns early efforts to establish commercial aviation in the Midwest and centers on Springfield as a typical example.

Mattilou Catchpole, associate professor of nurse anesthesia at Sangamon State, was recently chosen by her colleagues as president-elect of the Illinois Association of Nurse Anesthetists. Catchpole is an M.D. candidate at Southern Illinois University and earned the R.N. from the Charity Hospital School of Nursing and the C. R. N. A. from Lakeside Hospital.

SSU Affirmative Action Officer Otis Bolden delivered the closing address at a Colorado Department of Education conference on "Affirmative Action/Affirmative Leadership: Miscast," held in Colorado Springs in early April. Bolden's subject was "Affirmative Action: Who Will Save the Children?" Bolden also presented two workshops and participated in a panel discussion addressing the subject "How is Affirmative Action Best Achieved?"

Rassule Hadidi, assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs at Sangamon State University, presented a paper on "Justification for the Use of Utility Ratio Approach in Group Decision Making" at the Joint National Meeting of ORSA/TIMS, held in Detroit in April.

Joan Parker, a research associate in the Illinois Legislative Studies Center, has been appointed to the board of directors of the League of Women Voters of Illinois, where she will serve as chairman of the election laws committee. Parker is a former president of the Lincoln League of Women Voters.

Consort recital is May 7

A recital by the Sangamon Consort, under the direction of Sangamon State Professor of Music Mark Siebert, will be held Friday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Public Affairs Center Rehearsal Hall A, in the lower level.

The program will include music of the 16th and 17th centuries, plus selections from Love Song Waltzes and New Love Song Waltzes by Brahms. Admission is free.
SURS makes service credit available

From time to time the SSU Journal publishes informational articles from the State Universities Retirement System. For further information about interest rates or any other aspect of the retirement system, contact the SURS at: Box 2770, Station A, Champaign, Ill. 61820, telephone 217/333-3860. At Sangamon State, the person to contact is Gloria Casey in the Accounting Office, 786-6727.

Participants of the State Universities Retirement System may purchase service credit for: 1) other full-time public employment; 2) prior service with an employer covered by SURS; and 3) by repaying a refund. You should refer to the green brochure for a description of service credit. The green brochure is available from the Retirement System and your local personnel office.

The payment made to the Retirement System by a participant includes interest. The interest rate will change from 6 percent to 8 percent effective Sept. 1, 1982. After that date the 8 percent interest will be charged from the date an employee became a participant of SURS or the date a refund was paid to a former employee, to the date payment is received by the Retirement System.

Med Tech receives equipment

Clay Adams Laboratory Equipment Co., a division of Becton, Dickinson and Company, New Jersey, recently donated more than $25,000 worth of equipment and reagents to the Medical Technology Program at Sangamon State University.

Donna Corriveau, instructor of medical technology at SSU, said, "The program certainly appreciates these donations and wishes to thank Clay Adams. This is a welcome addition that will help upgrade the curriculum to meet the ever-changing field of laboratory medicine."

Three pieces of equipment were involved: an HA-5 Hematology Analyzer, an Ultra-Flo 100 Platelet Analyzer and an Enzic Chemistry Analyzer.

All three instruments deal with blood analysis. The Hematology Analyzer measures five parameters concerning white and red blood cells, the Ultra-Flo counts the number of platelets in a patient's blood sample, and the Chemistry Analyzer provides two modes of analysis.

Example 1
Assume an employee received a refund of $1,000 from the State Universities Retirement System in September, 1967, and returned to employment covered by SURS on Aug. 1, 1980. An employee must return to participation for two calendar years to be eligible to repay a refund. If the $1,000 refund taken in September, 1967, is repaid in August, 1982, at the 6 percent rate, the amount repaid will be $2,396.56. If that same refund is not repaid until September, 1982, the amount repaid based on 8 percent interest will be $3,193.32—an increase of 33.2 percent.

Example 2
Assume an employee became a participant of SURS on Sept. 1, 1962, at an annual salary rate of $8,000 and elects to purchase service credit for one year of other full-time public employment completed prior to 1962. If payment is made in August, 1982, at the 6 percent interest rate, the cost to the employee is $2,052.57. If payment is made in September, 1982, at the 8 percent interest rate, the cost is $3,002.90—an increase of 46.3 percent.

You must verify other public employment and prior service before you can purchase that service credit. You should request an affidavit form from the Retirement System to be used to verify other public employment. To purchase credit for prior service with an employer covered by SURS, you should notify the Retirement System of the dates you were employed at least half-time and did not contribute to the system.

Graduates mark 10th commencement anniversary

When Sangamon State University's graduating class of 1982 walked down the aisle of the Prairie Capital Convention Center Sunday, May 16, it marked the 10th anniversary of the University's first graduating class.

To celebrate this milestone, the University planned a weekend of entertainment for the nearly 750 graduates and their families and friends, for the 6,805 alumni of the institution and for all faculty, staff and students.

The festivities began Friday, May 14, with a reception in the lobby of the Public Affairs Center. Sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, the reception featured refreshments and entertainment and was open to all graduates, faculty and alumni.

On Saturday, May 15, the University's annual Honors Breakfast was held in the PAC Cafeteria. Honoring the scholastic achievements of current graduates, the breakfast was open to all SSU students.

Victor Borge, the virtuoso comedian, brought his unique style of humor to the PAC Auditorium Saturday night. Borge presented two shows to delighted audiences.

Commencement ceremonies were held Sunday in the Prairie Capital Convention Center. Wayne C. Booth, professor of literature from the University of Chicago, delivered the commencement address.

Two student speakers — Philip M. Dehner, a B.A. candidate in Management from Lincoln, and Karla Brady, an M.A. candidate in Public Affairs Reporting from Edwardsville — also addressed the graduates.

Some 40 degree candidates, selected as outstanding students by their programs, served as student marshals.

They were: Mary Brickler, Accountancy; Mary Affrunti and Diana Roth, Biology; James Blackburn, Business Administration; Julie Dirkson and Jane Schaefer, Child, Family and Community Services; Wanda Smith and Therese Pauly, Communication; Ann Waddell and Jane Hartman, Creative Arts; Bruce Egolf, Economics.

Susan Saunders, Educational Administration; Julie Oehme and Judith Ann Meyerdierks, Environmental Studies; Connie O'Rourke, Gerontology; Lois Strom and Patrick Quigley, Sr., Health Services Administration; Cathy Caughlin and Barbara Barnett, History; James England, Human Development Counseling; Anne Schuering and Marlene Boyce, Individual Option.

Joyce Carter and Paulette Snyder.

In my judgment, there are widespread and conspicuous signs that in its 12th year, SSU amply demonstrated the ability and inclination to manage change constructively, Davis said.

As examples he offered the NCA self-study led by Dennis Camp; the deliberations and actions of the Faculty Senate led by Michael Ayers; the continuing record of outstanding service by the library faculty and staff in spite of personnel reductions and several years without a permanent dean; the smooth handling of change and turnover by every other cluster; and, finally, the office of VPAA and dean of faculty itself which has "weathered those deep doubts and suspicions of one year ago" and emerged manifestly stronger, more trusted and more relaxed.

He credited the entire VPAA staff for this, but cited in particular the VPAA search committee which, he said lightheartedly, "not only had the good judgment to recommend me, but also exerted a powerful influence in steadying our nerves and renewing our pride in our institution; the dedication of the office's faculty associates: Bill Stevens, Mel Hall, Leon Cohen and Mike Wygal; the deans and academic cabinet; and above all Dennis Foss, "who inherited a ticklish situation, but left the division in sound shape and high morale."

Davis' announcements included:

- Brian Alley, assistant director of libraries at Miami (Ohio) University, has been selected dean of the SSU library. He begins his duties July 1.
- A search committee has been formed to find a replacement for Allison Bernstein as dean of IES.
- The committee searching for a new dean of Organization and Management Studies has reported its findings and Davis said he is "actively following its recommendations."
- Dennis Foss and Mike Wygal will remain in the VPAA's office to help in the transition (Foss will return to teaching).
- Mel Hall has been appointed head of Continuing Education and off campus instruction.
- Judy Everson will join the VPAA staff as a faculty associate, creating an opening for a new dean of Arts and Sciences and necessitating the formation of another search committee.
- Four of 18 open faculty positions have been filled, six are pending.
- On the subject of faculty salaries, Davis said, "The outlook for FY83 is unpromising due to deteriorating revenues and escalating politics. Some salary adjustments will be made based on promotions, equity considerations and explicit market circumstances, but the governor has indicated no general salary hikes, thus we anticipate no merit or extra merit increments."

Bursar's Office moves to PAC building

As of May 18, the Sangamon State University Bursar's Office consolidated its operation on Level One of the Public Affairs Center (PAC 184), closing its office in B Building. Wally Wheeler, University bursar, said the move was made to simplify his operation and "make the Bursar's Office more accessible to the students."

"The idea behind it (the move) is that the PAC is going to be the focal point of all University activities. Everything will eventually be centralized in the PAC and library areas," he pointed out.

"I think our new location is more accessible. The new office is near the cafeteria — most students, faculty and staff get there at least once a day," he explained.

Only the Bursar's Office was affected by the move. The SSU Ticket Office (also under Wheeler's jurisdiction) remains at the same location. The Bursar's Office moved into new facilities next to the Ticket Office.

While the two offices are located at the same site, their functions are separate. The Bursar's Office provides services such as the sale of money orders, stamps, traveler's checks and SSU parking decals; the distribution of payroll checks, financial aid checks and short-term loans (with approval of the Financial Assistance Office); the collection of tuition, fees and parking fines; and cashing personal checks and notarizing documents. The SSU Ticket Office handles the sale of tickets for events in the auditorium of the PAC only.

The Ticket Office will cash checks and sell stamps during times the Bursar's Office is closed, Wheeler said.

He explained that payroll check distribution will be handled from the new location for all offices in the PAC and the Norris L. Brookens Library. The Comptroller's Office (B99) will distribute checks for offices located in Buildings A through L and Cox House.

Fall hours of operation for the Bursar's Office are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Aug. 23 to Sept. 10 and Oct. 11 to 22 (to handle registration), and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the semester. The Ticket Office will be open between 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday. The Bursar's phone number is 786-6738; the number for the Ticket Office is 786-6160.
Outstanding students recognized at Management Honors Convocation

Highest honors were presented to: Barbara Hill and Coleen Jordan, both of Springfield; Thomas Heath, Rochester; Mustafa Ozer, Ankara, Turkey; William Miller, Peoria; Kay loerger, Metamora; John Crayton, Washington; and Ralph Lawrence, Ill, Lincoln.

Hill, Jordan, Heath and Ozer shared the First National Bank of Springfield Award for Highest Academic Achievement. Each attained a perfect four-point grade average.

Hill, a double award winner, was also the recipient of the Springfield Marine Bank Award for Excellence in Finance.

The Illinois National Bank of Springfield Award for Excellence in Marketing was presented to Miller; loerger received the Wall Street Journal Student Achievement and Contribution Award. The American Production and Inventory Control Society Excellence in Production Award went to Crayton; and Lawrence was named winner of the James C. Worthy Award for the Best Senior Paper.

Each award winner except one, Ozer, had been away from college for several years and returned to higher education to sharpen productivity skills or to seek a better job. Each had praise for SSU's Management Program and faculty, and each singled out self-improvement in the areas of oral and written communications as highlights of their experience at the University.

Hill, a real estate salesperson, graduated from Lincoln Land Community College in 1980 with a perfect four-point grade average; Jordan also maintained a straight-A average at LLC. Heath, another LLC alumnus, is a data processing consultant with the Sperry Corporation.

Ozer was originally recruited to SSU to play soccer and now intends to pursue graduate studies. Miller, who was on the vice-president's honor roll at Illinois Central College, is the internal auditor for Sears Roebuck in Peoria.

loerger, the mother of five children, worked as a foreman for the Caterpillar Tractor Company while attaining a bachelor's degree; she plans to pursue a master's degree. Crayton works at Caterpillar as a senior research engineer, where he is developing intelligent robots to assist the company's manufacturing process.

Lawrence, who earlier attained a business and economics degree from Illinois College and a master's degree from SSU, is an industrial engineer for Lincoln's Eaton Corp.

PAR Program accepts 18 students for fall

Eighteen graduate students have been accepted for the 1982-83 Public Affairs Reporting class at Sangamon State University. According to program director Bill Miller, a record number of 53 applications were received this year, from students in eight states and two foreign countries.

Students accepted into the program are: Marcel Bright and Nina Burleigh, Chicago; Becky Enrietto, Auburn; Rodney Furlow, Christopher; Holly Headland, LaGrange; James Heimerich and Amy Weber, Champaign; Nora Jurgens, Green Bay, Wis.; Philip Jurek, Palos Heights; Mark Ludwig, Arlington Heights; John Martin, Lincoln; Ted Matthews, Jacksonville; Peg Melnick, Decatur; Colin O'Donnell, Mt. Prospect; Andy Robeznieks, Franklin Park; Kim Simpson, Omaha, Neb.; Julie Wurth, Fairview Heights; and John Yaeger, Hinsdale.

Besides Miller, the PAR Admissions Committee included Barbara Hipsman, bureau chief of the Belleville News Democrat; Mike Lawrence, bureau chief of Lee Enterprises; Charles Wheeler, Statehouse correspondent for the Chicago Sun Times; and Sangamon State faculty members Sherrie Good, assistant professor of communication, Mike Lennon, associate professor of literature and publisher of Illinois Issues, and Ray Schroeder, assistant professor of communication.

Nursing Program pins 14 graduates

The 1982 graduates of Sangamon State University's Nursing Program were honored at a special pinning ceremony on the terrace of the Public Affairs Center immediately following commencement on May 16.

Pins were presented to 14 bachelor's degree candidates in nursing. They were: Wayne Briner, Brenda Haarman, David Kerwin, Elizabeth O'Dell, Jeanne Perino, Rita Peterson, Marcia Pickard, Frances Pitchford and Mary Jo Wasser, all of Springfield; Helen Guernsey, Buffalo; Diane Lueders, Chatham; Kathy Sigle, Pawnee; Nancy Brinkman, Peoria; and Donna Easton, Gillespie.

Rassule Haddid, assistant professor of mathematical systems and public affairs, conducted a third session of the workshop "Operations Research Techniques in Local and State Government." The workshop was held in May in the Public Affairs Center at Sangamon State and was sponsored by the University's Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation and Office of Continuing Education.

L. F. Robinson, director of admissions and records at Sangamon State, recently chaired a session entitled "Nontraditional and Proprietary Concerns in Articulation" for the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers, held in Kansas City in April. The session focused on practical considerations and implications of nontraditional education for admissions and articulation.

Rebecca Douglass, director of the East Central Network Illinois Vocational Curriculum Center, housed at Sangamon State University, has been invited to present a paper at "Agenda for Vocational Education Research for the '80s," a national colloquium to be sponsored by the American Vocational Education Research Association and the Coordinating Committee on Research in Vocational Education. Papers will be published in the American Vocational Education Research Journal.

Owen Rugg, superintendent of printshop, has been selected Regional Member of the Year by the In-Plant Printing Management Association. Rugg is one of six managers from throughout the country to be recognized. He was chosen on the basis of recommendations by his peers in the region. Rugg organized the Lincoln Land chapter of the association in 1973 and was the group's charter president.

Jonathan Katz, professor of arts administration and director of the Community Arts Management Program, conducted workshops on "Time Management" and "Career Planning" at the annual conference of the National Assembly of Community Arts Agencies, held in San Antonio in June. Six graduate students enrolled in the CAM program received waivers for conference registration fees and stipends for travel expenses in return for their assistance in coordinating the conference.

Katz was recently re-elected to the board of directors of Springfield, the Springfield area arts council. During Katz' previous term he served as vice-president for programs. CAM graduate student John P. Riley has been hired as Springfield's executive director.

Katz was also appointed to the Purchase Award Committee for this year's Old Capitol Art Fair. Works selected by the committee become part of the Springfield municipal art collection and are displayed in city offices, Lincoln Library, and area health and social service agencies.

Sangamon State University Women's Tennis Coach Sue McCain has been named 1981 District 20 Coach of the Year. Last year, McCain's second at SSU, her team finished 8th in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics National Women's Tennis Tournament. This year the team is again competing in the tournament, to be held in June in Kansas City. McCain was selected for the honor by her fellow coaches in the state of Illinois.

All three of SSU's coaches have now received Coach of the Year awards. Athletic director Aydin Gunulsen was named 1980 National Soccer Coach of the Year, while Men's Tennis Coach Dave McCain, Sue's husband, was last year's District 20 Coach of the Year.

Two Sangamon State student athletes have been selected for the NAIA District 20 All-Academic Team for 1981-82. They are soccer goalie Nelson Fernandez and tennis player Ann Waddell. More than 2,850 Illinois student athletes competed academically for the honor.

Both Fernandez and Waddell were also named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Other SSU athletes named to Who's Who were soccer players Tony Fantham, Dave Korbel and Gary Bloom and tennis players Kathy Herrick and Kurt Sames.

Bill Miller, associate professor and director of public affairs reporting, has been awarded the 1982 Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, First Amendment Award. Miller, current president of the Illinois Freedom of Information Council, was one of four professionals from around the country who received this year's award. Miller has been active in promoting freedom of information issues in the Illinois General Assembly for 25 years, beginning with the passage of the first Illinois Open Meetings Act in 1957. He is past president and charter member of the Illinois News Broadcasters Association and the Sangamon Valley Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi. He also serves both organizations as chairman of their Freedom of Information Committees.

The First Amendment Award was created to "recognize the strong and continued efforts of those who seek the preservation and strengthening of freedom of the press and the First Amendment." Presentations of the awards were made at a May 26 dinner.

Wilma Scott Heide, professor of women's studies and innovative and experimental studies, has written invited testimony on Senate Bill 1889, "To Establish the United States Academy of Peace, and for other Purposes." Heide's testimony supports the idea of the academy and proposes certain amendments. One premise of the proposed academy is that justice is a prerequisite for genuine peace. Copies of the testimony are available in Brookens 408.

In April Heide spoke at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater on "De-mythologizing Patriarchy: New Energy for Peace." She also met with faculty and administration to discuss integrating feminist scholarship and women's studies throughout the curricula. In May she visited Oberlin College in Ohio to share her perspectives and visions on the past, present and future of the feminist movement.

Lori Berg, producer/host of fine arts programming on WSSR, Sangamon State's public radio station, is one of six actor-musicians who will repeat their cabaret revue "Sondheim Comes to Springfield" June 22-24 at Crow's Mill School. Berg has been performing in the revue since November. The program includes songs from 11 musicals by Stephen Sondheim.

Sidney Burrell, assistant professor of social justice professions at Sangamon State, moderated a panel discussion at the Second National Conference on Sexual Victimization of Children, sponsored by Children's Hospital National Medical Center, Washington, D.C., in May. The topic discussed by Burrell's panel was "The Examination of Inves-and personnel work.

Recent changes in the guidance and personnel association have led to the formation of the Small Business/Minority Services Center at Sangamon State University, which will be the Small Business/Minority Services Center of the Sangamon State University. Recently organized under the direction of the Illinois State Board of Education, this new entity will provide a variety of services to support the needs of small businesses and minority businesses.

Michael Lennon, associate professor of literature at Sangamon State, is the author of "Mailer's Cosmology," which will appear in the 1982 summer number of Modern Language Studies, published by Brown University.

Richard Judd, associate professor of management at Sangamon State University, will be the Small Business/Entrepreneurship Area chairperson for the 1983 Midwest Business Administration Association annual meeting, to be held in March in Chicago. The MBAA is a professional association composed of academic, business, and government personnel interested in sharing ideas and research findings in economics, law, finance, insurance, personnel, production, small business, marketing, and other areas of general business interest.

Summer archaeology workshops offered at Kampsville site

Sangamon State University, in cooperation with the Northwestern University Center for American Archaeology, will offer two archaeological workshops at the Kampsville Archaeological Center this summer.

The college field workshop, directed by James Stuart, assistant professor of anthropology at Sangamon State, and Thomas G. Cook, research director of the educational programs at Kampsville, offers students an opportunity to work with archaeologists and natural scientists in four major areas: archaeological field methods, archaeological laboratory methods, methods of stone artifact analysis and cultural adaptation. Four hours of college credit are available for the workshop.

The teachers workshop in archaeology, directed by Karen Ann Holm, assistant director of educational programs at the center, and W. Williams Stevens, associate professor of teacher education at Sangamon State, will introduce participants to archaeological field methods, actual field excavation, laboratory processing of artifacts and the study of Native American technologies. Sessions will also be held to review curriculum materials developed by the Kampsville staff for classroom use.

The teachers workshop is designed for teachers, librarians, administrators and other educators working in the middle school through college levels. Two credit hours in education or anthropology are offered through Sangamon State University.

Kampsville is located in western Illinois, 60 miles northeast of St. Louis along the Illinois River. It is a permanent field campus where year-round education and research programs study the prehistoric inhabitants who populated the Lower Illinois Valley as early as 10,000 B.C. The site is supported by Northwestern University and the Foundation for Illinois Archaeology.

Participants in the college field workshop live in houses in the town of Kampsville that have been adapted for dorm living. Breakfast and dinner are served in a centrally located dining hall, and a picnic-style lunch is served at the site.

The Illinois Vocational Curriculum Center, housed at Sangamon State University, recently co-sponsored a workshop on "The ABC's of Resource Utilization." The program was held in the University's Public Affairs Center.

The entire workshop was videotaped, the second time the center has used this medium to deliver information. The first was an inservice presentation by center director Rebecca Douglass which was played at the Research Coordinating Unit Directors' annual meeting in Nevada earlier this year.

The center hopes to condense the ABC's workshop into a 30-minute presentation to be used as a reference and instructional tool by Illinois educators.

Workshop co-sponsors were the Illinois State Board of Education, Illinois Resource and Dissemination Network and the Vocational Education Program Improvement Dissemination Project at the University of Illinois.

Springfield Symphony on WSSR

The Springfield Symphony Orchestra will be heard on "America in Concert," a syndicated series of national radio programs produced by Parkway Communications Corporation, the broadcast service of U.S. News and World Report, on Sangamon State University's public radio station WSSR 92FM, Thursday, July 17-24, at 11:30 a.m.

The orchestra will be conducted by Music Director Kenneth Kiesler.
Success skills refresher courses offered

The Sangamon State University Office of Continuing Education will present a series of refresher courses for people interested in continuing an interrupted education. The “Success Skills Series,” consisting of six seminars, is being held through Aug. 1.

The seminars, taught by Sangamon State faculty, will cover mathematics, social science, natural science, English and the humanities. A CLEP Review Seminar will also be offered.

Registration for individual sessions costs $40. A $200 fee is required to enroll in all of the seminars — a $40 savings. Tuition covers the cost of all classroom materials.

The “Success Skills Series” is designed for people interested in entering or returning to college, in self-improvement, in a re-orientation to learning in the classroom setting, or in fulfilling career goals.

For information, contact the SSU Office of Continuing Education, PAC 519, Springfield, IL 62708, 217/786-6073.
